The economy will continue at a high level, both for business activity and employment, through the first part of 1956. But a decline in business activity, not likely to be severe, was expected later in the year.

Cash receipts from U.S. farm marketings are expected to be about three per cent less than in 1955, with net cash income five to seven per cent less for farmers. The net income to Indiana farmers will be down even more than that, largely because of lower hog prices.

Improved efficiencies will partly offset the price decline for many farmers, but more farmers will leave their fields to find employment in industry, the outlook said.

Farmland prices have declined slightly since last March when a record high level was reached. The downward trend will continue the next year or two, chiefly for less productive land.

Opening irregularly lower, the list turned around in the early dealings and for a time the demand was sufficient to cause ticker lateness.

Stassen And Harriman Enliven Political Speculation Over Possible 1956 Candidates

WASHINGTON (UP)—Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and Republican former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota each moved closer today to becoming open candidates for their parties' presidential nominations in 1956.

Harriman said Sunday he is not committed to support Adlai E. Stevenson for the Democratic nomination next year—a statement some political observers interpreted as meaning that Harriman himself is in the race.

Stassen, now President Eisenhower's special adviser on disarmament, all but said he would accept the 1956 GOP nomination if Mr. Eisenhower picked him for the assignment. He prefaced this, however, by expressing hope Mr. Eisenhower will seek reelection.

Harriman said his past statements that he is "for" Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic candidate, did not mean he is bound to support Stevenson in 1956.

Reminded that his age has been raised as a possible deterrent to his candidacy, Harriman said 64 "is not too old . . . to do almost anything."

Stassen, who has three times sought the presidential nomination, said that if Mr. Eisenhower declines to run next year, he can pick his successor on the Republican ticket. He was interviewed on a television program.

Both Republican and Democratic officials predicted their party would win control of the House in next year's election.

Rep. Richard M. Simpson (Pa), chairman of the House Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, said President Eisenhower's illness has not caused GOP leaders to lower their goal of capturing at least 233 House seats in 1956. This would give the Republicans a 31-vote margin over the Democrats.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler predicted the Democrats would greatly increase their control of the House above their present strength of 231 seats. Republicans now hold 203 seats.

Eisenhower Likes Outdoor Periods

DENVER (UP) — Backstairs at the temporary White House:

Few things in President Eisenhower's recovery to date seem to have given him as big a lift as being able to get out in the sun, even for short periods.

The Chief Executive, a hearty, active man all his life, loves the outdoors — the fresh air and sunshine.

When the doctors began permitting short sojourns on a sun terrace near his room this week, the President was delighted. Those close to him noticed an immediate brightening of spirits.

Hitler's Valet Describes How He Poured Gasoline On Body Of Hitler And Burned It

By CAY BROCKDORFF
United Press Staff Correspondent

BERLIN (UP)—A Nazi major who served Adolf Hitler as valet said today he himself poured gasoline on the bodies of the self-slain dictator and his mistress and watched their bodies burn.

The day was April 30, 1945. Hitler's 1,000-year Reich was collapsing in ruins between the Allied and Red armies. Berlin was in flames, shattered by Allied planes and Soviet artillery.

The ruined dictator stepped into a bedroom of his underground bunker and sent a bullet crashing into his brain which had conceived the 1,000-year Reich. His mistress, Eva Braun, took poison.

"I can confirm to the whole world that Hitler is dead and that I saw his corpse burned" the Nazi major, valet Hans Linge, said in an interview.

Ten-Years Captivity

Linge returned to West Berlin Saturday from ten years in Soviet captivity with other prisoners freed by the Russians and gave the world the first eye-witness account of those final hours.

He also said he had witnessed the death of the mysterious Martin Bormann, the man chosen by Hitler as his successor. The No. 2 Nazi burned in a tank as he tried to flee the Red armies, Linge said.

The main story came from Linge and it began on the evening of the 29th when shells were falling on the bunker and Russian tanks had broken through to Potsdammer Plaza.

All hope was abandoned and Hitler was determined to die. First he married Eva who had long been his secret mistress. Hitler said goodbye to the other bunker occupants and entered hsi suite with Eva at about 2:30 a.m.

Gasoline to burn their bodies already had been ordered.

Linge waited in the corridor outside the suite. He heard a shot and rushed into the suite. Hitler lay dead with Eva Braun alongside him.

"Before he killed himself he charged me with burning his body and that of Eva Braun and I did it," Linge said.

Linge is now 42 years old, a six-foot tough looking man who appeared to be tired and nervous but in good health.

Community Chest Helps To Provide Funds For Scout Program For Whitley County Boys

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles describing one of the agencies which is a member of the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc.)

More than 300 boys in Whitley county as of June 1st were taking part in the Boy Scouts of America program. Since June 1st that number has increased with larger enrollments in the troops and more troops added to the organization. Nearly 100 entered the program from January 1 to June 1.

Designed as a program to teach boys outdoor life and build character and self-reliance, the program includes boys from eight to 18 years old in the Cub Packs, Boys Scouts and Explorer Troops.

Each year the Anthony Wayne Council and the Whitley County Boy Scouts organizations depend on the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc., to provide funds for a complete operation of the Boy Scout program.

Whitley County this year served as the central point in the Anthony Wayne Council when the annual Camporee was held at the 4-H Grounds. More than 1500 boys from nine Northeastern Indiana counties attended the camporee. Included among the boys were many from the Whitley county troops.

Althgether, 10 Boy Scout troops meet weekly in Whitley county. Also on the roll are several Exployer troops and Cub packs.

As a part of the Anthony Wayne Council, the Whitley County Scouts attend Big Island Scout camp at Rome City. Fifty-five scouts, representing six Whitley county troops, attended from the county.

Divided into three phases, the Cub Scouts, boys 8 to 10, are the beginners. They learn handicraft, games and home duties through Den Mothers during meetings held in pack member's homes. The Boy Scouts, from 11 to 14 years, move to the outdoor life where they learn the out-of-doors through trained volunteer Scout leaders and carry on in their training with projects for better home development. The Explorer Scouts, 14 to 18, are the top of the ladder in training with a greater emphasis on a chosen field and more challenging projects.

Each Scout unit in the county receives a share of the leadership given by the Anthony Wayne Council. The Whitley county troops also receive equipment from the county organization in order to carry on the Scouting program.

The choir of the First Presbyterian church will practice at 7:30 Thursday evening at the church.

One Hunter Still Seeing Moose This Morning-In The Sky

Late Monday night a group of men returned from an extended hunting trip into Canada, after what had proved an unusually fruitful expedition. They hauled the game back in two pickup trucks two tons of venison and moose meat.

The fun was now over, and the men undertook the task of dressing the 17 animals which they killed, 10 deer and seven moose. But the work was finally finished yesterday.

This morning when one of the hunters reported to work at his place of business (probably in need of some rest after the vacation) he undoubtedly was unable to believe his eyes. For he saw a moose head in the skyline about 30 feet off the ground. Willard "Pop" Phillips reportedly shook his head and rubbed his eyes, but sure enough there was the bull moose surveying the situation at Phillips Friendly Service, from his place in the sky.

Oh—it's a joke, Willard quickly guessed. But how did it get up there? The fact that the moose head was hanging on a utility pole should answer that question.

There is one thing, however, this writer does not understand about the moose, never having ventured into the northwoods on the trail of the big game. Much had been said about the size of the moose these hunters brought bacl, but after looking at the head of this moose, the writer assumes this one was only half grown—because it had only one antler.

To Launch Gift Campaign For Mental Patients

Campaign Will Begin Thursday

The Whitley County Chapter of the Indiana Association For Mental Health will launch its annual Christmas gift campaign for the 17,000 mental patients in the state Thursday, according to the county chairman, Mrs. Jules Heritier.

Mrs. Heritier states the campaign will be conducted through December 1. A gift depot has been set up in the City Hall here by Girl Scout Troop 12 with Mrs. Dale Guisinger, Tri-Lakes, as the troop leader. Pamphlets will be distributed by Girl Scout Troop 5, with Mrs. Stuart Smith and Mrs. Leland Williams leaders. Girl Scout Troop 13, with Mrs. Arlene Watson and Mrs. Grover Bosworth, South Whitley, as leaders.

The pamphlets and literature the Girl Scouts will distribute will list gift suggestions and explain how the gifts should be wrapped. When gifts are taken to the depot in the City Hall, tags should be attached to each gift describing the gift and for what age man or woman it would be most appropriate. Tags will be available at the City Hall.

Mrs. Heritier stated that gifts of cash would be accepted, but it is preferred that donors purchase the gift and leave it at the depot.

Four area chairmen have been named. They are: Mrs. Richard Yarnelle, South Whitley; Mrs. Dale Guisinger, Tri-Lakes; Mrs. Jules Heritier, Columbia City; and Jerome Krider, Churubusco.

Truman Says Personal Meeting With Stalin Showed What We Face In Postwar Relations

President Harry S. Truman said today he learned at the 1945 Potsdam Big Three conference that Russia's leaders then were "pig-headed people" and "not in earnest about peace."

In the fourth installment of his memoirs written for Life magazine, Mr. Truman said his personal meeting with Soviet Marshal Josef Stalin at Potsdam" enabled me to see at first hand what we had to face" in postwar relations with Russia.

He said he decided then "that I would not allow the Russians any part in the control of Japan" after VJ Day.

The fourth installment of the ex-President's memoirs, devoted entirely to the Potsdam meeting with Stalin and British Prime Ministers Winston Churchill and Clement Attlee, also contained these footnotes to history:

1. Mr. Truman became so "impatient" with Stalin's obstructionism and Churchill's "long speeches" that "I felt like blowing he roof off the palace." At the third session of the conference, he got so fed up with a prolonged British - Russian wrangle over Yugoslavia that he told Stalin and Churchill "If they did not get to the main issues, I was going to pack up and go home."

2. In a letter to his mother and sister Mary at the end of the conference, Mr. Truman wrote: "Your never saw such pig-headed people as are the Russians. I hope I never have to hold another conference with them—but of course I will."

3. Stalin's arrival at Potsdam

President Steps Up His Pace Of Official Work

But Will Remain Within Hour Range For Some Weeks

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower has stepped up his pace of official work, but members of his staff said today his working day is going to remain within the range of an hour for some weeks to come.

Mr. Eisenhower, a normally energetic man who finds it boring to stay in bed when he is feeling well, figuratively leaped Tuesday at the chance of a 25-minute conference with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Later, he had a 15-minute conference with Sherman Adams, his executive assistant. That made a total of 40 minutes during the day that he worked. He won't be allowed to go much beyond that for some weeks.

Today, the President's brother and one of his chief advisers, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State University, flies in from the East to spend a day with the Chief Executive.

Other Callers Expected

Later in the week, there will be other callers at the President's bedside. The doctors seem to think that some occupation with the problems of government is far better for the ailing President than a void of communication.

Mr. Eisenhower is ailing from the effects of a heart attack suffered last Sept. 24. He has been a patient at Fitzsimons Army Hospital since about 12 hours after the attack, and medical indications were that his recuperation at the hospital here would extend into the second week of November.

Reports from the President's bedside continued to underline the conservative confidence of his staff that he is on the road to recovery.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty rejected allmost abruptly public suggestions by doctors other than those treating the President that the President's heart might be helped by an operation.

Medical Advice Adequate

Hagerty said the President's present medical advice was adequate and he would not even comment on the other doctors' ideas about an operation.

The most importan tihng the President did Tuesday in his conference with Dulles was work out with him an interim reply to Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Bulganin's disarmament proposals, made Sept. 17.

The reply, which the President signed and which Dulles took back to Washington to start through diplomatic channels to Moscow, is intended only to serve until U.S. experts get through looking into technical proposals that Bulganin made and their findings can be incorporated in a full reply.

The President also approved the agenda set up for the Big Four foreign ministers conference in Geneva Oct. 27. Dulles said he may be back to see the President before he leaves for Geneva.

Board Of Zoning Appeals Grants Permit To Dairy

The Columbia City board of zoning appeals has granted a permit to the Columbia Dairy to construct an addition to the present building, which would house the dairy's tank truck, according to Building Commissioner Richard Holden.

The regular application by the dairy for a building permit was denied by the building commissioner because the area involved was situated in a residential zone, making the building addition a nonconforming use. The board of appeals granted the permit but stipulated the additional building space would have to be constructed of fireproof materials similar to that in the main body of the plant.

The addition will be located on the south side of the present dairy building.

Iran Announces Decision To Join Baghdad Pact

Alliance Links Her With Britian, Iraq, Turkey, Pakistan

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UP) —Oil-rich Iran formally notified its Allies today it was joining the Baghdad Pact, an alliance which will link it with Britain, Turkey, Iraq and Pakistan in a defense belt extending across the southern belly of the Soviet Union.

Iranian Premier Hussein Ala announced his country's decision to join the pact in Tehran Tuesday. At the time he told the Iranian parliament's foreign affairs committee that his government had officially informed the Turkish and Iraqi ambassadors to Tehran about the decision.

The treaty originally included only Turkey and Iraq which joined despite protests of its Arab League neighbors. It was extended to include Pakistan and Great Britain. Iran's accession to the pact closed the last link in Western defenses extending from the Mediterranean to India.

Officials indicated the five members of the pact would soon form a ministerial council to meet next month in Baghdad.

MOSCOW (UP)—Russia warned Iran today that the Soviet government attaches "grave importance" to Iran's decision to join the pro-Western Baghdad pact.

Soviet Foreign Minister V.M. Molotov summoned the Iranian envoy in Moscow and protested to him that:

"The accession of Persia (Iran) to this military alignment is incompatible with the interests of consolidating peace and security in the region of the Middle and Near East."

Council Orders 4-Way Stop To Protect Pupils

At its meeting last night the City Council by resolution ordered a four-way stop at the intersection of Jackson street and Marshall avenue as an added protection for the children who attend the Mary Raber primary school.

Warning signs are to be erected as soon as possible by Herbert Kneller, street superintendent.

Also directed by the council is a change in the angle of parking on Van Buren street between Chauncey and Line streets. This has been requested by the Indiana Highway commission due to the volume of traffic passing through this block and the fact that parking space on this portion of Van Buren street is more often occupied than in the adjoining blocks.

Since, due to the resurfacing of Van Buren street, new parking stall lines must be painted at each meter, the angle of parking will be changed to permit easier entry and exit of vehicles from the parking stalls.

In its only other action last night, the council by unanimous vote made effective the ordinance to include the Jack Gates residence property adjoining West Park addition in the corporate limits of the city. All councilmen were present for Tuesday night's session which was presided over by Mayor Thomas H. Hood.

"Thermometers" In 3 Towns Showing Campaign's Progress

Volunteer Community Chest workers throughout Whitley County were on the job today after final organizational meetings in several areas of the county were held within the last few days.

First reports of the campaign were slow in coming in as the workers were making their first contacts, but the first day of the campaign, Monday, showed more than $1,500 pledged or given to the Chest.

Monday's report came from gifts made before the campaign opened and the reports on the first day's operations. Included were gifts from organizations and clubs in Whitley County, county officials in the courthouse and Columbia City City officials and individual givers.

Meetings with workers were held at South Whitley Monday night. Heading the meeting were William Striggle, South Whitley chairman, and L. D. Reiff, county townships chairman.

Churubusco Workers Meet

Tuesday night, house to house workers met at Churubusco with Chest-President Clarence Gall and Mrs. Jerome Krider, Churubusco house-to-house chairman. A general meeting of the various chairmen for Churubusco was held last week.

Volunteer workers for the Columbia City business area and its employees met Tuesday morning, received campaign packets and opened their part of the campaign. The meeting was under the direction of Kenneth Black and Lowell Shearer, chairmen of the division.

President Gall, in a public statement today as the official campaign began to gather headway, again emphasized the object of the Chest as one to "gather all giving into one big gift."

"By working through the Chest," he said, "we are able to stage one campaign and avoid repeated solication. The nine agencies of the Chest depend on the Chest for support while retaining authority in the field in which they carry out their services."

The chest president again reminded residents of Whitley County that the agencies in the Community Chest are Whitley County agencies. The services rendered by them are to the residents of the county while other counties have their own.

"Thermometers" Show Progress

Thermometers to show the progress of the campaign have been erected in Columbia City, Churubusco and South Whitley. The thermometers wil record publicly the progress of the campaign beginning later this week.

Garrett Youth's Car Damaged In Rear-End Crash

Damage estimated at $400 resulted to the front end of the automobile operated by a Garrett high school student when it rammed into the rear of another car, halted for a traffic light, during the peak of the traffic rush following the Garrett - CCHS football game at DeVol field.

The Garrett car was a 1950 Chevrolet sedan owned by Loren Shaper but operated by 18-year-old Gary Lee Shaper. His car struck the rear of the 1946 Mercury operated by Merlin Gibson, 17, of 513 North Oak street. Damage to the Gibson car is estimated at $75.

The accident happened approximately 150 feet west of the Line street intersection on Van Buren street. Traffic east from the athletic field extended bumper-to-bumper for several blocks and the Garret youth did not see the halted traffic in sufficient time to brake his car to a stop. City police a few moments later positioned themselves at the stoplights to speed traffic through the business district and prevent a major tie-up on U.S. Highway 30.

The accident last night at 9:30 was reported to Morris Carlile, city police officer. No injuries resulted.

Doctors Fight To Save Life Of Schoolgirl

Who Fell From Giant Ferris Wheel

DALLAS, Tex. (UP) — Doctors attempted today to save the life of one of two schoolgirl survivors of a fall from a giant double ferris-wheel that killed their companion.

The three young school girls plummeted 92 feet to the ground when their seat on the "Skywheel" on the State Fair of Texas' "Million Dollar Midway" came loose Tuesday.

Cynthia Combest, 15, a drummer for the Memphis, Tex., High School band, was killed instantly. She was thrown over the top of the "Skywheel" and plunged to her death. She was sitting in the middle of the seat.

Kay Leslie 15, fell all the way through both wheels in the ride, landing at the front of the platform. She was in critical condition at Baylor Hospital with a possible skull fracture.

Barbara Allen, 14, stayed with the seat until it was about 15 feet above the ground before she fell to the earth. She survived with only bruises, a shock and a badly gashed leg.

Another child, Mollie Balfour, 13, of Winona, Tex., who was riding in another seat below was struck as the falling seat went through the steel framework of the ride.

"They just fell on me and knocked a gash in my head" Mollie said. "Then they fell right to the bottom."

Mollie cried as she told police what had happened.

The worst tragedy in the history of the nation's largest annual exposition struck on "band day," when thousands of youngsters from throughout Texas, dressed in bright uniforms, joyously jammed the fair grounds and midway.

The 1955 edition of the fair opened its 17-day run only Friday night.

The "Skywheel" was an extra special attraction just for the fair and was set up at the head of the midway, immediately in front of the Cotton Bowl. It will be dismantled as soon as engineers complete surveys to determine cause of the fatal accident.

Drafts Reply To Bulganin Letter On Disarmament

During Conference With Secretary Dulles In Hospital Room

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower is making a new appeal to Russia to support his plan to swap military blueprints and arrange aerial survey flights over both countries, administration officials said today.

Officials said the new bid for Russian support is an important part of the President's "interim" reply to Premier Nikolai Bulganin's Sept. 19 letter on disarmament.

The reply to Bulganin was drafted in final form during Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' conference in a Denver hospital room Tuesday with the ill President.

Mr. Eisenhower also was expected to inform Bulganin that the United States still is working on a broader disarmament program.

Talked With Stassen

It was learned that Dulles, before going to Denver, held a conference here Sunday with Harold E. Stassin, Mr. Eisenhower's special disarmament adviser. The recommended letter to Bulganin and Dulles' disarmament statements at the Miami American Legion convention on Monday were discussed by Dulles and Stassen, it was said.

Mr. Eisenhower's letter will be

Perfect Circle Foundry Reopens; Rumors Dynamite To Be Dropped

By KEITH L. MARTIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP)—The Perfect Circle Corp. foundry resumed production today for the first time since a strike riot, amid a rumor dynamite sticks would be dropped on the plant from the air in defiance of martial law.

A total of 114 men and women showed up for work while National Guardsmen with Sherman tanks and machineguns stood ready to act in the event of violence like that which wounded nine persons in a gun battle last Wednesday between CIO United Auto Workers and non-strikers.

A military plane circled the foundry as 77 production workers, 21 supervisory employes and 16 office girls—25 more than Tuesday's "cleanup" force — entered the plant.

See Production Rise

The plane may have been sent up because of a rumor the company said it heard that strikers were talking about hiring a plane to fly over the plant and drop explosives.

A total of 1,000 National Guardsmen were in the New Castle area to enforce Gov. George N. Craig's order that the plant could resume production. The troopers, 600 of them in New Castle, were armed with the authority of full martial law in a two county area including three cities, four strikebound Perfect Circle plants, and 50,000 persons.

The guard's force was centered at the New Castle foundry, where four Sherman tanks and machine guns neste were spotted at strategic points.

The strikers planned to post only five pickets at the plant when it opened its doors today. But in a cheering, shouting meeting Tuesday night, they resolved to continue the walkout no matter how

C.B. Juday, plant manager, said the firm expects the work force to increase day by day and hopes production of piston ring castings will reach 50 per cent of normal by early next week. Normal production before the strike was more than half a million castings a day.

Vice President William B. Prosser said the firm was informed Tuesday night that one of several companies from which Circle has been buying castings during the strike can no longer furnish them because of "a union ultimatum."

At a meeting Tuesday night, UAW local members voted to continue their strike until they win.

"was delayed because of a slight heart attack which he had suffered —"this was a well-kept secret." During the conference, Stalin told Mr. Truman that "his health was not as good as it used to be" and he'd had to start drinking toasts in French wine instead of vodka.

4. The "most urgent" U.S. goal at Potsdam was "to get from Stalin a personal reaffirmation" of Russia's Yalta conference promise to enter the war against Japan. Mr. Truman got such a renewed pledge from Stalin "in the very first days of the conference. But later Soviet Foreign Minister V.M. Molotov suggested that the United States and Britain "address a formal request to the Soviet government" for help against Japan. Mr. Truman regarded this as a "cynical" Russian maneuver to grab the glory for defeating Japan. He resolved not to "let Russia reap the fruits of a long and bitter and gallant effort in which she had no part."

5. The renewal of Russia's promise to enter the Far East war was "the only secret agreement made at Potsdam."

6. Mr. Truman found the Russian leaders "relentless bargainers, forever pressing for every advantage for themselves." "It did not seem possible that only a few miles from the war-shattered seat of Nazi power, the head of any government would not bend every effort to attain a real peace. Yet I was not altogether disillusioned to find now that the Russians were not in earnest about peace."

Mistrial Caused By Applause For McCarthy

Trial Of Psychologist Starts All Over Again

BOSTON (UP)—The trial of a former Harvard psychologist on contempt of Congress charges starts all over again today without a jury because applauding supporters of the chief witness, Sen. Joseph McCarthy, threatened to turn it into a "popularity contest."

Federal Judge Bailey Aldrich Tuesday dismissed the jury hearing charges against Leon J. Kamin of Toronto, Ont., and Kamin promptly waived his rights to a jury trial. The trial resumed today without a jury. Witnesses prepared to testify included McCarthy, Roy Cohn, former McCarthy subcommittee aide, and Sen. Charles Potter (R-Mich).

Aldrich said he did not blame McCarthy for the corridor demonstrations but said "a witness should not ever appear to be in a popularity contest." The senator from Wisconsin smilingly told reporters "I never object to applause."

Kamin, now a researcher at Queen's College, Toronto, is accused of refusing to name his Communist associates while he was a party member at Harvard between 1945 and 1950. His refusal came at a hearing in Boston before McCarthy who was acting as a one-man Senate investigating committee.

Kamin quit the Communist Party in 1950 in disgust.

Aldrich said McCarthy supporters waiting in the corridor outside the courtroom applauded the senator "two or three times" during the preliminary phase of the trial, which began Tuesday morning.

Aldrich said the applauding public apparently did not agree with his earlier instructions to the jury …el that "Communism is not on trial here and Senator McCarthy is not on trial."

The action to declare a mistrial was made by defense counsel Calvin P. Barlett on the grounds that Kamin's "rights have been prejudiced." It was revealed that Kamin asked last June for a trial before a judge only but the government insisted on a jury trial.

Farm Employment Down, Wages Up

WASHINGTON (UP)—Farm employment was down in September and farm wages were up.

The Agriculture Department reported Tuesday that 10,849,000 persons were at work on farms during the week of Sept. 18-24. This was about 375,000 less than a year earlier.

The number of family workers was down 2 per cent while hired hands totaled about 7 per cent less.

Farm wage rates on Oct. 1 were up 3 per cent from a year earlier and about 2 per cent from July 1.

HONG KONG (UP)—Sir Alexander Grantham, governor general of this British crown colony, returned today from a "purely social" visit to Communist China.

While in Peiping Grantham said Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai gave a reception for himself, his wife and British Charge d'Affaires Con O'Neill and his wife.

He said the only question of international importance Chou brought up was whether there had been any further progress in solving the sabotage crash of an Air India plane carrying Communist officials to the Afro-Asian Conferenece at Bandung, Indonesia.

MOSCOW (UP)—Moscow newspapers today published a Tass news agency dispatch from Washington highly critical of U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' speech to theAmerican Legion at Miami, Fla.

Tass said Dulles "contradicts the Geneva spirit of mutual confidence and international collaboration manifested at the conference of the heads of the four-power governments."

The news agency characterized Dulles' appeal for international collaboration as calling "for establishment of military blocks under American leadership and American bases in foreign territory."

LONDON (UP)—The Daily Express reported today that more than 1,000 British atomic scientists have asked for civil service status for fear world disarmament will cost them their jobs.

The newspaper report said nearly the entire staff of the Atomic Energy Authority's weapons research station wish to rejoin the government civil service which they left when the station was created.

HELSINKI, Finland (UP) — A four-member delegation leaves for Moscow today to open negotiations on civil air traffic between Finland and the Soviet Union.

The trip aroused speculation that the Soviet Union might be willing to conclude a two-way air traffic agreement with Finland.

LONDON (UP)—Milkman Sam Stanley, 41, was ordered by a judge Tuesday to cut his smoking from 60 cigarets to 16 a day. Stanley admitted embezzling collections from his route to buy smokes.

Faure Calls In His Cabinet On Algerian Plan

Hopes To Save Job, Government, Algeria

By ARTHUR HIGBEE
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS (UP)—Premier Edgar Faure called in his cabinet today to work over his Algerian "integration" plan he hopes will save his government, his job and Algeria.

He hoped to have ready the plan for tightening Algeria's ties with mainland France in time for presentation to a rebellious National Assembly at its debate on North Africa.

A vote on the Algerian issue is expected late Thursday or early Friday and Faure hoped his "integration" plan would enable him to juggle his parliamentary majority in an effort to keep in power.

He had the support of the Socialists and the Communists last week when he won a vote on the Moroccan crisis, but this time the lineup will be reversed unless he comes up with a satisfactory plan.

The left-wing parties already have expressed disagreement with his integration plan and indicated they will vote against him even though he has not yet made public its full workings.

Algeria, legally, is a part of metropolitan France and it was because of this the French delegation left the U.N. General Assembly when the issue was put on the agenda for debate. But left-wing groups in the French assembly believe there should be less integration and more home rule for the Algerians.

A Faure victory on Algeria was closely tied with success of his plan in Morocco. Should he solve the Moroccan crisis by the time the assembly votes on Algeria, he might save his endangered cabinet.

While the assembly debated Algeria, French troop reinforcements poured into Morocco. The liner Lecomte de Lisle arrived in Casablanca Tuesday with another 1,000 soldiers and half of the 27th Infantry Brigade left from Dijon, France.

Chadwick Sets England-To-France Swimming Record

DOVER, England (UP) — Florence Chadwick set an all-time England-to-France swimming record today, an official observer of the Channel Swimming Assn. reported.

Mrs. Kaye Law, the observer, reported the corrected time of the Charwick swim across the English Channel was 13 hours and 55 minutes, which was 11 minutes better by Bill Pickering Aug. 27.

According to an earlier unofficial clocking, the attractive 35-year-old San Diego, Calif., mermaid missed beating Pickering's mark by three minutes.

But Mrs. Law said that Miss Chadwick began her swim from St. Margaret's on the Dover Coast at 10:23 a.m. Tuesday and reached the French shore at 12:18 a.m. today.

"The official time is 13 hours, 55 minutes and this will be put before the association," Mrs. Law said.

Miss Chadwick set the mark even though she was forced to fight her way through a school of jelly fish off the French coast.

The thick coating of grease was nearly worn off and provided no protection against the jellyfish. But she fought on and climbed out onto the French shore, shaking with cold and covered with stings.

"I think I'll quit the channel now and do Lake Ontario next year. It is time somebody got that record back for the United States," she said.

Tennessean Has Highest Honor Given By FFA

Star Farmer Of America

KANSAS CITY, Mo. UP)—Joe Moore of Granville, Tenn., who at eight years of age wanted a Jersey cow so much he finally stopped the "baby" habit of sucking his thumb, today held the highest honor given by the Future Farmers of America.

The 21-year-old Tennessean was named 'Star Farmer of America" by the FFA Tuesday night, receiving a check of $1,000. The title names him the most outstanding in farming and leadership among the FFA's 400,000 members in the United States, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

He got his start in farming, he admitted, when his parents gave him the Jersey cow on the promise he would stop sucking his thumb. With $10 saved from earlier bribes to stop sucking his thumb, he bought a calf and was in business at eight years of age. Today, his net worth is estimated at about $36,000.

Three other FFA members were named regional star farmers and were given checks of $500 each. They are Lynn Loosli, 20, Ashton, Idaho; Richard K. Arnold, 21, Plainwell, Mich., and Ross Edward Smith Jr., 22, Monkton, Md. All four were also named "American farmers," an honor which goes to only one in 1,000 FFA members.

The awards were given at the annual FFA convention banquet here, which was attended by some 10,000 persons.

Moore, who plans to marry his hometown girl friend, Ann Huffines, in the near future, recalled the circumstances of his first cow 12 years ago as if it were today.

"Every time that thumb started toward my mouth, I could see that cow," he said, "and down it came."

After graduating from high school, he turned down a scholarship at the University of Tennessee and took over his parents' "Carverdale Farms." He now farms 525 acres and has equipment valued at $14,381.

Moore's farm program this year includes 3.7 acres of tobacco, 32 acres of small grain, 61 acres of corn, 32 acres of hay, 155 acres of pasture, 43 feeder hogs, 48 breeding hogs, 73 beef cattle, 45 breeding beef cattle, 21 feeder calves and 88 sheep.

Princess Margaret, Captain Townsend Head For London

LONDON (UP)— Group Capt. Peter Townsend and Princess Margaret headed for London today on separate journeys, and a London newspaper called the double arrival "significant."

"The double arrival is significant," the Daily Sketch said. "Is this the climax to the greatest and most baffling love story since the war?"

Princess Margaret, surrounded by 2½ years of rumors of romance involving the handsome flier, leaves Aberdeen, Scotland, tonight on an overnight train reaching London Thursday morning.

The RAF war hero reserved space for himself and his automobile aboard an air ferry plane leaving Le Touquet, France.

Townsend, British air attache in Brussels, refused comment on the rumors of a romance once again Tuesday night, but he denied reports he and the princess might meet next Tuesday night at a party.

Townsend was headed to England to begin his vacation. Princess Margaret was ending hers, spent at Balmoral Castle with her sister the Queen and the rest of the royal family.

Queen Elizabeth II was originally expected back from Scotland this week and London timed to her return its growing expectations of a long-awaited palace statement on the princess' future.

Then it was announced the Queen was remaining at Balmoral until Monday and well-informed sources said the generally expected announcement on Margaret and Townsend would come from Buckingham Palace after her return.

Marines, Volunteers Continue Search For 3-Year-Old-Boy

CRANE, Ind. (UP) —Nearly 1,000 U.S. Marines and civilian volunteers searched in a driving rainstorm today for 3-year-old Ronnie Weitkamp, missing from his home since Tuesday noon.

A spokesman for the Crane Naval Ammunition Depot near the Weitkamp home said every available marine and civilian worker at the depot has been released to search for the boy.

A night search for the boy went on until 3 a.m. CST today when it was called off temporarily to give volunteers a rest.

Today's search will take place in several wooded areas near the depot not previously searched Tuesday.

The Public Service Co. of Indiana offered the services of a helicopter to aid in the search, but wind and rain prevented its use early today.

Eight bloodhounds were used in the search Tuesday night. The dogs found a trail late at night, but lost it after about five miles.

Mitchell Addresses American Legion

MIAMI UP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell told the American Legion today his department's job services for veterans should be continued "indefinitely."

Following Mitchell's address, the 50,000 delegates were presented a committee recommendation on the controversial United Nations Economic, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

Prior to disclosing its secretly prepared recommendation, the committee was reported to have decided to ask the convention to recommend that the United States withdraw from all participation in UNESCO.

The report on UNESCO was forged from 13 conflicting resolutions Tuesday in a closed joint session of the Legion's foreign relations and Americanism committees.

The Legion's big event, the convention parade, became a rain-soaked affair Tuesday night but some soggy marchers with 41 floats and 100 musical units braved showers and puddles.

Mitchell said the Labor Department's employment programs for veterans were originally intended for veterans of wartime service, he said, but "the young men who are entering the service today will need similar help when they return to civilian life."

Employment figures indicate that his department's veteran services "have contributed much to our present prosperity," Mitchell said.

made public as soon as it is handed to Bulganin. It is expected to be conciliatory and indicate American willingness to accept some features of Russia's proposed arms inspection plan if the Reds will accept the President's offer on blueprints and "massive reconnaissance."

Pre-Disarmament Plan

The President also was certain to emphasize that the blueprint-reconnaissance plan was not disarmament in itself — but an important step toward building confidence which could lead to disarmament. It has been tagged inside the administration as a "pre-disarmament plan."

Bulganin, in his letter to the President, avoided acceptance or outright rejection of Mr. Eisenhower's blueprint-inspection plan. He repeated Russia's familiar demand for reducing arms first and prohibiting the use of nuclear weapons.

But Dulles emphasized in his Miami speech that "we do not propose to disarm ourselves unless we can be sure that others are doing the same."

Administration officials said the President's "interim" reply would have gone to Bulganin about two weeks ago but for the President's coronary thrombosis on Sept. 24.

Texas Christian Leads College Teams In Rushing Honors

NEW YORK (UP) — Texas Christian, long a main attraction in the Southwest's "aerial circus" and home of such famed passing stars as Sammy Baugh and Davey O'Brien, leads the nation's college football teams today in yards gained rushing.

That's right—rushing, not passing.

Top honors in passing are held by West Virginia's Mountaineers, who live a long way from the pass-happy Southwest. West Virginia also has gained enough yards rushing to lead the nation in total offense, which may mean that Texas Christian has the wrong idea.

Using this "unorthodox" system of running for yards, TCU has ripped off four straight wins over Kansas, Texas Tech, Arkansas, and Alabama to equal its entire victory total for any season since 1951. Jimmy Swink heads the hard-hitting array of Horned Frog backs and is the nation's leading individual scorer and its second leading ground gainer.

Nation's Sixth Best

Texas Christian has called 247 running plays — and only 32 passes. The Frogs have gained 1,337 yards on the ground, an average of 334.3 per game. They've gained only 155 yards passing, an average of 39 per game. Altogether, they've averaged 373.0 yards gained per game, sixth best in the nation.

West Virginia has gained 209.3 yards per game via passing in its three triumphs so far this season. The Mountaineers have gained even more yardage on the ground in a well-balance attack and so lead the nation in total offense with an average of 432.7 yards gained per game.

Illinois, which ranks sixth in rushing and ninth in passing, combines the two for a second place in total offense with an average of 414.0 yards gained per game. Oklahoma, third in rushing, holds the same spot overall with 387.3 yards per game. Wisconsin, fourth in passing, holds that spot overall with 384.3 yards per game. Boston College, fourth in rushing, stands fifth in total offense with an average of 375.5.

Army Follows TCU

Behind Texas Christian's 334.3 in rushing, come Army with 329.3, Oklahoma with 324.3, Boston College with 318. and Duke with 286.3.

Behind West Virginia's 209.3 in passing, come Texas with 165.5, Drake with 160.5, Wisconsin with 159.3, and Georgia with 143.5.

Wisconsin has done the most accurate passing, hitting on 33 of 49 tosses for 67.3.

Holy Cross has scored the most touchdowns on passes, eight, and also is one of four major teams that still have not had a pass intercepted against them. The others are Washington, Rice, and Boston College.

West Virginia is the nation's top scoring team with 42 points per game, a total of 126 in three teams. Other high-scoring teams are: Army 39.3 per game, Duke 33.7, Harvard 33.5, Denver, 33, Texas Christian 31.5, Yale 29.0, Holy Cross 28.7 UCLA 28.5, and Southern California 27.8.

Graham, Ameche Tops In Passing And Ball Carrying

PHILADELPHIA UP)—Veteran Otto Graham of the Cleveland Browns and rookie Alan Ameche of the Baltimore Colts have moved into the top spots in passing and ball carrying in the National Football League.

Graham has completed 26 of 41 passes so far this season for a total of 393 yards and an average gain of 9.59 yards, official league statistics showed today.

Eddie Labaron of the Washington Redskins was second in passing with 51 attempts and 25 completions for a total of 472 yards or a 9.25 average gain.

Ameche, former Wisconsin All-American making his professional debut this season, gained 404 yards on 62 attempts for an average of 6.5 yards per carry. Howard Ferguson of the Green Bay Packers was second with 294 yards.

Philadelphia's Bob Thomason was third in passing with an 8.6 average followed by rookie George Shaw of the Colts with 8.02 and veteran Jim Finks of the Pittsburgh Steelers with 7.30.

Fred Morrison of Cleveland was third in the ball carrying department, followed by Alex Webster of the New York Giants. Webster's 193 yards is only one more than Fran Rogel of the Steelers.

Pete Pihos, the Eagles' star receiver, is off to a good start again this season after tying Billy Wilson of San Francisco for the pass receiving title last year. Pete has grabbed 14 passes so far this season, one more than Bill Howton of the Packers and Jug Girard of Detroit. Harlon Hill of the Bears Jim Doran of Detroit and Gary Knafelc of Green Bay each have 12.

Vic Janowicz of the Redskins held the top scoring spot in the league with 35 points on four touchdowns, five extra points and two field goals. Ameche was second with 24 followed by Fred Cone of Green Bay with 22.

Veteran Norm Van Brocklin of the Los Angeles Rams has a 44.3 yard punting average to pace the league in that department while Ron Drzewiecki of the Bears leads in punt returns with a 10.5 yard average. Jerry Norton of the Eagles is first in kickoff returns while Willard Sherman's five interceptions for the Rams heads the league.

What was the bet? One trip around the Courthouse square in a wheelbarrow. A number of onlookers (and hecklers) were on hand to witness the pay off.

Tom Gola Breaks Bone In Right Hand

HOULTON, Me. (UP)—Philadelphia Warriors' promising rookie Tom Gola said today a broken bone in his right hand "won't keep me out of basketball very long."

"I'll be ready to play again in a month, even if the doctors said it might take six weeks for the break to heal," the collegiate player of the year" last season said.

Gola broke a bone in his right hand Tuesday night in an exhibition game with the Boston Celtics.

"It's a bone between the knuckle of my middle finger and the wrist of my right hand. It won't bother my shooting once I get the cast off," he said.

Gola, who starred four varsity seasons at LaSalle and was a three-time All-American, said he injured the hand as Boston center Easy Ed MaCauley pivoted for a shot.

"My right hand hit the ball and I heard something snap," he said. 'I didn't think much about it at the time, but my hand began to swell and I had to leave the game."

Gola had started for the Warriors in the exhibition game which Philadelphia won in an overtime, 140-139. He has been considered a top-notch professional basketball prospect since he started for La-Salle as a freshman.

Fred Hutchinson Named Manager Of St. Louis Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Fred Hutchinson, former Detroit Tigers pitcher and manager who piloted the Seattle Rainers to a Pacific Coast League championship this year, today was named manager of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hutchinson said his contract was for two years "as a starter."

He immediately announced his new coaching staff, retaining only Bill Posedel from the old staff. The new coaches are Terry Moore, one of the old Gas House Gang of the 1930s and former manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, and Johnny Hopp, also a former Redbird.

The announcement scarcely came as a surprise.

Hutchinson had been conceded a wide edge over the other two candidates for the job—one unnamed and the other the Redbirds' 1955 manager, Harry Walker.

But the Cards' new general manager, Frank Lane, had contrived to create a cloak-and-dagger atmosphere over the choice which was his alone.

U. S. Davis Cup Team Will Have To Start From Scratch

NEW YORK (UP)—Billy Talbert said today the loss of Tony Trabert to the pro ranks means "the United States will have to start from scratch" in its efforts to recapture the Davis Cup from Australia.

The non-playing captain of the U.S. team pointed out, however, that next year's competition "could develop into a wide-open affair" if Aussie stars Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewall follow Trabert into the pro game. Promoter Jack Kramer said Tuesday he expected Hoad and Rosewall to turn pro and Talbert indicated he also thinks they will.

Trabert, who won 10 tournaments and lost only three this year, signed the most lucrative contract ever given a tennis star to turn pro in Los Angeles Tuesday. Kramer revealed that Trabert "would make at least $75,000 under the terms of the pact and should clear $100,000."

"I had lots of pros and cons to consider," Trabert said. "And I got lots of advice on what to do. I felt it was an opportunity I could not pass. Tennis has been good to me and I owe it a lot."

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP) — Robert T. Hulsey and his bride agreed on their honeymoon today that the lovers' quarrel that delayed their marriage was over "something silly."

SARASOTA, Fla. (UP) — Judge W. T. Harrison sentenced the two thieves who lugged off a 95-pound safe to four years each. The safe, with $3,000 in it, was still unopened when police found it.

The thieves who did the husky safe-lifting job were both women, Mrs. Jean Levy and Louise Hart.

Firemen Resign Because Their Feelings Are Hurt

CLINTONVILLE, Wis. (UP) — The entire Clintonville Fire Department has resigned because the firemen's feelings were hurt by complaints over their noisy ways.

The 18 - man volunteer force handed in the resignations Tuesday and Fire Chief Edward Du Frane said the mayor and two aldermen should apologize for what they've been saying.

Du Frane said the officials had criticized the "speed and noise" made by the firemen when they "tear out" of their station to answer alarms.

Mayor George Meggers said he and the aldermen certainly hadn't intended to be critical. Since the firemen's resignations won't become effective until Saturday, Meggers scheduled a meeting on the matter for Friday and said he was sure "everything will be ironed out."

Eagles Lose 19-6 To Garrett

Garrett's harder charging line spelled the difference in the score of the Eagle-Railroader football game at DeVol Field Tuesday night. The Railroaders won the conference game by the score of 19-6, both teams having a touchdown called back.

The Garrett forward wall bowled over the Eagle linemen most of the evening, permitting the visiting backs to march up the middle or skirt the C.C. ends.

Garrett scored in the second, third, and final quarters. The only conversion made by the Railroaders was on a pass play, Bartels to Hathaway on thier last touchdown. On the other two occasions, Gaw attempted to kick the extra point, one going wide and the other being blocked by Jay Smith, C. C. lineman.

Deutsch Scores

The only Eagle score was made on the longest run of the game, by Gary Deutsch, early in the third period. Garrett had scored on the first play of the second half. A personal foul ha dbeen called against the Eagles on the kick-off return, and the ball placed by the officials on the C.C. 17-yard line. On the first play, Yant, quarterback, was caught behind the line of scrimmage and attempted a lateral to Jones, who could not catch it. The ball rolled into the end zone, and a host of Garrett players pounced on it for the quick touchdown. Deutsch's 41-yard run came soon after the Eagles again took the Garrett kick-off.

Thompson booted the ball out of bounds on the kick-off, and the Eagles got it on their 40-yard line. Deutsch injured his leg on the first play of the series and was taken from the game momentarily. Two plays later he went back in the game and carried the ball 12 yards on a fourth down and three to go situation. Jones then picked up four, placing the ball on the Garrett 4-yard line. Deutsch then zipped the left side of the Eagle line, wormed his way through the Garrett secondary, and outran all would-be tacklers. Wilcoxson blocked Deutsch's attempt to kick the extra point.

Get Breaks

Although the Railroaders chalked up more first downs than did the Eagles, their first two touchdowns were the results of taking advantage of breaks. The first Garrett TD was set up when Deutsch had to run out of a bad spot after receiving a bad pass from center while back in punt formation on fourth down. Deutsch was not able to punt after chasing the ball down, and ran out to his own 35-yard line. From there Garrett marched to the goal line, Mossberger ending the drive, plunging over from the one-yard line.

The second break for Garrett was the fumbled lateral by Yant that rolled onto the end zone, and the Railroaders reeovered.

The third Garrett TD, scored in the fourth period, originated on the C.C. 31-yard line. Deutsch had been forced to punt on fourth down, the ball resting on the C. C. 6-yard line. Mossberger picked up 19 yards on the second play, and from there Andrews went through center untouched for 12 yards and a 18-6 score. Garrett passed for the conversion and a 19-6 score.

After that both teams scored, Wiant taking a perfect screen pass for Garrett 24 yards to the goal. That one was called back due to illegal motion. And the C.C. touchdown which was called back came on a pass from Deutsch to Jones that went 75 yards to the goal line. The Eagles were offside on the play.

Penalties

A number of penalties were called during the game, but the one which confused the fans was called early in the game. Garrett had lost approximately 40 yards on two consecutive plays and were forced to punt from its own 19-yard line. The ball went to the Garrett 34-yard line, where it appeared the Eagles would take over. However, the officials signaled that Columbia City had been called for a clipping penalty. The ball was given to Garrett on their own 49-yard line and the Railroaders were also given a first down. It finally was explained that the Eagles had roughed the kicker, and that automatically gives the other team a first down.

South Whitley Band

During halftime, the South Whitley band presented its contest routine—to the delight of Columbia City, Garrett, and many South Whitley fans here for the game. The local citizenry soon saw why Loretta Ulshafer was selected as the outstanding drum major at the Northern Indiana band contest Saturday. She is South Whitley's drum majorette. Leslie Pence directs the band at South Whitley.

"Notice On Vandalism"

The respect for others rights and property in the past few weeks has been greatly unlawfuly disobeyed. Many windows in buildings, and homes have been broken, and vandalism of signs over the city has caused traffic entanglement, and even caused an accident. A few have been apprehended for such, and we expect to bring in before the Juvenile court a number of more for vandalism to property. The school and a number of citizens have been cooperating to help curtail these acts. Parents of children who are brought in to, or turned over to the juvenile court will be cited in along with them. There is no basic reason, or any accomplished deed satisfied when it involves vandalism, or destruction of anothers property, especially when it involves or endangers other peoples lives or possible injury and costs. Therefore we ask, if any one has knowledge of any property damaged, or information of persons involved to notify the Police, Sheriff, or the juvenile court of this.

Bennie Oosterbaan Named U. P. Football Coach Of Week

By LLOYD NORTHARD
United Press Sports Writer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UP) – Theirs was a frustration of many years.

Even with an authentic reputation as a national football power, there was one team they couldn't beat.

But Saturday it happened. Those wondrous Wolverines of Michigan spiked the big guns of the Army Cadets, winning 26-2 for the first time and making easy-going Bennie Oosterbaan the United Press Coach of the Week.

Oosterbaan, who takes matters in stride in an ulcer-producing profession where most guys don't dare to relax from September through December, admits "that was one of the real big victories for us since I took over as coach back in 1948."

But it didn't surprise him.

Wants Sustained Drives

"I think we're capable of doing better," he reasoned. "We haven't had a long sustained march yet, not even in the Missouri game when we scored 42 points. I'd really like to see a few of those 70 and 80 yard drives."

Oosterbaan, who was named coach of the year in his first season, could be heading for the same honor again because the victory over the Cadets boosted Michigan to the top in the weekly ratings of the United Press Board of Coaches.

There was no special pointing for Army's legions, who had won every game played since the series started in 1945. But the Wolverines were ready.

"It is an odd feeling getting ready for a big game like that one with Oosterbaan as your coach," said one player. "You don't really feel as if you are being coached but all of a sudden you are out there doing the right thing because unconsciously you have learned from him."

Easy To Know

Oosterbaan, friendly, easy to know and not as aloof as his predecessor, Ritz Crisler, likes to work on the practice field with a baseball cap cocked to one side of his head.

He has been coaching at Michigan since 1928, the year he was graduated after being an All-America end. He was an assistant coach in football, baseball and basketball, and in 1938 became head basketball coach. He kept that job for eight years until switching back to football as the number one assistant to Crisler. When Crisler gave up as coach after bringing the all-victorious 1947 team in with a 49-0 victory in the Rose Bowl against Southern California, Oosterbaan took over.

He kept the victory string intact the following year and succeeded Crisler as coach of the year.

Only 1,000 Years Left To See Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. —(UP) — Niagara Falls will be nothing more than a long series of rapids in a "short time" say the geologists, so maybe you should hurry up and get a look at the mighty cascade of foaming water before it's gone.

Executive Secretary A. M. Anderson of the Niagara Frontier State Parks Commission agreed with the predictions of the geolo gists recently but was not too concerned about the disappearance of the falls

"If you're talking about a thousand years or so from now, that is probably true," Anderson commented. "Geologically, a thousand years is a short time."

The geologists base their predictions on the fact that the falls are receding to a strata of soft rock a few hundred yards up stream. When the brink of the falls reaches the soft rock it will cut through and form a steep rapids.

North Carolina Must Learn To Keep Up Steam

By RICHARD W. HATCH
United Press Sports Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (UP) — North Carolina, a split personality team which roars fiercely in the opening minutes and then runs out of steam, must keep its boilers stoked the full 60 minutes if it wins anything but bruises from mighty Maryland Saturday.

Coach George Barclay is looking for a formula to keep the Tar Heels tanked up for the distance. The road ahead includes in addition to Maryland such toughies as Notre Dame and Duke.

In each of the first three games, the Tar Heels began with a bang—blocking a kick or grabbing a fumble for a touchdown in the first moments of play to start out ahead.

Slowed Up Quickly

In two of the games — against Oklahoma and Georgia—that was all for North Carolina. In the third against weak North Carolina State, the Tar Heels had to parry a strong state comeback late in the game to hang on and win.

So far, Barclay's best weapon has been the team's first-half defense. It led mighty Oklahoma, Maryland's probable Orange Bowl opponent, 6-0 at halftime.

Behind the vine-touch Carolina line, however, is a leaky pass defense. Both Georgia and North Carolina State poured through passes.

This will be the defense that Maryland Coach Jim Tatum's newest quarterback "find," Frank (Tambo) Tamburello, will be called on to solve in one of the nation's top games of the day Saturday.

May Cut Loose

Tamburello may be given orders to cut loose if Maryland is rankled by being dropped from first place to No. 2 in the national rankings.

In other games in the South, the ACC schedule offers a match between North Carolina State, beaten in its only two starts, and Wake Forest, holding a 2-2 record after losses to West Virginia and Maryland.

The University of Virginia and VMI, both seeking their first victory, clash at Charlottesville, Va. Virginia Tech plays Richmond and West Virginia goes against William and Mary. Clemson and South Carolina take a week-end rest preparing for the traditional "Big Thursday" encounter next week.

Hall To Make Fort Wayne Debut With Harlem Globetrotters

FORT WAYNE, — Bob (Showboat) Hall, new comedy king of the fabulous Harlem Globetrotters, will make his Fort Wayne debut at the Memorial Coliseum Wednesday night, Oct. 26, when the colorful 'Trotters make their only appearance of the season here.

Hall, a product of Detroit's Brewster Center which has turned out many great Negro stars including other 'Trotters, has been in the 'Trotter farm system for several years. Heir apparent to the mantle of the top comedian for three seasons, Hall has had to wait until Goose Tatum finally gave up his 'Trotter connections.

Hall has developed a strong basketball game as well as a powerful comedy routine, enabling the 'Trotters to keep their floor strength at its peak when he's in action.

Hall is 6-2 and especially well built, capable of rugged play and equal to the rugged schedule played by the 'Trotters.

East Chicago Roosevelt Returns To Rule Of Indiana High School Football Powers

By KURT FREUDENTHAL
United Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—East Chicago Roosevelt's Rough Riders returned to the rule of Indiana high school football powers today in the poll's fourth shake-up of the season as Fort Wayne North and Marion crashed the "Big 10" for the first time.

Coach Pete Rucinski's Riders, displaced by Evansville Reitz last week, regained the top spots with 39 points from the United Press Coaches Board.

Reitz, like Roosevelt undefeated, trailed in second place by seven votes.

Only third-place South Bend Washington managed to hang on to last week's ranking, while all southern front-runners skidded in prestige despite the fact all were victorious last week.

Big Shuffle

Altogether, five teams improved their standings but seven slipped.

South Bend Adams climbed from sixth to fourth place; Kokomo, tied for 13th, re-entered the select circle in seventh; North Side moved up from 11th to eighth, and Marion vaulted all the way from 18th to ninth.

Both newcomers have lost once so far this season.

Evansville Central, which clashes with Rietz in Friday's game, was voted down from fourth to fifth. Sullivan was dropped from fifth to sixth, Boonville from eighth to 10th, Mishawaka from seventh to a tie for 13th, Indianapolis Howe from ninth to 12th.

Gary Wallace, 10th last time, failed to get a single vote following its derailment by Hammond Tech. Mishawaka was voted down after losing to Adams.

Four other outfits receiving votes last week failed to impress the panel this time. They were La-Porte, Hammond Clark, Hammond Noll, and Lafayette.

Jones - Andrews Bout Tonight

MIAMI (UP) — Ralph (Tiger) Jones, the machine-like middleweight of Yonkers, N.Y., is favored at 125 to beat speedy Al vored at 125 to beat speedy Al Andrews of Superior, Wis, tonight in their TV-radio fight at Dinner Key Auditorium

Andrews hopes to snap out of the worst slump of his career. He lost five of his eight bouts this year.

Tiger Ralph, seventh - ranked contender for the 160-pound title, is favored because of his record, his aggressiveness and his stamina. Both men are only fair punchers.

They are seasoned scrappers. Jones won 36 of his 53 fights and had three draws. Andrews won 35 of 51 and had two draws.

Hector McNeil, British Laborite Leader, Dies

NEW YORK (UP)—Hector McNeil of Great Britain, who won fame for his defense of the Atlantic Pact in the United Nations, died late Tuesday in a New York hospital of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 48.

McNeil, a leader in the Laborite government of Prime Minister Clement Attlee, was stricken aboard the British liner Queen Mary shortly before it arrived in New York on Oct. 4.

McNeil had come to New York on business for the Encyclopedia Britannica which he joined as an executive after the fall of the Labor government in 1952. He was also on the advisory council of the British Broadcasting Corp.

He had been a member of the British Parliament since 1941. He was appointed undersecretary of state for foreign affairs in 1945. A year later, in 1946, he was made minister of state, a position second only to Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin in Britain's foreign relations operations.

McNeil came to the United Nations for Britain in 1946. He clashed repeatedly with Soviet representatives Andrei Y. Vishinsky and Vyacheslav M. Molotov. It was against these opponents in debate that he defended the Atlantic Pact.

"The pact," he said, "is so patently defensive in intention and in character that only those who contemplate aggression have any reason to regret that pact."

long it takes or how much it costs.

William Caldwell, UAW international representative, said the union won't settle until it gets a union shop and 35 pickets who were fired last week are re-hired.

The UAW backs the strike "all the way" and is ready to spend "every dime" of 5-million dollars in strike money to win the fight, Caldwell said.

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Governor Craig said today the Perfect Circle Corp. strike area may be kept under martial law until "the first or the middle of November."

Craig said he does not believe National Guard troops can be called off until the National Labor Relations Board has ruled on whether the striking CIO United Auto Workers union is the collective baraining agent for Perfect Circle plants.

A ruling is due sometime after Oct. 24, deadline for filing of briefs in a petition by non-strikers to decertify the union at Richmond and Hagerstown plants.

"There is no indication the situation can be changed" from its present status, Craig said.

He added, however, he hopes to reduce the troop population from an estimated 1,000 men now on duty in three martial law areas.

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP)—Indiana National Guardsmen who have been on martial law duty here for a week will be relieved Thursday by fresh troops.

Guard units from Indianapolis, Anderson and Alexandria were alerted for duty. About 600 of them will replace the 600 troopers called last Wednesday night on an order from Governor Craig while he was fishing off Florida.

Parker Named U. P. Midwest Lineman Of Week

By HASKELL SHORT
United Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP) —Big Jim Parker, who is making "Tackled by Parker" a by-word among Ohio State football fans, today was named United Press Midwest Lineman of the Week.

Parker earned the honor in playing the best game of his career in Ohio State's 27-12 win over Illinois here last Saturday. He made 11 tackles unassisted.

The Ohio State coaching staff pulls out all the stops in praising the junior guard. Many persons in this area and throughout the Big Ten feel the 21-year-old 242-pounder may become one of the best linebackers in Ohio State history.

Outstanding, Says Coach

"Parker was again the outstand ing lineman on the field," Coach Woody Hayes said after the Illinois game. "His fine play deserves high praise and recognition."

Parker, a Negro from Macon, Ga., came to Ohio a few years ago to live with relatives in Toledo.

Coach Harry Strobel, who handles the Ohio State centers and guards on offense, said Parker is a "fine" football player "first of all because he has football sense, the knack for doing what he ought to do."

"You can coach some players for ever and ever and they never seem to learn how to adjust quickly to situations in a game," Strobel said.

Catches on Quickly

"But not 'Big Jim.' I don't know how he does it, but he seems to know just where a play is going and he gets in on it."

Parker is one of the good humor men on the squad who sparks up the morale with his enthusiasm and a practical joke now and then.

On the football field, however, there is no foollishness.

"Parker means to play football every time he puts on his uniform, and he means business every minute," Strobel said.

Although heavier than the average college guard, Parker's weight is no handicap. He moves his 6-foot, 3-inch frame with good speed.

Four Others Considered

Other nominations:

Mike Falls, Minnesota, who recovered two Northwestern fumbles and made numerous tackles to boost the Gophers defense.

Brad Bomba, Indiana, the Hoosiers main passing target in a losing cause against Iowa.

Pat Bisceglia, Notre Dame, defensive star against Miami who recovered one Hurricane fumble.

Cars Derailed

GOWANDA, N.Y. (UP) —More than half of the cars of a 120-car Erie Railroad freight train were derailed early today and many of them dropped into Cattaraugus creek when two trestles collapsed under the strain. No one was reported injured.

Trees Available To Hoosier Farmers For Spring Planting

Hoosier farmers interested in securing trees for planting next spring can now place their orders with state nurseries.

E. J. Lott, Purdue University extension forester, reports that about eight million trees are being made available to Hoosier farmers at the cost of production.

Each year these trees are sold for general reforestation, windbreaks, Christmas trees, and erosion control purposes. Intrested farmers can obtain application forms from the county agent, any state forester, the forestry extension office at Purdue, o rthe Division of Forestry, 311 West Washington Street, Indianapolis.

Lott urges farmers to order early in order to get the species desired.

Trees secured from the state nurseries must be planted in rural areas outside of city or town limits. All purchases must be in quanities of 50 or more of any one species and the buyer must pay the trans portation costs.

Varieties of trees available for planting next spring including tulip poplar, black locust, and shortleaf Virginia, scotch, jack, red, and white pine.

If help is needed to determine what, where, and how to plant trees, farmers should contact their county agent or nearest extension forester. Extension circular 306. "Trees for Reforestation in Indiana," may be obtained from the office of agricultural publication at Purdue.

Illegal

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. (UP) —Sheriff George Sharpe warned farmers today to stop paving sections of rural roads with their walnuts to get them hulled by the wheels of passing cars. He said it is against the law.

Strike Leaders Bow To State Seizure Order

Promise To Get St. Louis Public Transit Rolling

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Strike leaders bowed to a state seizure order and promised they would get St. Louis' buses and streetcars rolling again today.

The grudging agreement ended a day-and-a-half transportation paralysis for the 250,000 persons who depend on public transit in the 1½ million population area.

Arthur E. East, president of the AFL Transit Union, said the strikers were complying "under protest" to Gov. Phil M. Donnelly's seizure order. He also served notice that they will challenge the validity of the state seizure law.

But, acting as "law-abiding citizens," East and other union leaders called a mass meeting to issue the back-to-work order.

East warned, however, that the full force of bus drivers and streetcar conductors probably couldn't be back on the job until after noon. The best hope he could offer was that the city's public transportation system would be in operation in time for the evening rush hour.

That meant that thousands of St. Louisians had to get to work on their own today for the second straight morning.

Once again, they had to trust in their own cars, automobile pools, legwork, or the luck of the hitchhiker. The situation became even worse, Tuesday night, when the business area was clogged by a mammoth traffic jam and the average time to get home was doubled.

The United States, universally recognized as the industrial giant of the world, also is by far the leading nation in agricultural output.

TV Watching May Reduce Us All To Flabby Monsters

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—TV watching in the opinions of some doctors surveyed by a manufacturer, may reduce the nation to a bundle of flabby monsters — fully equipped with squint, squant and stoop.

That's the warning from the home institute of Trav-Ler Corp., an outfit which manufactures electronic equipment and which recently completed questioning some 500 doctors about televiewing.

According to the poll, the doctors look on TV with a dim eye, a condition that might possibly be caused by their own video squint. They see a future world in which each man will look a little like an untidy salami.

Basing their conclusions on information that the average viewer spends some five hours a day (and even more on week-ends) ogling his home screen, the majority of the sawbones decided that homo sapiens 2055 will be a unique, if that is the word, specimen.

Legs Will Be Shorter

He will be hunched-over, bleary-eyed and misshapen. His legs will be shorter, both of them atrophied from lack of use. One arm will be larger than the other from over-exercising the muscles in constant eating. And his waistline will bulge inelegantly.

Right now, said the doctors, the average American doesn't exactly rank as a physical charmer. The majority of citizens are guilty of sloppy posture. But the sloppiness is getting worse as the result of our slouching and lolling in front of TV sets.

This, they pointed out, puts an added strain on the heart, compresses the lungs and wrinkles the living room couch. And this, in turn, cuts down the circulation, makes breathing more difficult and results in upholstery problems.

Eye-strain, the doctors agreed, was another serious televiewing headache ,to mix a metaphor or something. They recommended adequate light in the screening room and frequent glances away from the TV set to keep the orbicular jellies from curdling. Also eye baths.

Go-By To Goodies

As for the eating problem, the doctors advised viewers to give the go-by to goodies like popcorn, candy and such. Instead, they suggested radishes, cucumbers, celery and raw cauliflower. This, it might be pointed out, will not only cut down on the viewer's weight problems, but make it impossible to hear the commercials.

TV, the doctors recognized, has become as much a part of the American way of life as hotdogs, baseball and same-day cleaners. But unless television addicts mend their ways, aid the docs, the man of 2055 would be a mess.

As for the man of 1955, they've just about given up on him—he's too much of a mess already.

Nixon Postpones Good Will Trip

DENVER (UP)—The temporary White House announced today that Vice President Richard M. Nixon has postponed his scheduled good will trip to the Near East next month.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the postponement was agreed upon by President Eisenhower, Nixon, and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Hagerty said no date has been set for the trip in the future.

'Tis A Joke, Mon

'Tis intended as a joke, Mon, but Discovery Day hereabouts is mostly to discover that the bank or office door is locked after nearly ramming your head through the plate glass. No Big Increase In Delinquency Of Our Juveniles

By ALFRED LEECH
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP) — Dr. Freda Kehm would be willing to bet there has been no big increase in juvenile delinquency.

"In our day they used to call it wild oats," she said.

Mrs. Kehm, director of the Assosiation for Family Living, is inclined to doubt some of the popular notions about delinquency.

"There seems to be more of it because we talk about it more," she said.

"There's better police work today, more cases come to official notice and more statistics are gathered.

"And more people are living in congested urban areas. In the old days a lot of juvenile misbehavior in the small towns and rural areas went almost unnoticed."

Desire to Conform

Mrs. Kehm, who has had wide experience in child psychology and social work, said a lot of people are fond of quoting the adage that "slums breed delinquency."

"This may be true," she said, "but it's not the only factor. There's plenty of delinquency in the slum-free suburbs."

Much of it, she said, stems from the teen-age desire to conform, to "belong."

"Youngsters in their teens want to dress alike and act alike," she said. "It's part of cutting the parental apron strings."

"Bad leadership is often the key to such situations," she said. youngster in a group is actually in emotional trouble, and leads the entire group astray."

Popular Leader

Mrs. Kehm recalled handling such a case while serving as welfare director of South Dakota. A juvenile sex ring was discovered in a small town and she was sent there to investigate it.

"It involved about 15 boys and girls, most of them 12 or 13 years old," she said. "The leader of the group was a popular boy who was disinterested in school and who had failed in eighth grade."

The teen-age yen to conform was illustrated in this case by a chubby unattractive girl who sought out Mrs. Kehm and "confessed" that she had participated in the group's activities.

"According to the other youngsters she hadn't," Mrs. Kehm said. "But she felt left out, and she was willing to malign her own name to gain status."

Nation's Steel Producers Face A New Worry

NEW YORK (UP)—The nation's steel producers are facing a new worry: how to finance much-needed expansion.

Iron Age, metalworking weekly, said today the problem is "a tough one." Expansion underway or planned was largely predicted on continuation on the government's fast tax write-off program, Iron Age pointed out, "and the government has closed the door to further rapid amortization for steel ingot expansion."

"With the domestic market about as tight as it has ever been, some steel people and industrial economists believe the economic picture would support higher prices," Iron Age declared.

Higher prices would insure a continuing supply, as contrasted with intermittent shortages, the publication added.

Greater ingot capacity could have forestalled some of the problems plaguing the industry in recent months, Iron Age said, adding that "in many cases rolling mill capacity is available but there is not enough raw steel."

The publication described the outlook for the rest of the year as "a continuing scramble" for enough tonnage to keep operating.

Allocations have been cut sharply in efforts to bring deliveries into line with promises, the industry authority noted. It predicted none of the major steel-consuming industries will slacken its demand as the new year comes into view.

The largest national park is Yellowstone, with 2,213,207 acres, and the smallest is Platt National Park in southern Oklahoma, 912 acres.

Congressman Would Bar Mississippi Legislators

NEW YORK (UP)—Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. (D-NY) said today he hopes to present a resolution at the 1957 session of Congress to bar Mississippi legislators from their congressional seats until all Negroes "have the right to vote" in that state.

In a speech at a labor rally, the Negro congressman said a recent tour of Africa and Europe led him to believe that no single incident has caused as much damage to American prestige abroad as the murder of Emmett Till, a Chicago Negro, in Mississippi. He said it was clear that "the recent wave of lynching in Mississippi" is a terror campaign "organized by the entrenched white leadership to keep Negroes from voting and from gaining first class citizenship."

The rally was sponsored by the CIO Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to protest the "wolf whistle" Till murder for which two white half-brothers were tried and found not guilty by an all-white jury.

"It is definitely spelled out in the Constitution that a man is elected to the Congress on the basis of the number of people in his district who are American citizens and have the right to vote," Powell said. "When the next session of Congress opens in 1957 I will present a resolution demanding that no one from the state of Mississippi shall be seated in Congress due to the fact that they have refused to allow the people of that state to vote."

Powell pointed out that present members of Congress already have been seated for the session next January. He said "nothing can be done about this situation" until a new Congress is elected.

County Cancer Society Benefits As Member Of Community Chest Of Whitley County, Inc.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles describing one of the agencies which is a member of the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc.)

The control, and even curing, of cancer is a plodding path over which many people now tred. But progress is being made. Today the American Cancer Society estimates that 75,000 persons annually are saved from cancerous death. Compared to 20 years ago, that is amazing progress.

The progress has been made through the education and research program of the society, according to William Bloom, chairman of the Whitley County Cancer Society.

As a member of the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc., the cancer society benefits from the Chest and carries out its local and national program.

Medical research in recent years has discovered that cancer, found in its early stages, can be controlled or cured. The job of education, teaching the public the seven danger signs of cancer, and the job of continuing research to discover more and better ways of treating cancer is the job of the cancer society.

But immediate aid also must be available, according to officers of the organization. This, for instance, can come in the form of furnishing bandages for persons suffering from cancer. Many women's church groups and other organizations in Whitley county have worked on keeping a supply of bandages available in Whitley county.

An even greater saving of life could be realized with better educational devices and research. "With what is now known and with precision methods now available, we should save twice as many or another 75,000, out of the 230,000 Americans who died of cancer last year," the American Cancer Society reports.

The Cancer Society in Whitley county carries out its work totally through benefits from the Chest, according to Mr. Bloom.

Will Seek Out Fire Hazards In Business Area

Friday and Saturday the Columbia City firemen, in line with the national observance of Fire Prevention Week, will tour the business district to seek out possible fire hazards and call them to the attention of business house owners and landlords for correction.

On Friday Fire Chief Russel Wolfe is scheduled to address the students in the West Ward school on the topic of fire prevention in the home and on the farm. The local schools as well as the schools elsewhere in the county have been holding fire drills this week. They will participate in the WOWO competitive fire drill staged annually by the Fort Wayne radio station. In this each school is graded on the length of time it takes for pupils to leave the building in an orderly fashion. By percentage computation each principal learns how his school performs in relation to other schools in the area.

Since the film was not available locally this week, Deputy State Fire-marshal Daniel Mishler brought for showing last week an educational movie on fire prevention. This was given four showings in Columbia City, Fire Chief Wolfe accompanying Mr. Mishler. Pupils in West Ward, the McLallen, Mary Raber school, and the high school viewed the film.

Area Fire Trucks To Make Runs Sunday Afternoon

Area fire trucks and firemen will converge from every direction this Sunday afternoon to extinguish a fire at Washington Center.

However, there is no need to fear a firebug as the firemen will start the fire themselves in observance of Fire Prevention Week.

This Sunday at 1 o'clock fire trucks from Laud, Columbia Township, Arcola, South Whitley, Larwill, Roanoke and Bippus will make a simulated fire run to Washington Center.

The runs will be timed to determine the efficiency of the various departments.

An oil fire will be extinguished at Washington Center with a demonstration of new types of firefighting chemicals.

So if you hear the sirens screaming Sunday afternoon remember the cause. (And with fire trucks bearing down at full speed from all directions toward Washington Center it might be well to clear the roads on Sunday afternoon.)

Noble County Red Cross Chapter Contributes $278

The Noble County Chapter of the American Red Cross contributed a total of $278.00 to the disaster relief fund for peoples in Northeastern United States following the floods and tornadoes which recently took place there.

Appeal Made For Blood Donors Here October 27

Bloodmobile To Be At Legion Home — Last 1955 Visit

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will make its final scheduled visit for 1955 to Whitley county Thursday, October 27, it was announced today by the blood program co-chairman of the Whitley County Red Cross chapter.

The bloodmobile will make its stop at the American Legion home in Columbia City.

Cochairmen Carl Arntson and Stanley Mullendore, in announcing the scheduled visit, also appealed to residents of the county to volunteer blood for the bloodmobile. Notices of the bloodmobile visit have been sent to Red Cross Chairmen in each township.

The number of pints of blood obtained in Whitley County should equal the number used by residents in the various hospitals now serving the county, according to the co-chairmen.

The blood is placed in the blood bank in Fort Wayne to be used by Whitley county residents when needed. No charge is made for the blood itself, but a nominal fee is charged for administration in the hospitals. The cost of collection and transportation of the blood is assumed by the Whitley County Red Cross chapter, according to Woodfin B. Jones, executive secretary.

Problem Of Red Offers Of Arms To Middle East

Under Consideration By Security Council

WASHINGTON (UP) — The National Security Council took aim today on the critical problem of Communist offers of arms to the tinderbox Middle East.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who discussed the Soviet arms offers to Middle Eastern nations with President Eisenhower in Denver Tuesday, prepared a report for the NSC on the conversation.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon will preside at the council meeting in President Eisenhower's absence.

Action of the top-level government group emphasized the seriousness attached by the United States to Soviet bloc diplomatic moves in the Middle East. Some U.S. officials fear Russia and her satellites may be shipping arms into the critical area in an effort to renew the Arab-Israeli war and then capitalize on unrest in the area.

Communist Czechoslovakia already has agreed to furnish weapons to Egypt and there have been reports of Soviet offers to other Arab nations. The State Department disclosed Wednesday there have been hints Russia also may be preparing to offer arms to Israel.

Princess Margaret Follows Peter Townsend Into A London Breathless With Excitement

By HAROD M. WILLARD
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP) — Aradiantly-happy Princess Margaret followed Peter Townsend today into a London breathless with exctiement over whether they will or will not marry.

The 25-year old princess, just at the age of consent for British royalty, arrived by train from her Scottish vacation 14 hours after the handsome RAF group captain flew home from Belgium.

The princess' trip was the routine, previously-scheduled end of the royal family's annual vacation at Balmoral. Townsend said he also was back home on routine home leave.

But the timing heightened the fever of British curiosity over the princess' future.

Traditional politeness to royalty barred any newsmen asking Margaret the question that filled British newspaper headlines. It simply isn't done.

Refused Answer Question

Townsend himself refused to answer it when he arrived in London late Wednesday after a channel ferry flight from his post as air attache in Brussels.

A private car brought Margaret into foggy, chilly London at end of the regular overnight train from Aberdeen.

The train hit London at the height of rush hour commuter traffic into Euston Railway Station area and Scotland Yard sent reinforcements to hold crowds away from the princess.

Wooden Barricades

Burly bobbies and wooden barricades flanked the trackside, a routine precaution for the arrivals of such persons as Queen Elizabeth II, but not for Margaret's ordinary arrivals and departures.

London newspapers continued to shy away from predicting one way or the other, but the often reserved British press still was treating the possibility of romance in an unprecedented way.

When the Duke of Windsor, then King Edward VIII, was wooing Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, the British readers were the last to hear of it. The prime minister's office had asked the editors to keep silent while the king's future was being debated in secret and not until a bishop preached against the marriage of a royal person and a divorcee was the news broken

Supreme Court Hears Arguments In Toth Case

Constitutionality Of 1950 Uniform Code At Stake

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court hears arguments today in the case of Robert W. Toth, young Pittsburgh veteran flown to Korea to face an Air Force court martial on a murder charge.

At stake in the case is the constitutionality of the 1950 Uniform Code of Military Justice which gives the military power to arrest and try veterans accused of serious crimes while in service overseas.

Toth, 25, was arrested by military police while at his job in a Pittsburgh steel mill on May 13, 1953, five months after his honorable discharge. The former Air Force sergeant was flown immediately to Korea to stand trial. But on orders of a federal judge he was returned to this country where he has been free on bond pending the high court's decision.

The Supreme Court heard arguments on the case last term but ordered further hearings this fall.

Toth's attorney, William A. Kehoe Jr., contends that it is unconstitutional for the military to retain indefinite control over veterans. He argues that every American outside of the armed forces has a right to trial by jury in this country.

Solicitor General Simon E. Sobeloff scheduled to present the government's side contends that the contested measure provides the only way persons like Toth can be prosecuted under present laws.

The Army plans to prosecute under the same statute used to try three turncoat G.I.'s who returned to this country last summer after first choosing to stay with the Chinese Communists. The three are now civilians, having received dishonorable discharges under terms of the Korean armistice agreement.

Toth and two other soldiers were accused of killing a Korean civilian near an Air Force dump in Korea. The other two soldiers since have been freed.

Fresh Guardsmen Arrive To Guard Perfect Circle

Government Says Troopers To Stay Until Next Month

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP)—Six hundred fresh National Guardsmen arrived today to guard the violence-ridden Perfect Circle Corp. foundry and Gov. George N. Craig said the troopers will stay in New Castle until next month.

The new troopers, called up from Indianapolis, Anderson, and Alexandria, replaced guardsmen who have been on the scene since nine persons were wounded, eight of them shot, in a gun battle at the plant last week.

A total of 1,000 guardsmen, backed up by Sherman tanks and machine gun nests, are stationed in a two-county area to impose full martial law on 50,000 persons.

In Indianapolis, Craig said the troopers will keep the peace in the area until "the first or middle of November." He added "there is no indication the situation can be changed."

The Perfect Circle foundrt, which manufactures automotive piston ring castings, resumed production Wednesday. A total of 114 men and women reported for work walking past the guardsmens' bristling guns and the hostile eyes of CIO United Auto Workers pickets.

New troubles faced the company, however, as company officials were informed that it can no longer buy castings from one of several firms which have been supplying Perfect Circle. The supplier firm blamed a "union ultimatum," the officials said.

Prfect Circle operates four strikebound plants in the martial law area—one at New Castle, one at Hagerstown, and two at Richmond.

Non-srikers have filed a petition to de-certify the UAW as the collective bargaining agent at the Richmond and Hagerstown plants and the NLRBB is expected to rule on the matter sometime after Oct. 24.

Craig said he did not think the guards could be called out of the area until after the NLRB ruling.

Perfect Circle employes went on strike last July demanding a wage increase and union shop. The UAW local at New Castle has vowed to continue the walkout until it is won.

Rotary District Governor Makes Annual Visit

Is Former Principal Of High School Here

Rotary Clubs in 92 countries and geographical regions throughout the world are united in an endeavor to promote international understanding, good will and peace. That was the message of Fren Musselman of Camden, Governor of District 224 of Rotary International, in addressing the Rotary Club of Columbia City Wednesday evening, following a conference with local Rotary officers and committee chairmen.

In addition to the activities of Rotary's 8,700 Clubs within their own communities to promote this objective, Mr. Musselman explained, Rotary International has spent more than $1,750,000 in recent years through its program of student fellowships which enable outstanding college graduates to study for one year in countries other than their own, as ambassadors of good will. Since 1947, when this program was established, 709 Rotary Fellowships have been awarded to students in 57 countries.

"With fellowship and service to others as its keynote, Rotary provides a common ground for 414,000 business and professional executives throughout the world, regardless of differing nationalities or political or religious beliefs," the Rotary District Governor emphasized.

"In addition to the promotion of international understanding, "Mr. Musselman continued, "special emphsis is being placed by Rotary Clubs this year on activities of their own communities which will furnish leadership in youth programs, raise standards in businesses and professions, promote traffic safety, develop good citizenship and build better rural-urban relationships."

The district governor of Rotary pointed out at the outset of his visit here that he was not new to Columbia City. Back in 1914 he was principal of the high school here, he said, and reminisced briefly.

To Beat U. S. - Backed Philippine Delegation

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) — Russia today launched an all-out campaign to win a seat for Communist Poland in the powerful U.N. Security Council.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister V. V. Kuznetsov scheduled a rare press conference at which he was expected to make a final effort to gain enough votes for Poland to beat the U.S.-backed Philippines delegation for the council seat.

Observers considered the Soviet satellite country a definite underdog in the voting Friday to fill the seat left vacant by Turkey in the rotation system of non-permanent seats on the Security Council. Cuba and Australia are unopposed for the other two seats.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. said Poland had no claim to a council seat since it "is clearly not a nation which has contributed to International peace and security."

Adams Flys To Capital With Ike's Views On Matters Facing Cabinet

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP)—President Eisenhower dispatched his top aide, Sherman Adams, to Washington early today with the Chief Executive's own views on matters which will face the cabinet at its regular meeing Friday.

Mr. Eisenhower went over these matters with Adams at a brief bedside session late Wednesday after one of the busiest days he has spent since he entered Fitzimon Army Hopital Sept. 24 following a heart attack.

He also made public his interim reply to Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin's note on disarmament, enjoyed a visit from his youngest brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, and scheduled a conference here Saturday with Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey.

Relatively Busy Day

The relatively busy day was a clear indication of the stepped-up pace of the President's return to the active duties of the presidency. But his aides and doctors are still keeping a tight check on the pace and will not permit it to exceed an hour a day for some time to come.

Medical bulletins continued to be favorable on the President's progress, but those close to him were firm in their determination that no attempt be made to hurry him into a regular schedule again.

Adams was flying back to Washington with Dr. Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State University and one of the Chief Executive's principal advisers. He will attend the cabinet meeting and fly back to Denver Saturday with Humphrey.

In his reply to Bulganin, Mr. Eisenhower said the United States will be willing to accept a Russian proposal for arms inspection teams in both countries if it will help "dispel much of the present fear and suspicion."

But he coupled his acceptance with a renewed insistence on some form of his own proposals for swapping of military "blueprints" and reciprocal aerial reconnaissance.

Serious Questions Raised

In his Sept. 19 letter to Mr. Eisenhower, made public here the day before the Presidtnt was stricken, the Russian premier did not flatly turn down the Eisenhower proposals. However, he raised serious questions about their value as contributions to real disarmament.

Mr. Eisenhower will observe his 65th birthday Friday. Although his doctors will encourage such simple observances as his family suggest, they will be on guard against any form of excitement that might upset the president's steady recuperation.

She holds a unique record for service in the community where she was born and has spent her entire life.

In those 50 years she has written many of the vital statistics of Whitley county for five generations. If one starts with a child born 40 or 50 years ago, there is that generation plus perhaps silver anniversaries of parents and golden anniversaries of grandparents, birthdays, parties, and celebrations.

The child born 50 years ago attends school, participates in the community activities, graduates, gets married, has children who repeat the process.

Miss Meredith attends many affairs to present a word picture in the newspaper.

She started her newspaper career on the Commercial-Mail October 15, 1905 when she began as bookeeper, circulation manager and reporter. W. W. Williamson was the editor of the paper.

For the year 1954 the newspaper reported 165 weddings, 35 golden wedding anniversaries, 28 other anniversaries, 81 engagements, 530 births and 429 deaths. Miss Meredith has written many of these. She also prepares for publication a club calendar of coming meetings.

Miss Meredith serves as a source of information in the office for the many family relations in the community. She likes people and likes to report the happy events in their lives.

Upon arrival, the guests were greeted in the Hawaiian tongue and presented with gaily colored leis by Mrs. Paul Grieser, who was attired in Hawaiian costume.

A map of the Islands and a display of the primitive percussion and string instruments of Hawaii formed a background for Mrs. Grieser's program. A brief history of the people preceded the presentation of the hula, including the part it has played in the environment of the people.

The group participated in doing the hula, led by Mrs. Grieser. A replica of a small Hawaiian Island complete with straw hut, palm trees and Hawaiian figures made by Mrs. Cyrus Cable, centered the dining table for the serving. Candlelight illuminated the table buffet centered with tropical fruits. Soft candlelight and Hawaiian music formed the atmosphere forthe serving of a colorful dessert.

The meeting was closed by the group harmonizing "Aloha Oe" accompanied by the ukelele played by Mrs. Grieser.

Gertrude Meredith Rounds Out 50 Years As Newspaperwoman

Gertrude L. Meredith

On Saturday, Oct. 15 Miss Gertrude Meredith will round out 50 years as an active newspaperwoman and thereby establish some new records in Indiana journalism.

Reporter and society editor for The Post and the Commercial-Mail, Miss Meredith is believed to hold the record among Indiana women journalists for having served 50 years on the same daily newspaper.

Even in advance of the day she celebrated her 50th year of newspaper service, she has begun to receive congratulations. Today the Indiana United Press manager at Indianapolis telephoned her special congratulatory greetings.

She has done her part in recording the griefs and joys of at least five generations of Whitley county residents, aided in community campaigns and civic affairs, aided in assembling and writing all the "big stories" since 1905.

She began her newspaper career on the Commercial-Mail October 15, 1905 when she started as a bookkeeper, circulation manager and reporter.

"It Just Happened"

Before she knew it she was writing. "It just happened," she has said, but this was bound to happen as anyone working on a small-town daily soon becomes adaptable at writing, in advertising, and the many tasks that make up the day. Miss Meredith has written all kinds of news stories. They rival classification but have included many of the birth and death notices, accounts of weddings and anniversaries, parties and social events.

Her range has been county-wide.

At Least 5000 Weddings

One of Miss Meredith's specialties is weddings. During 1954 the local newspapers published accounts of 165 weddings. By conservative count, she has covered 5,000 weddings. Of late many of these are the nuptials of the grandchildren of those who were married during the first years she wrote about wedding functions.

When she began newswriting all type was set by hand. Wedding accounts therefore were necessarily brief as composition involved so much hand labor.

She has found newspaper work fascinating because of her interest in people. This work has brought her into intimate contact with all the social and civic groups in the county.

Almost Quit Once

But she almost quit newspaper work once.

This was in 1918. the year of the influenza epidemic.

The only telephone which the Commercial-Mail had was located in a booth near the press on which the papers were printed. Day after day she had to stand in the booth taking death notices as the flu's toll of lives increased.

During the peak of the epidemic she was working on her 8th death notice for the day, a particularly sad story as the flu had taken a young mother much needed by a large family of children.

"This work is just getting too morbid for me" Miss Meredith thought and determined to find a more cheerful occupation.

She didn't, however, was talked out of it by W. W. Williamson, the publisher, and some of her coworkers.

Biggest Celebration

Not all the news, fortunately, is morbid. The most thrilling thing that happened here, she recalls, was an event that happened in the same year.

'This was the armistice, of course, when the townspeople let loose with a celebration and parades never since equalled to express their joy and relief that World War I was ended. But this celebration meant hard work for Miss Meredith and the reporters. They had to gather all the local events of the day into a story.

But this is natural for newspaper workers, Miss Meredith comments, for when others play the newspaper reporter must work as the community wants to read about the good times being had.

One of the most tragic events Miss Meredith recalls, was the destruction of an entire family when their car was struck at the "poor farm crossing" by a train. This was the King family, residents of Fort Wayne, all seven of whom were killed in the afternoon when the newspaper office was in the middle of its going-to-press rush.

From Newspaper Family

Miss Meredith was born in Richland township but her parents moved to Columbia City when she was only three years old. She is the only daughter of Josiah Hyatt Meredith and Ida Cullison Meredith.

She comes from a newspaper family. Her brother, the late Ray Meredith, helped to organize the Times-Gazette at Union City, of which he was manager and in charge of advertising. A nephew Tom Foust of Tucson, Ariz., is now prep sports editor on the Arizona Daily Star besides writing his "Rod and Gun" column. He co-ordinates and supervises an eight-man staff. His brother, Ray Cleon Foust, sophomore in Catalina high school, reports high school sports to his older brother. In writing his aunt to congratulate her, Tom writes he has charge of all the high school sports in the state for the Daily Star and has a staff of eight high school correspondents in the city working under him. He added "I really love it."

Irvin Hyatt, a relative who was reared in the home of Miss Meredith's grandparents, Salathial and Mary Hyatt Meredith, was a printer in Columbia City for many years.

First Teacher Miss Raber

As with many other local residents, Miss Meredith's first teacher was Miss Mary Raber. When she finished her grammer and high school work she went to work at the Myers Creamery office. Not much later she was sought out by W. W. Williamson, publisher of the Commercial-Mail who was completing his second term as post master. He employed her to work in the newspaper office located east of the Citizens State bank in the Foust block. From 1905 to May 12, 1929 this was the scene of her daily labors. In 1929 the Commercial-Mail office was abandoned when it was sold to the Post & Mail Publishing Co., which pre viously had published only The Post. Miss Meredith was incorporated into the combined staff. Randall Gregg, one of her co-workers on the Commercial-Mail, rounded out 30 years service on the local newspapers in 1946. He is now employed in Fort Wayne.

Sees Many Changes

During the half-century as a working newspaperwoman Miss Meredith has seen many changes come about in the publishing field. From hand-set type to speedy typsetting machines which automatically turn out the lines of type from punched tape as it rolls off the teletype; from hand-fed presses which were fed a sheet of paper at a time to presses which do this work from rolls of paper weighing tons by the turn of an electric switch; from kerosene and acetylene lamp days to the comforts of a modern office, she has seen the transition and enjoyed it.

To relax after days of telephoning and writing, along with personally covering many functions for the newspaper, Miss Meredith had developed several hobbies. These include knitting, crocheting, embroidery, reading, and keeping a flower garden. After moving to an apartment her gardening has been limited to potted plants. After her mother's death she kept house for her father in addition to working.

She has participated actively in local organizations, also. She is a member of First Baptist church, a charter member of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle, a charter member of the Business and Professional Women's club, served as worthy matron of the Order of Eastern Star in Columbia City in 1933, and for a number of years has been publicity chairman of the Whitley County Federation of Women's clubs.

Through the years she has kept in close contact with her relatives. These include Mrs. Ollie Brierly of Randolph county, widow of Ray Meredith who died in 1941; a nephew, Thomas J. Meredith of Union City and his son, David John, 9; a nephew, John Ray Meredith of Union City and his two daughters, Nikkie Sue and Jan, aged 7 and 6; a niece, Mrs. S. A. Foust who has two sons, Tom J., and Ray Cleon. The Fousts live at Tucson, Ariz.

More Fortunate Than Most

Miss Meredith believes that she is more fortunate than a lot of people in that her work is so engrossing. As she has expressed it, "to some extent you live other people's lives." Unfortunately, some bad must come out, but a lot of good is seen also. Some news is disastrous, like the failure of a bank, the accidents, the losses many suffer through fires, storms, and the wars. But though unpleasant, it has to be chronicled. And Miss Meredith has found that there is a larger measure of pleasant things in the news which after all compensates for this. The enthusiasm of people working together for the community good, the family and group celebrations, all make 50 years in journalism and the prospect of more fruitful years to come, rather satisfying.

Suchy, in a press conference Wednesday, accused the United States of violating, by backing the Philippines, a 1946 "gentlemen's agreement" that one of the non-permanent seats on the council should go to an Eastern European country.

Lodge replied that the Polish accusation was "regrettable and untrue."

Lodge declared that the "so-called Londan agreement was a commitment for the first election only."

Yugoslavia In 1949

In 1949, Yugoslavia, at odds with the Soviet Union, won the seat over Poland with American backing. It qualified as an Eastern European country but did not meet the implied qualification that it should be a member of the Soviet bloc. Greece won in 1951 and Turkey was elected in 1953, both with U.S. support.

While the electioneering continued, a dispute raged around U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold in the Social, Humanitarian and Cultural Committee.

Arab and Asian delegates criticized Hammarskjold for his proposal, made last Thursday, that the United Nations should set up a special commission to discuss self-determination, regarded as the crux of the colonialism.

"It can't be, replied the operator, it's 9 a.m. in Bethlehem."

"But it's four hours earlier in Spokane," said Wakeley.

"Spokane," said the operator. "I was calling Youngstown, Ohio."

Eagles Will Host Winless Kendallville

The Columbia City football team will be seeking its first victory of the season Friday evening when the winless Kendallville Comets invade DeVol Field. Both teams are seeking their first win this year, and it should prove an even match.

The Eagles already have had one stiff encounter this week, entertaining the Garrett Railroaders, who notched their first win against the Eagles in many years. Statistically, that game was closer than the 19-6 score indicated. Garrett picked up 10 first downs to nine for the Eagles, but the Railroaders capitalized on Eagle errors twice for scores.

Wednesday after school, the Eagles were put through a tough scrimmage session. Two players received injuries, Dick Sickafoose a broken nose, and Randall Carpenter a possible fractured collar bone.

Barons Defeat Springfield Indians

By UNITED PRESS

Thanks to Gordon Vejprava and Jackie Gordon, the Cleveland Barons had their second win of the new American Hockey League season today and a one-point lead over Providence in the standings.

Vejprava, who played briefly with the Reds last year, scored two goals and came up with an assist while Gordon scored one goal and had two assists in Cleveland's 8-2 romp over the Springfield Indians.

The Reds meanwhile, fought to a 3-3 tie with the Buffalo Bisons with the game being called after one overtime period. Buck Davies scored the tying goal less than a minute before the second period ended and the clubs battled without a score for two periods before the game was called.

Sawchuck Wins Vezina Trophy

By UNITED PRESS

Terry Sawchuk has the Vezina Trophy in his home today, and the Boston Bruins' fans have their first proof that the star goalie earned it.

Sawchuk, traded from the Detroit Red Wings to the Bruins during the off-season, was formally presented with the trophy as the National Hockey League's top goalie for 1954-55 Wednesday night at Boston Garden. He said his "thanks" and then went out and blanked the Toronto Maple Leafs, 2-0.

Lorne Ferguson of Boston notched the only goal Sawchuk needed at 5:39 of the first period when he rapped a rebound past Leafs' goalie Harry Lumley. And Ferguson added the other Bruin goal at 16:30 of the second period on a solo with a 25-foot, shoulder-high shot.

That was the only game in the NHL Wednesday night. There are no games scheduled tonight.

High bowlers: Daisy Knipstein 150.

Brooklyn College Has Manpower Shortage

NORTHFIELD, Vt. (UP)—Norwich University's football team will enjoy a day off Saturday because its scheduled opponent — Brooklyn College — has informed the school it won't be able to go through with the game. Brooklyn is suffering from a manpower shortage because of injuries sustained in last Saturday's loss to the National Aggies.

Ralph Tiger Jones Licks Al Andrews

MIAMI, Fla. (UP) — Middleweight contender Ralph (Tiger) Jones, who licked Al Andrews in their TV-radio fight here Wednesday for a title shot.

"Get me Ray Robinson and then champion Bobo Olson," said the seventh - ranked contender from Yonkers, N.Y. "I can beat Robinson again and I'll knock out Olson in six or seven rounds."

He was positive he must fight ex-champ Robinson again to get the crown, "whether Sugar Ray wins or loses in his title fight with Olson at Chicago on Nov. 4."

Despite Jones' personal yen for a bout with Robinson, it was learned that his handlers were negotiating for a possible clash with Rocky Castellani of Cleveland Ohio, the third - ranked middleweight contender, in New York or Miami in December.

Jones, who won a unanimous 10-round decision over Andrews of Superior, Wis., admitted that Olson had outpointed him earlier this year in an over-the-weight match. "But let him pare down from the 166 he weighed for me to 160, and I'll knock him out," he said.

The Tiger didn't knock out speedy Andrews Wednesday night, but he had him clutching groggily and ready for the canvas in the last round, after staggering three times in earlier sessions.

High Bowlers Win Chicken Dinners

Track Events

LONDON (UP)—A track team from Prague defeated London's track team, 110 points to 106 Wednesday, but Emil Zatopek, the Czechs' triple Olympic champion, lost the 10,000 meter race to Gordon Pirie. Ken Norris, also of Britain, finished second while Zatopek was third.

Royal Coinage Unable To Run

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UP)—Royal Coinage, who won five of eight starts and $70,725 as a two-year-old, will enter stud at the Stallion Station in 1956. The well-built son of Eight Thirty, suffered a foot injury in the Belmont Futurity while finishing third behind Nashua and Summer Tan and since has been unable to run.

Authorities Map New Search For 3-Year-Old Boy

CRANE, Ind. (UP)—Military and civil authorities mapped a new search for three-year-old Ronnie Weitkamp today on the supposition he has met foul play.

Cmdr. Richard Turner of the Crane Naval Ammunition Depot called a morning conference of state, local and military police to plan a new strategy, convinced that if the boy were in this hilly area, 1,000 persons in a 30-hour search would have found him.

"I just cannot believe the boy is in this area," Turner said. "We have no choice but to assume there is foul play involved and attack this from another point of view."

The case of the boy missing 48 hours by noon today is "extremely difficult," he said, "because we have so little to work on. There have been no good clues or leads."

Turner ordered about 20 U.S. Marines stationed at the depot to again check, for the third or fourth time, a few isolated sections of the wooded reservation.

The FBI had not entered the case at mid-morning and will not, a special agent said, until there is evidence of a federal law violation.

Ronnie's exhausted parents, meanwhile, prayed he is still alive.

Never The Twain

DETROIT (UP) — Mrs. Louis Hartzell returned home Wednesday to find a crew of movers and two court bailiffs evicting her family.

The bailiffs looked at the eviction order and the house number and said: "This is West Warren, isn't it."

"East," Mrs. Hartzell replied.

American Legion In Final Session Of Convention

Asked To Denounce U. S. Economic Aid To India

By CHARLES TAYLOR
United Press Staff Correspondent

MIAMI (UP)—The American Legion convention was asked today to denounce U.S. economic aid to India and recommend letting the Republic of Korea deal with any future Communist aggression "in its own way."

These proposals were laid before the 3,000 official delegates to the 36th annual convention at a final session in a report by the legion's powerful foreign relations committee.

The committee also urged that the government leave "no avenue unexplored" to bring back "every American citizen" now in the hands of Communist China.

The legion was scheduled to elect a new national commander before ending its convention today.

J. Addington Wagner of Battle Creek, Mich., who had conducted a vigorous campaign to become legion chief for the past two years, was considered almost a shoo-in by most delegates.

Two Other Candidates

Other contenders were W. C. Daniel of Danville, Va., who said he is mainly interested in becoming president in 1956, Thomas Paradine of New York and Truman C. Wold of Fargo, N.D.

"We deplore the continued economic aid given by the United States to India," the foreign relations committee report said.

"That country, although professing neutrality, is actually giving material aid to Communist Russia. So long as India continues to aid and abet Red Russia, our government should refuse to give any material aid of any kind to India."

The report blasted Communist China for "barbaric and ruthless detention of American servicemen" and asked the government to "demand that the United Nations investigate all war crimes committed in Korea by the Chinese Communists and to apply appropriate penalties under the provisions of the United Nations charter."

Oppose Lifting Barriers

The legion re-stated its stand against lifting tradebarriers with Russia "until Soviet Russia can convince the world that she holds no people, wherever they may come from as captives."

The convention also adopted these resolutions:

1. That attorneys or teachers who invoke the Fifth Amendment in congressional hearings be disbarred or discharged.
2. That Harry Bridges, West Coast union leader, should be stripped of citizenship and deported.
3. That Henry Ford II be "careful" in screening organizations to receive donations from the Ford Foundation.
4. That the legion endorses the McCarran Immigration Act.
5. That the investigation of Communism in the entertainment profession be pushed.

Court Of Appeals Upholds Conviction Of Puerto Ricans

WASHINGTON (UP)—The U.S. Court of Appeals today upheld the convictions of four fanatic Puerto Rican nationalists who shot up the House of Representatives on March 1, 1954.

Five congressmen were wounded when the four Puerto Ricans — three men and a woman, fired 16 shots into the House chamber. The Puerto Ricans received long prison sentences.

The court dismissed the main contention of attorneys for the Puerto Ricans that they should have received a psychiatric examination and that the jury here should have decided whether they were sane at the time.

The court pointed out that three government - appointed psychiatrists had found the Puerto Ricans sane. It rules that District Court udge Alexander Holtzoff was correct in refusing to submit the sanity question to the jury.

Hope Of Preventing New Israeli, Arab Conflict May Go Up In Smoke

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) —The United States today faced the prospect that his hopes of preventing new warfare between the Arabs and Israel might go up in gun smoke with little notice.

A frank analysis given here of the Middle East situaion is that Arab-Israeli tensions are the sharpest since full-scale fighing raged in the area six years ago.

Tensions have been brought to a new peak by Egypt's decision to buy arms from the Communists. That decision is said authoritatively to have:

1. Raised the protest that Israel might renew fighting to get the jump on Egypt before Czech arms are delivered in the near future.

2. All but killed the major American effort to create a basis for peace in the Middle East. That effort was to obain an Israeli-Arab agreemen to share the waters of the Jordan River.

U.S. Issues Warnings

3. Prompted new U.S. warnings to all Arab states against buying or trading with Russia for arms as Egypt did. The warning is to the effect that the Arabs can't shoot their fire and seek peaceern problems, that hey should wihhold their fire and seek peaceful solutions to their quarrels with Israel.

Diplomatic officials have not given up all hope of avoiding new fighting in the Middle East. But they see the scales tipping dangerously in he direction of a new conflict now that Russia and its satellites are threatening to upset the balance of power in the region.

Egypt is blamed for suddenly sparking new ensions by dealing for Red arms. There is no backing out of the deal, it was learned, because Egypt alread has deposited $2,870,000 in a Czech bank as a down payment on the arms.

Strategists here believe Israel has a temporary arms advantage which it may use before the Red arms are delivered to Egpt.

Two Fort Wayne Teen-Agers Are Seriously Burned

Toss Black Powder Into Open Fireplace

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UP) —Two teen-agers were in a hospital today with blackened faces and severe burns suffered when they tossed the powder from three fireworks aerial bombs into an open fireplace.

Gerald Brobis, 15, and Eric Vandagrift, 14, suffered first and second degree burns on the arms, hands and face. Grobis was most seriously burned, and St. Joseph Hospital authorities feared he could lose his eyesight.

Police said the boys cut open the bombs Thursday, dumped all the black powder together and threw the bomb casings and powder into an outdoor fireplace at the Grobis home.

The set fire to the powder and were seared by a blinding flash which ratteled windows in a wide area.

Several bombs were reported missing some time ago from a Fort Wayne fireworks manufacturing plant, and six other aerial bomb explosions were reported recently.

The Gorbis boy had been implicated by other juveniles in the other explosions. A few hours before the blast in his back yard police had questioned him, but he denied any part in the incidents.

Faure Demands A Formal Vote Of Confidence

On Algerian Policies; Gives Him Four Days In Which To Maneuver

PARIS (UP) — Premier Edgar Faure, angry and weary after 14 hours of non- stop debate, cut through the National Assembly's monumental confusion today and demanded a formal vote of confidence on his Algerian policies.

The demand for a formal vote of confidence which automatically staked the life of his government on the outcome was a drastic move, but it gave him four days to maneuver. Much of the assembly is hostile and he must win over the deputies before the formal vote on Tuesday if he is to survive.

The angry premier ordered the vote at the end of a night long session in which it appeared his attempts to win assembly approval on a rouine vote on his Algerian policy had no chance of success.

His call for a formal vote was in reply to a head-on attack by his former Gaullist allies and a stubborn refusal by the Socialists to back him in Algeria though they had backed him five days ago on his government reforms for Morocco.

Ike Observes 65th Birthday Quietly Today

Shares Cake With 2,128 Other Persons

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP) —President Eisenhower observed his 65th birthday today within the carefully prescribed limits of a man recovering from a heart attack.

Instead of a lavish party and opulent gifts normally associated with such an occasion, Mr. Eisenhower's observance of his birthday was confined to bedside visits from his wife, low-calorie meals, possibly a thin slice of cake before the day is over.

The President wanted to share his birthday with the more than 2,128 other patients and members of the staff at Fizsimons Army Hospital, where he has been bedridden since Sept. 24—the day he suffered a coronary thrombosis. Consequently, the other patients got pieces of "Ike's cake."

Cake For Patients

Actually, the bakers at Fitzsimons prepared a small cake which was to be presented to the President with his noon-day meal. They baked 24 other cakes from the same recipe and these will be served to the other patients.

Whether this could be a "happy birthday" for Mr. Eisenhower was a matter of viewpoint. His condition continued to improve, according to the thrice-a-day bulletins from his doctors. But best medical estimates continued to place his return to the White House at sometime about the first of the year.

Probably more indicative than any word from the President's doctors was the fact that Mrs. Eisenhower felt assured enough about her husband's codition Thursday afternoon to leave her eighth-floor vigil at the hospital for the first time since his illness.

Release Over Million Doses Salk Vaccine

13½ Million Doses Released So Far

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Public Health Service today released 1,113,930 doses of Salk polio vaccine.

It allotted 617,355 doses to the states and territories to be administered to children up to age 14 under the recently broadened priority program.

The remaining 496,575 doses will go to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for second round free shots for second and third grade school children.

The states and territories now have been allotted a total of 10,853,346 doses since the voluntary distribution program was started last July 31.

The government broadened priorities under the voluntary system Wednesday. However, the government recommended that the states add no more than five additional years now to the previous 5 through 9 years prioriy group.

The service said the Eli Lilly Co., Indianapolis, manufactured 1,056,933 doses of the vaccine released today and the Pitman - Moore Co., Zionsville, Ind., produced 56,997 doses.

Toda y allotment to the states and territories, in cubic centimeters (each cubic centimeter equals one dose) included:

Small Boys Die, Apparently Of Food Poisoning

Spent Childhood Scavenging For Food I nGarbage Cans

NEW ORLEANS (UP) — Two small brothers, who spent their childhood begging and scavenging for food in garbage cans, apparently died of eating contaminated food obtained in one of their alley forays, authorities sai dtoday.

The boys, Lawrence Baughman, 7, and his brother, William Jr., 6, died Thursday in Charity Hospital.

They were found critically ill in a shabby one-room apartment where they had lived in squalor with their five sisters and their parents.

The father, tall, thin William Baughman, a 29-year-old unemployed longshoreman from Bogalusa, La., said illness had kept him from work. He and his wife were charged with criminal reglect of their family and contributing to the delinquency of juveniles.

The parents could not produce bond and were jailed on the charges. The father said from his cell at the New Orleans City Jail that he hopes to be able to find a new job when he is freed.

William was the first to die in he hospital. His last request before dropping into a coma was for a "ham sandwich, I'm so hungry." His brother died a few hours later.

The Orleans Parish county coroner's office said both deaths were under investigation but the boys probably died of some sort of poisoning.

Officials Hope Air Of Fear Will Die Down

So More Workers Can Return To Jobs

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP) —Perfect Circle Corp. officials said today they hoped the "fear" atmosphre created by last week's strike violence would die down soon so more workers could return to work.

National Guard units from Anderson, Alexandria and Indianapolis moved in Thursday to replace guardsmen who were on martial law duty about a week and guard officers said the move was made "without a hitch."

C.B. Juday, plant manager at the Perfect Circle Corp. foundry where a gun battle injured nine persons Oct. 5, said 119 workers were on the job Thursday and production of piston ring castings was 34 per cent of normal.

"The plan now is to get people back to work who were scared during this blitzkrieg," Juday said. People just have to have time to get over a thing such as they've experienced."

Juday said within a week several more workers would have overcome their "fear" sufficiently to return to work. Prior to the riot, 148 of a normal work force of 350 were still on the job despite the strike, he said.

Juday said he expected no more company firings as long as there is no more violence. The firing of 35 CIO United Auto Workers last week triggered the mass demonstration which led to the shooting.

3 Hurt In Noble County Crash Are In Luckey Hospital

Three persons were taken to the Luckey hospital at Wolf Lake with highway accident injuries following a collision on State Road 8 two miles east of Albion about 5:30 p.m. Thursday.

Stanley Gaff, Columbia City R 4, aged 30, today was being examined by X-ray to determine the extent of injuries. Also injured were Mrs. Donald Cleland, Ligonier, and her small daughter, Peggy, also at the same hospital for examination and treatment. An infant daughter of Mrs. Cleland apparently escaped unhurt.

Gaff was arrested following the crash for operation of his vehicle on the wrong side of the highway. The accident investigation is being made by Ed Enweiler, Indiana State police trooper.

Gaff's car, eastbound on the highway and following another vehicle, swerved into the path of Mrs. Cleland's vehicle which was westbound.

American Legion Winds Up Its 37th Convention

Resolution Grows More Controversial

WASHINGTON (UP)—An American Legion resolution demanding that the United States withdraw from the United Naions Educational, Scienific and Cultural Organization grew more controversial by the hour today.

The U.S. National Commission for UNESCO branded the legion's action "absurd." Bill Mauldin, national chairman of the American Veterans Committee, called it "shameful."

Former President Truman called he legionnaires a "group of eager beavers" in passing the resolution and Dr. Luther Evans, director of UNESCO, expressed regret at the legion's stand.

The legion at its convention in Miami, Fla., Wednesday branded UNESCO as a "world government-minded" organization and asked the United States to pull out of it and investigae its aims. It charged that UNESCO spread "subversive literature."

Gen. Milton G. BBaker, chairman of the U.S. National commission for UNESCO, said the legion resolution "indicts the patriotism and the loyalty of a noted group of Americans who have given selflessly of their time and their considerable talent to the national interest in peace an dsecurity."

The national commission serves as an advisory body to the State Department. Its members are nominated by a wide variety of public and private organizations and are appointed by the secretary of state after a security check.

The State Department itself declined comment on the legion resolution.

Evans, an American, said he had no wish to interject himself into "what is essentially an American controversy." But, he said, "UNESCO's objectives in no way involve an attempt to establish a world government or threaten the sovereign of any of its member naions. . ."

With Neither Gaining Majority For Election

Of Its Candidate To Security Council

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) —Russia and the United States wound up in a deadlock today in the United Naions General Assembly, with neither able to obtain a required two-thirds majority vote for ts candidate for a Security Council seat.

After six inconclusive ballots, Assembly President Jose Maza adjourned the meeting, on the suggestion of Britain and Russia. Both suggested that the assembly should resume its voting next Tueday.

Russia dropped its candidate, Poland, after five ballots and spread the word that it would accept Yugoslavia as an "Eastern European" candidate. This was ironic, since Yugoslavia's election over Soviet-backed Czechoslovakia in 1949 was the first break in the 1946 "gentleman's agreement" that one non-permanent council seat should go to a Soviet-bloc country.

The Philippines, campaigning strenuously under the leadership of fiery Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo with the backing of U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., remained in the running.

Cuba, Australia Elected

The Philippines came within one vote of election when 38 countries ballotted for it on the third round. At that point, 39 votes were required for election.

The election procedure requires a two-thirds majority of countries present and voting. Absentions may change the number of votes

National Brotherhood For Blind Receives Grant Each Year From The Community Chest

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles describing one of the agencies which is a member of the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc.)

Whitley County's Community Chest covers a wide range of activities for everyone — even for those who cannot see.

Through the National Brotherhood of Service for the Blind, Inc., the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc., makes its efforts at providing services which will assist persons without the use of their eyesight.

The National Brotherhood for the Blind receives a grant each year from the Chest, and stands ready to assist in making possible the realization of a blind person's needs.

An organization with a nationwide responsibility, the Brotherhood for the Blind has provided many seeing-eye dogs, furnished educational devices for the blind and provided medical aid in the form of operations and treatments.

The organization, according to Miss Florence Smith, assistant secretary, extends free services to the blind and visually handicapped.

"Included among the services," Miss Smith points out, "are expenses of eye operations and medical care, artificial eyes, glasses for needy school children who otherwise might not be able to obtain them, braille reading and writing materials, white canes, braille games and many other services, depending upon individual needs."

Aimed at providing a well-rounded educational program for the blind, the Brotherhood maintains a record library and braille reading and writing materials to loan to those who need such services.

The organization also operates a placement bureau to assist visually handicapped persons in finding useful occupation.

As a social welfare unit, the National Brotherhood cooperates with other welfare organizations, clinics, hospitals, educational institutions and social agencies engaged in any manner in helping the blind.

Cuba, with 53 votes, and Australia, with 42, were elected on the first ballot to succeed Brazil and New Zealand, respectively on the council next Jan. 1.

The assembly also decided to postpone elections for vacancies on the Economic and Social Council and the Trusteeship Council.

Observers foresaw a busy weekend of "horse-trading" involving seats on the other councils as Russia and the U.S. sought to nail down a majority for their respective Security Council candidates.

Both the United States and the Soviet bloc accused each other of violating the "spirit of Geneva" generated when the Big Four heads of government met last July.

Significance of the vote went beond the Philippines-Polish contest. It involved the "equitable geographic distribution" of the six non-permanent seats on the council, three of which are filled each year for two-year terms.

Poland and Russia contended that U.S. support of the Philippines violated a "gentlemen's agreement" reached in 1946 under which the non-permanent seats were apportioned among Eastern Europe, Western Europe, the Middle East, the British Commonwealth and Latin America.

Transit Drivers Vote To Return To Work At Once

Four-Day Strike In St. Louis Over

ST. LOUIS (UP)—AFL bus and street car operators gave up their four-day strike against the Public Service Co. today and voted to return to work immediately.

The decision was announced b union leaders after a two hour closed meeting of the membership. It came after the state of Missouri invoked penalty clauses of its utility anti-strike law and asked the courts for damages of $10,000 a day from the union.

Transit vehicles were expected to begin running again as soon as the drivers reported to their divisions.

Prior to the meeting, the executive committee of the union promised state officials they would do everything in their power to get the men back to work.

Will this blot spread... or shrink?

Nothing strikes so brutally at human lives as a slum.

Yet, of America's many millions of homes, the blot that is a slum covers more than 1 out of every 10 . . . and nearly one-half of all our homes are urgently in need of repair and basic improvements.

Will this blot go on spreading? Or will a concerted, nationwide attack on the causes of slums shrink it, year by year, until it is wiped out? Today, this is a challenge to every American . . . a challenge that must be met.

Your community...your problem!

A slum reaches across blocks, across miles, to sit on your doorstep and demand a price.

You pay it in the threat of crime and juvenile delinquency.

You pay the price in the higher taxes it takes to fight the disease and crime and poverty that are slum-bred.

You pay when the value of your home sinks as community deterioration takes another step closer.

You are directly affected. The problem is yours. And, like every other American, yours is the responsibility not only of removing the slum from the American scene, but of preventing the slums of tomorrow.

Let's stop slums before they start!

How do slums start? Just one house slides downhill . . . and a whole block changes. Home values drop. Other houses are neglected and decay spreads.

That's why it's just as important to attend to the 20 million houses that are still in fair condition as it is to attack the 5 million that are already part of the slum blot.

Some of the worst slums are beyond repair. They should be torn down and a fresh start made with new dwellings. Others can be rehabilitated, remodeled, made to conform to better living standards. So it is up to you to get behind every sound program which seeks to provide adequate housing for all our people.

Already many organizations are working to reverse the trend toward sub-standard housing. Add your effort to theirs. Your effort, multiplied by a million other Americans', can stop slums cold and put America's housing standard at a new height.

Follow the course of action! A group of Americans from every walk of life have joined together to combat home and community deterioration. A.C.T.I.O.N., the American Council To Improve Our Neighborhoods, offers information and educational facilities to help you as an individual or as a member of a civic or social group.

Southern Cal-Wiscons in Clash Under Lights Opens Weekend Of C ollege Football Games

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer

Southern California and Wisconsin, Rose Bowl rivals three seasons back, clash under the lights at Los Angeles tonight in a big intersectional game that opens a weekend of college football that otherwise will be devoted mainly to conference games.

Southern Cal's Trojans won that 1953 bowl battle, 7-0, for the Pacific Coast Conference's only victory to date in the nine years of its bowl pact with the Big Ten.

But this time the odds-makers figure Wisconsin, unbeaten, untied and ranked eighth naturally despite the graduation of fullback Alan Ameche, will win. They rate the Badgers a six-point choice over the speedier once-beaten, 19th-ranked Trojans.

A tight battle is expected in the only other major game on tonight's arc-light program, a Skyline Conference battle in which Denver, the host, is a two-point pick over Utah.

The big Saturday program finds the nationwide emphasis switching for the first time this season from intersectional games to conferencne warfare.

"Big Three" Favorites

Michigan, Maryland, and Oklahoma, the current "Big Three" in the national football rankings, set the style for the day by sticking within their own league. And all three are heavy favorites —Michigan by 21 points in its Big Ten opener against three-times-beaten Northwestern; Maryland by 21 over North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference; and Oklahoma by 28 to score its 23rd straight victory as it opens its Big Seven season against Kansas.

However, Notre Dame, the nation's No. 4 team and hot a conference member, is the favorite in the nationally-televised "game of the week." The unbeaten, untied, unscored-on Irish invade East Lansing, Mich., to face Michigan State.

Georgia Tech, Texas Christian, and UCLA, ranked 5-6-7 nationally will be occupied with important conference matters. Tech is a seven-point choice over Auburn; Texas Christian is a 10 - point Southwest Conference favorite as it shoots Jimmy Swink and Co. at Texas A & M; UCLA, last year's national champion, is favored by "only" 19 over Pacific Coast Conference rival Stanford.

Undefeated, untied, unscored-on Navy, is a 13-point favorite over Penn State.

Duke At Ohio State

Duke visits Ohio State at Columbus in Saturday's biggest intersectional game and the Blue Devils are the only team in the top 10 that is an underdog — but only by one point. In other major intersectionals, Baylor and Washington are rated even; Wyoming is favored by seven over Tulsa; Boston College by 10 over Detroit; Pittsburgh 14 over Nebraska; and Indiana 20 over Villanova.

Here's how some of the other big conference games are figured:

Unbeaten Yale seven over Cornell in the Ivy League, where Harvard is picked by only one point over Columbia; Alabama three over Tennessee, Kentucky seven over Mississippi State, and Mississippi 13 over Tulane in the Southeastern Conference; Wake Forest seven over North Carolina State in the Atlantic Coast Conference; unbeaten West Virginia 21 over William & Mary in the Southern; Iowa seven over Purdue and Illinois seven over Minnesota in the Big Ten; Colorado Seven over Kansas State and Missouri seven over Iowa Stae in the Big Seven; Houston 13 over Oklahoma A & M in the Missouri Valley; Texas three over Arkansas and Rice six over SMU in the Southwest; Oregon three over California and Washington State seven over Idaho in the Pacific Coast Conference.

Drake Favored Over Baldoni

Drake, 25, and Baldoni, 23, are trying to crash into the top ten ratings among 160-pound contenders, and an impressive victory by either might turn the trick.

It will be the first television fight for swarthy, black-haired Baldoni son of a Pennsylvania coal miner. His aggressive, slam-bang style could make him an attraction.

Handsome, curly-haired Drake has been on several limited telecasts and on one national show in his last fight, Aug. 24, when he outpointed Danny Giovanelli at Madison Square Garden.

He is favored because of his skill and because he is expected to be "sharper" than Tony as a result of greater ring activity this year.

Larry Foust Under Contract

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UP)—Lanky Larry Foust was under a new season contract today with the Fort Wayne Pistons, the team he led in scoring last year for a place on the National Basketball Association's all-star squad.

Sponsor Fred Zollner said the six-foot-nine center was not a hold-out.

"We just have been unable to get together because I have been out of town," Zollner said.

The Pistons play the college all-stars next Thursday night to open an exhibition tour.

Jefferson Center Sophomores Win Cross Country Run

Two senior boys placed first and second in the intramural cross country run at Jefferson Center Wednesday afternoon, but the sophomore team won the event with a total of 27 points.

David Phillips placed first and Phillip Miller, second, in the one and one-half mile course laid out by Coach Tony Newell. However, the competition was by classes, and the sophomores won the event. Runners on the sophomore team were Don Shaw, Richard Shaffmaster, Jerry Hollenbaugh, Bill Forsythe, and Phil Wagoner.

The first five place winners of the cross country run received ribbon awards. They were: David Phillips, blue ribbon for first; Phillip Miller, red, second; Don Shaw, white, third; Richard Shaffmaster green, fourth; and Jerry Hollenbaugh green, fifth. Eighteen boys took part in the cross country intramural contest, which is the first of six high school contests scheduled for the year at Jefferson Center. Other interclass contests which will follow are: volleyball, ping pong, shuffle board, basketball, and track and field.

For the cross country run Wednesday, Coach Newell acted as timer, Principal Holycross was starter, and Charles Luther and Gerald Wallace were finish judges.

Next Tuesday, the Tiger harriers will run against Concordia high school at Memorial Park in Fort Wayne.

Zollner Piston Inter Squad Game To Open Syracuse Gym

The new school gymnasium, Syracuse will be used for the first time October 19 at 7:00 p.m. when an inter squad Zollner Piston game will be played. The Syracuse Lions Club is sponsoring the game and proceeds are ear marked for civic and community projects.

Syracuse has just completed the gym, which seats 2,200.

Percy Bowdy Picks Up 7-10 Split In League Bowling

Percy Bowdy, bowling on the Black's Restaurant team in the Classic League at Cook Lanes Wednesday night, picked up the 7-10 split. This was only the third time this split has been made in league bowling at Cooks.

He will receive an American Bowling Congress award and also the Harrison Abstract & Insurance cash award.

Hope Boy Taken By Someone Who Wanted Little Boy

CRANE, Ind. (UP)—The best hope for 3-year-old Ronnie Weitkamp today was that he had been kidnaped by someone who wanted a little boy.

Otherwise, military and civil authorities feared, the tow-headed lad might well have been the victim of a sex criminal.

Ronnie vanished from this southern Indiana village shortly before noon Tuesday. A shoulder-to-shoulder search by at least 1,000 persons over a 10squaremile area failed to turn up a clue to his fate.

At a strategy meeting attended by Crane Naval Ammunition Depot authorities, state police, and the FBI, it was decided that Ronnie's nearly-white head of hair might save him.

Cmdr. Richard Turner of the ammunition depot said Ronnie's hair was so distinctive that anyone who sees the lad could instantly recognize him.

It would take "quite a stretch of the imagination," Turner said to believe Ronnie was kidnaped for ransom. His father, Lawrence is a civilian employe at the depot and the family is of moderate means.

A "more pleasant" possibility, the commander said, is that someone who wanted a child and is willing to care for him lured Ronnie away.

Four Airmen Killed In Jet Bomber Crash

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UP) — Air Force authorities today investigated the hillside crash of a B47 jet bomber in which four airmen were killed.

The crash occurred shortly after the medium bomber took off on an evaluation mission from its home field, March Air Force Base, about 10 miles from here. The plane was flying on instruments in a heavy fog but Air Force spokesmen said the fog was not responsible for the crash Thursday night.

Hour Of Decision Nears For Peter Townsend, Princess

LONDON (UP)—The hour of decision neared today for Princess Margaret and Peter Townsend.

The group captain's one hour and 57-minute visit with the princess and the queen mother Thursday night apparently forced the issue, and it was obvious some royal announcement on their intentions must come soon.

The meeting between the pilot and the princess was made with the full knowledge it would be flashed to all parts of the British Empire. It was their first meeting in 28 dragging months and it left Townsend so flustered he had trouble finding his own front door when he returned home.

Townsend's summons to see the woman who crumbled his career at court represented the most decisive single development in a story of royal romances since Edward VIII quit his throne in 1936

OCTOBER 23–29, 1955

KIWANIS INTERNATIONAL coordinating agency

National Farm-City Week will be observed October 23 thru 29. Kiwanias International has taken the leadership in this project and is acting as the coordinating agency.

The Indiana Farm Bureau, as a part of its continuing Public Relations for Agriculture program, is cooperating with Indiana District Kiwanis in planning rural-urban activities throughout Hoosierland during Farm-City Week.

The purpose of the program is to promote better understanding between farm and non-farm people. The program is designed to lead to an understanding of our farm economy by city dwellers and an understanding of town and city problems by rural people.

National Farm-City Week is being sponsored by a large number of national, regional, state and local business, industrial and agricultural organiations.

Although Farm-City Week is national in scope it will be observed primarily on a local basis. Individual Kiwanis clubs are working with farm and city groups in their immediate areas to plan Farm-City Week activities. There are 110 Kiwanis clubs in Indiana.

Indiana farmers are vitally interested in cordial rural-urban relations and for several years have worked actively toward this objective through their Public Relations for Agriculture program as carried out by their various county Farm Bureau organizations.

It is hoped that Farm-City Week will be a further demonstration that urban and rural America are dependent one on the other.

Soviet Puts U. S. On Diplomatic Hot Spot By Switching Candidates

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The United States found itself on a diplomatic hot spot today because of the Soviet Union's switch to Yugoslavia in the hotly-contested battle for a seat on the United Nations Security Council.

The Russians abruptly abandoned Poland, its original candidate, after four unproductive ballots in the General Assembly and threw its support behind Yugoslavia. The maneuver won support from Britain and the Commonwealth countries, and embarrassed the United States.

The United States, under the leadership of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. pulled no punches in campaigning for the Philippines against Poland for a non-permanent seat on the Council. But the diplomatic situation dictated that similar tactics could not be followed once Yugoslavia became the opposition candidate.

Marshal Tito's government is being wooed by both the Soviet Union and the Western powers. Washington, in the opinion of qualified diplomatic observers, cannot afford to offend Belgrade by campaigning as fervently against the Yugoslavs as it did against the Poles.

Within One Vote

The Philippines came within one vote of the required two-thirds majority during the balloting Friday. With France boycotting the current assembly session, 39 votes were necessary. On the third ballot, the Philippines polled 38, Poland received 20.

On the fifth "unrestricted" ballot, with delegates permitted to vote for any country except the actual members of the council, the Russians campaigned only for the Yugoslavs. The vote was Philippines 30, Yugoslavia 20, Poland one.

On the sixth and last ballot of the day, it was Philippines 29, Yugoslavia 28. The deadlocked assembly thereupon adjourned voting until at least next Tuesday.

Yugoslav Victory Predicted

Most observers believed that with Britain favoring them as the compromise candidate, the Yugoslavs would pick up enough votes to win the seat.

But Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romu- delegation, said: "The fight is not lo, fiery leader of the Philippines yet over. We are still fighting."

There was little doubt that Yugoslavia was a reluctant candidate. Marshal Tito has steered a careful course between East and West since the dramatic "hat-into Belgrade last summer, and Sohand" visit by the Kremlin leaders viet Communist boss Nikita Khrushchev's abject apology on Russia's kicking Tito out of the Soviet bloc.

The Yugoslavs' greatest fear, according to observers, is that they may win the label of being a Soviet bloc country again.

Cuba and Australia won the other two seats on the council up for election. Of the six non-permanent seats, three are filled each year for two-year terms.

Beef Achievement Meeting Scheduled For Wednesday

Beef Club Achievement meet will be held Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the Columbia Township school. The evnet will start with a carry-in dinner, after which a fine program will be presented. The main part of the program will be an address given by a representative of the McMillen Feed Co. All beef club members and their parents are invited to attend, states Wallace Eberhart.

The Beef Achievement meeting has been planned and promoted by the 4-H Beef Club sponsoring committee of five local men, Wallace Eberhart, chairman, Lewis Deem, Secretary Harry Jagger, Harbert Richards and Edward Hinen.

Princess Margaret And Townsend Retrace The Paths Where They First Fell In Love

By HAROLD M. WILLARD
United Press Staff Correspondent

WINDSOR, England (UP) — Princess Margaret and Peter Townsend retraced today the paths where they first fell in love, and some Britons accepted the fact of their weekend rendezvous as the next best thing to a formal engagreement.

Squads of police armed with dogs and walkie - talkie radios uarded the country estate in the wooded hills near Windsor Castle to shield the couple from a prying world while a powerful segment of the British press rose to their defense.

The world, rocked first by Townsend's visit to the princess at Clarence House in the presence of the queen mother, was rocked again today by the Windsor tryst, even though an icey statement from Clarence House seemingly denied the signs of an early engagement.

It said "no announcement concerning Princess Margaret's future is at present contemplated."

Not one of London's nine dailies tried to interpret the statement one way or the other, including the Daily Express and the Daily Sketch which were first to predict an engagement. They also did not try to explain the weekend tryst.

At any rate it was believed a formal announcement — if one is forthcoming — would have to await the meeting of Parliament Oct. 25.

The RAF group captain and the princess went separately to their weekend rendezvous, Townsend in his green French sports car, the princess in a black sedan whose speed along back country roads belies its sedateness.

Courted Two Years Ago

The rendezvous was at the home of Mrs. John Wills, on the border of Windsor Great Park where Townsend courted Margaret two years ago on hikes and horseback. The house is in a densely-wooded park.

If Margaret expected the brief and tart announcement from Clarence House to discourage the expectation of a forthcoming marriage, she nullified it by her flight to the country to be at Townsend's side. She had weakened it the night before by receiving Townsend in full knowledge of the world.

Her sudden sweep to Windsor for a house party at this crucial juncture was sure to shock the sensibilities of British bluenoses worse than any single incident since King Edward VIII's open courtship of the divorcee, Wallis

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. UP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell says the "deplorable" tendency of some states to pass "right-to-work" laws has been halted.

France Warned By Ex-Premier About Crisis

That Could Mean Absence Of France At Geneva Conference

PARIS (UP)—National Assembly opponents of Premier Edgar Faure were brought up short today by a sober warning that fall of the government over the Algerian crisis could mean the absence of France at the Geneva Big Four conference.

Premier Edgar Faure has staked the fate of his cabinet on a formal vote of confidence in the assembly Tuesday afternoon over his handling of the Algerian problem where demands for independence have touched off months of anti-French violence.

Faure's position was believed strengthened by a warning from former Premier Paul Reynaud that a new cabinet crisis might lead to new elections in November and the absence of France from the Geneva Conference which begins Oct. 27.

Reynaud, a member of the right-wing and one of France's most influential politicians, accused the Gaullists, the Socialists and the Communists of ganging up on Faure for purely selfish reasons. He said their actions might weaken France internationally and cause even more bloodshed in North Africa.

Police broke up the second demonstration in two nights Friday night against the government's Algerian problems. Police hauled 120 persons to court to have their identity papers checked when they tried to demonstrate despite a police ban.

President Ends The Third Week Of His Recovery

Grateful For Flood Of Gifts And Cards

B MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP)—President Eisenhower ended the third week of his recovery from a heart attack today in good spirits, grateful for a flood of gifts and messages on his 65th birthday.

The temporary White House said the Chief Executive and Mrs. Eisenhower were "very affected" by the deluge of remembrances that inundated Fitzsimons Arm Hospital Friday and were "deeply appreciative."

The President prepared for the latest of his conferences with top government officials on his gradual return to active direction of the government.

Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey was due about 4 p.m. EDT, and was expected to confer with Mr. Eisenhower at the hospital this afternoon.

On Monday, Mr. Eisenhower will confer briefly with Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Spends Busiest Day

Mr. Eisenhower's anniversary Friday was one of the busiest days his doctors have permitted him since he entered the hospital three weeks ago this afternoon with a "moderate coronary thrombosis."

He looked at many of the gifts himself, visited with Mrs. Eisenhower and her sister and mother, had his usual outing on an eighth floor sun terrace at the hospital, rested, listened to music, and heard Mrs. Eisenhower read many of the thousands of greetings that poured in from all over the world.

Mr. Eisenhower waved from his bed on the sun deck in response to shouted greetings from other patients in the big military hospi-

Autos Collide On Swihart Street

Rushed to the Whitley County Hospital about 9:30 a.m. today by City Policeman Paul Forrester was Donald Mowery, 4-year-old son of Mrs. Louis Mowery, R 5. At the hospital his injuries were found not to be serious.

The child was a back-seat passenger in the 1953 Studebaker operated by Ilene E. Sheets, 23, of R 5, which struck the rear of the 1934 Plymouth operated by William Henry Kneller, 81, resident on Old Route 9. Both vehicles were westbound.

Also with Mrs. Sheets were the Mowrey boy's mother and Norma Strain of Arcola. Other than for bruises none was hurt.

Mr. Kneller told Officer Forrester he was headed west on Swihart and pulled into the middle of the street to avoid a group of children playing along the north curb. Mrs. Sheets, about to pass his car, collided with the rear end of the Plymouth when she saw a parked car along the south curb blocking her path. About $350 damage resulted to her vehicle while Mr. Kneller's damage was estimated at $20.

Automation Will Contribute To GrowingEconomy

More Jobs, Better Pay, Less Work

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Director Robert W. Burgess of the Census Bureau today forecast that automation will contribute to a steadily expanding economy with more jobs, better pay, and less work.

Burgess, in testimony prepared for a congressional hearing on automation, said machines already have taken over much of man's drudgery and promise to take over much more.

He said this may lead to "serious short-run dislocations" in particular fields—in other words, unemployment—but that in the long run automation will "facilitate and promote the general expansion."

Burgess said employment statistics show that scientific and technological advances create more new jobs in some fields than they wipe out in others. The telephone industry displaced many workers with dial equipment, but in 10 years it almost doubled its employment.

Jobs To Pay Better

"I do not expect the further development of machines to reduce the number of jobs over the long term," said Burgess. "Furthermore, in my judgment, the new jobs will be less arduous, more satisfying to the individual, and better-paying."

The business and employment statistics on which Burgess based his predictions were tabulated, in part, on just the kind of machine he was talking about: An electronic computer which he said can digest information faster than humans can feed it.

Installation of this machine—the Univac — in 1951 has displaced some clerks, he said, but it has created new and better jobs for better trained and higher paid personnel. Also, it has enabled the bureau to expand its functions.

The subcommittee is calling experts in many fields for testimony on probable effects of automation on jobs and the economy generally. Among other things it asks its witnesses how they define the subject.

Emphasis On Electronic Control

Generally automation is considered to be the latest phase in a continuing process of technological development with new emphasis on electronic controls that guide machines in their work.

D. J. Davis, Ford Motor Co. vice president in charge of production, told the subcommittee today's $1,800 automobile would cost $50,000 if built by old fashioned hand work. He said Ford is not afraid of automation.

He said the auto industry expects to turn out a record 8-million cars this year, the same number in 1956, and about 9-million in 1957.

1,000 Bales Of Hay Burn; Box Car Is Damaged

Field Stored Hay At Harris Farm Lost; Fight Pennsy Fire

About 1,000 bales of hay in a field along the Panhandle railroad at the Ola and Gale Harris farm southwest of Columbia City were destroyed by fire, possibly of incendiary origin, Friday night.

The loss is expected to be between $600 and $700.

A little more than an hour earlier a wood-lined metal Pennsylvania railroad box car was damaged by fire which was discovered at the old coal docks on the Panhandle branch about a half-mile southwest of the main line Pennsy and Panhandle branch junction. Origin of this fire has not been definitely established. Railroad workers discovered both fires.

Township Truck Called

The fire at the Harris farm was in a field south of the Panhandle track, not far from where the Harris' land joins that owned by Wilson Frank. The Four Townships fire department responded to the call at 7:45 p.m. Previously Gale Harris and his son, Harvey, following notification from a railroad employe, went to the field with neighbors. Both ends of the stacked hay were on fire but the center had not started burning when they reached the field. Harvey Harris undertook to climb over the center of the stack, thatched on top to prevent water damage, but before he got completely over the stack, fire was licking at his heels. At one end of the stack were some bales of straw.

To reach the field where the hay was burning was down a long lane leading south from the Oak Grove church road. When the fire truck reached the lane, men sent by Mr. Harris said it was useless to try to reach the stack nor was there time to save any portion of it. To get to the fire the railroad line south of the field would have to be crossed.

The hay had been stored in the field until remodeling of the Harris barn could be completed. Work on remodeling had been delayed and so a thatch over the stacked hay was anticipated soon. Storage in the field where the hay was cut and baled was deemed best by handle the hay and straw twice.

Tow Burning Car

The box car fire resulted in a local fire alarm at 6 p.m. The railroad switch crew brought the burning car to the Farmers Grain & Feed Co. elevator near Line street where it could easily be reached by fire equipmnt. City firemen extinguished the blaze on the interior of the car without difficulty. The entire interior was charred. The car had been empty so no cargo loss resulted.

Labor and lumber, repainting of the steel exterior and other repairs which will be required are expected to total several hundred dollars.

A second railroad car fire the same evening was extinguished by Pennsy employes without the necessity of it being hauled to a location where fire fighting equipment could be used.

Robert Frasher Raises Peanuts And Big Squash

Robert Frasher, 10½, brought a peanut plant with peanuts attached and a large cushaw squash, which he had raised, to the newspsper office this morning.

The peanut plant branches spread out about two feet from the center. The leaves are small and very glossy. The root is only about six inches in length. The peanuts grow below the ground.

Bob lives with his grandmother, Mrs. Vilona Wynkoop, 512 East Hanna street. He attends McLallen school. John Fries is his teacher.

The squash and the peanut plant filled the young gardner's wagon. The squash was about two feet long and weighed 14½ pounds It was an ivory color with mottled wide green stripes. He likes the squash best made into pie by his grandmother.

Governors Call For Emergency FederalPurchase

Of Surplus Farm Products To Bolster Falling Prices

DES MOINES (UP)—A Midwest Republican governors' conference has called for a three-point program to "ease the farm squeeze" while continuing flexible price supports.

The conference report, issued Friday after a three-hour meeting of five governors and representatives of three other states, urged emergency federal purchases of surplus farm products to bolster falling prices.

However, the report said the purchases should be "for use and not for destruction." This was thought by some to be a victory for Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson and his flexible price support program.

The report also asked that farmers and farm related industries join in farm products committees to promote the sale and more efficient distribution of farm products.

The third recommendation asked the government to consider a federal "soil bank" plan. Proponents of this plan suggest that farmers be provided with incentives to take land out of production and develop is fertilit until such time as more food is required.

While they agreed to the recommendations, Govs. Joe Foss of South Dakota and Fred Hall of Kansas said they thought rigid price supports at 90 to 100 per cent of parity might have prevented the present farm problem.

However, Gov. George Craig of Indiana said he had "absolute confidence in the Department of Agriculture" and Gov. Victor Anderson of Nebraska said "supports mean government control."

The governors of Illinois, Wisconsin and Wyoming sent personal representatives to the meeting.

Causes 8 Deaths, Local Floods, Wind Damage

In Areas Not Yet Recovered From Last Months Floods

NEW YORK (UP)—A near hurricane pounded the North Atlantic coast Friday night and today with wind-whipped rains and high tides causing heavy wind damage and local flooding.

The sneak storm roared across area not yet recovered from last month's disastrous floods.

At least eight deaths were attributed to the storm in New York and New England. Five persons died in storm-caused automobile accidents, two drowned in swollen streams and two died when they touched fallen power lines.

The storm, described by the Weather Bureau as an undeveloped hurricane, packed winds as strong as 70 miles an hour. It struck the upper Middle Atlantic states Friday and roared northeast. The Hartford - Bridgeport, Conn., area reported continuing strong winds and heavy rains early today.

The Hartford Weather Bureau warned that moderate to heavy rains would prolong the threat of flash flooding throughout most of today in areas of small streams of southern Massachusetts and Connecticut. It warned there would be "considerable flash flooding."

Floods Force Evacuation

Pennsylvania state Civil Defense Director Dr. Richard Gerstell said flash floods forced evacuation of 400 persons in Eastern Pennsylvania but he said the danger appeared to be past by early today. Gerstell said the most serious flooding hit Danville and Williamsport.

New Jersey Civil Defense officials reported flash flooding and

First American Plane Powered By Nuclear Energy To Take The Air Sometime In 1958-59

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sources close to U.S. atomic developments predicted today that the first American plane powered by nuclear energy will take the air some time in 1958-59.

A Communist broadcast from East Germany Friday said the Russians are working on an atom-powered, supersonic plane which will make its maiden flight "in the near future."

If there is any truth in the broadcast, it may indicate the Russians have a bulge on the United States in this phase of atom-harnessing.

By the end of this fiscal year the United States will have poured an estimated 230-million dollars into development of an atom engine which could drive an airplane around the world indefinitely at high altitudes and at speeds faster than sound under cover of constant darkness.

Ideal H-Bomber

Such a plane would be almost proof against interception and would be the ideal H-bomber.

Reports of a sensational "breakthrough" in atom plane research have persisted for about a year. They may be based on the fact that at least a couple of research reactors have been put in operation by companies working on such research. A third, built by the government, also has "gone critical."

General Electric at Evandale, Ohio; Pratt & Whitney in Connecticut near Hartford, and Curtiss-Wright in New Jersey are working on atom engine designs for the Air Force.

Convair at Fort Worth, Boeing bank, Calif., are working on planes to carry an atomic engine. In addition, the Navy has developed mammoth flying boats said to be capable of handling an engine powered by splitting atoms.

One thing is sure, according to a former member of the Atomic Energy Commission's staff: "The heat is on to get an atom plane in the air." Development of such an engine became "a crash program" shortly after last May Day when it was revealed that the Russians have H-bombers matching our own and jet fighters capable of making an effective defense against U.S. strategic aircraft.

Radioactive Shielding Problem

The government is building a multi-million-dollar atom plane engine testing station near Arco, Idaho, and is doing intensive research at Oak Ridge, Tenn., on radioactive shielding for the engine. The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics is building another

One of the reported breakthroughs may have been in shielding. A big obstacle has been the prodigious weight of shielding necessary to protect the plane crew from atomic radiation.

At Oak Ridge, on twin pairs of towers, an atomic reactor has been spitting radiation in all directions while scientists gauge the shielding effects of air and distance.

This has led to the concept of "divided shielding" with a view to saving weight. The crew would be at one end of a long fusilage with the atom engine at the other.

Comets Wins 1st Game 26-7

The Kendallville Comets won their first football game of this season, and their third one since resuming high school football there three years ago, as they rolled over the winless Columbia City Eagles 26-7. The Comets scored on two line plunges, a screen pass, and an intercepted pass.

Kendallville discontinued football in 1928 and then resumed the sport three years ago. The game at DeVol Field Friday evening was the first with Columbia City in the recent years.

In the Northeastern Indiana Conference game here last night, the Comets were first to score as Evers went over from the five-yard line for the last play of the first quarter. Hosler was unsuccessful in his attempt to carry the ball over for the conversion, and the score was 6-0. Jerry Parrett had foiled an earlier Comet threat by recovering a Kendallville fumble on the Eagle three-yard line.

With Deutsch spearheading an Eagle drive after receiving the kickoff, aided by a 10-yard pass by Kniss to Smith, the ball was moved from the C.C. 42-yard line to the 26-yard line. From there, Deutsch carried it over the goal line. Deutsch also carried for the conversion and a 7-6 score early in the second period. The half ended with the score unchanged.

Deutsch kicked the ball deep into Kendallville territory to start the second half, and it was returned to the 15-yard line. Roger Bridge threw Kendallville's Leamon for a three-yard loss, but on the next play Leamon uncorked a 41-yard pass to Hornet which got the Comets rolling in a big way. Bleech worked on the ground in the Comet drive, and Fifer tossed a successful screen pass to Leamon from the 31-yard line that was good for six more points. Bleech booted the conversion for a 13-7 score.

Kendallville was not able to capitolize on a big break on the kick-off, as an alert Comet lineman fell on Jone's fumble of the kick-off. The Comets got the ball on the Eagle eight-yard line, but Columbia City linemen held. Four plays later the Eagles took the ball on the eight-yard line.

But after making this goal line stand, an Eagle pass was intercepted on the first play which went for a TD. Bleech grabbed a pass by Kniss, Eagle freshman who has been seeing a lot of action at quarterback, on the C.C. 20 and ran into the end zone. Leamon carried for the conversion but was stopped short of the goal. Score 19-7.

The last score came after two plays in the last quarter. Kendallville had returned Deutsch's punt to the C.C. 45 and from there had marched to the five-yard stripe. From there, Leamon streaked through the center to pay dirt. Evers carried for the extra point and the 26-7 score.

A big factor in Kendallville's victory was running the Eagle ends. Statistics show that Kendallville skirted the Eagle line 17 times for a total of 119 yards. The Eagles were just as successful on end runs but did not take advantage of the Kendallville weakness. C.C. backs chalked up 33 yards on five end run plays. The Comets gained 240 yards rushing, while the Eagles gained 136. Kendallville made 11 first downs rushing to seven for Columbia City and three first downs on passes to two first downs in the air by the Eagles. The Comets completed five of nine passes and intercepted three, while Columbia City connected on two of 11 aerials.

For the first time this season, the Columbia City band performed at halftime, directed by Robert Sharpe. For the first home game, a sloppy field prevented the band from performing, as they had to have clean uniforms to participate in high school band day at Purdue the next day. The second home game was Tuesday of this week, and the South Whitley band filled in there so the local musicians would not have to prepare two routines in one week. Led by Drum Major Briggs, the C.C. band presented its contest routine with which it won Division I honors at the marching contest last Saturday.

Next week the Eagles play at Huntington on Tuesday and at Decatur Friday. The season ends the following Wednesday here against Warsaw.

Hat Trick Takes Hornets Into First-Place Tie

By UNITED PRESS

An eight-point scoring spree, including a three-goal "hat trick," by 24-year-old Pittsburgh forward Willie Marshall carried the Hornets into a first-place tie with the Cleveland Barons today in the American Hockey League race.

Marshall figured in eight of the nine goals the Hornets scored Friday night in downing the Springfield Indians, 9-3, in the only game played.

Marshall scored twice and picked up an assist in the first period as Pittsburgh rallied to gain a 3-1 lead. He picked up two more assists in the middle period to lead the Hornets to a 5-3 advantage and then closed out with a third goal and two more assists in the final session.

Philadelphia Eagles Seven Point Favorite

The Philadelphia Eagles are seven-point favorites to snap their two-game losing streak Saturday night at the expense of Pittsburgh.

If the upset pattern esablished during he first three weeks keeps up, the Forbes Field game will start another weekend of dizzy upheavals in the National Football League. The odds-makers' point-spreads have held up only once in the first 18 games.

Pittsburgh is one of the teams that has been ignoring its role of underdog. The Steelers upset the Chicago Cardinals and New York Giants and dropped a 27-26 decision to the Los Angeles Rams after being tabbed a 14-point underdog.

The Eagles — picked to dominate the Eastern Division after sweeping their six exhibition games — have been having their troubles.

The Eagles made the point spread stand up for the first and only time so far in the 1955 NFL schedule by defeating New York, 27-17, in the first game of the season. Since then, they have lost to the Washington Redskins and Cleveland Browns.

Kilroy Serious Loss

Philadelphia suffered a serious loss when Bucko Kilroy, one of the league's top linemen, was sidelined for the season with an injury suffered in the opening game. Ted Wegert, an Eagle back hurt in that game, also will miss tonight's contest.

The clashes between the two Pennsylvania rivals usually are rugged ones. The Steelers won their second meeting last year, 17-7, to share the Eastern Division lead but they sufferde so many injuries in that game that they won olny one of their next seven.

Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Washington and the Cardinals currently are tied for first in the Eastern race with 2-1 records. Philadelphia is next with a 1-2 mark.

Lions Over San Francisco

In the other Sunday contests, the Lions (0-3) are three-point picks against the San Francisco Forty-Niners (1-2) at Detroit; and the Giants 0-3) are six - point choices to defeat the Cardinals at New York.

Los Angeles is favored to make it four victories in a row although such Ram ball carriers as Tank Younger and Skeets Quinlan are injured.

The Bears are slight favorites to win their first 1955 game and avenge their 23-17 opening game loss to Baltimore. Cleveland is expected to avenge a 27-17 loss to Washington.

Detroit is favored over San Francisco. The Cardinals are underdogs at New York, although they have allowed only 41 points.

Maten Al Umpire

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UP)—"Maten al Umpire!"

That cry means "kill the umpire" in these parts and it also means the start of the Puerto Rican winter league baseball season tonight.

A sellout crowd of 12,000 is expected to shoehorn its way into Escobar Park to watch the defending champion Santuce club open against Caguas while another 10,000 fans are expected to see Mayaguez play host to San Juan.

Right-hander Ruben Gomez, who won 9 games and lost 10 for the New York Giants in the National League the past season, carries the hopes of the Santurce Crabs against fastballer Paul Stuffel, who will hurl for the Caguas Criollos.

The league, which boats such familiar major league names as Don Zimmer of the Dodgers, Faye Throneberry of the Red Sox, Vic Power of the Athletics, Roberto Clemente of the Pirates, Babe Birrer of the Tigers, Bob Thurman of the Redlegs and Ed Roebuck of the Dodgers among others, runs through early February with the winner slated to compete against winners from Cuba, Panama and Venezuela in the Caribbean League World Series.

Herman Franks, who served as a New York Giants' coach last season, will manage Santuce again while Mickey Owen, veteran coach of the Boston Red Sox, will lead Ponce.

Rangers Off To Fine Start

By UNITED PRESS

The New York Rangers, off to their finest start in 14 years, go after their third straight victory of he new Naional Hockey league season tonight when they meet the Canadiens at Montreal.

The Rangers have won only one game in the last five years at Montreal but, according to rookie coach Phil Watson, "This is a new and different club."

Reacting quickly to several strict training rules laid down by Watson, the Rangers won their NHL opener for the first time in eight years at Chicago and then defeated the Red Wings at Detroit, where they had failed to win once in seven appearance last year.

In other Saturday night games, the Boston Bruins visit Toronto and the Detroit Red Wings play at Chicago.

Civil Defense trucks and Coast Guard amphibious ducks evacuated residents of threatened homes at a number of New Jersey shore points.

Winds of 70 miles an hour lashed New York City late Friday, breaking a number of plate glass windows in downtown stores and toppling utility poles in the suburbs.

Races Called Off

The New York State Harness Racing Commission called off the trotting races at Yonkers Raceway because of the danger to spectators and drivers.

Some 5,000 customers of the New York State Electric and Gas Company of Elmira, N.Y., were without power for a time when wind toppled lines. Heavy rains, amounting to over five inches, sent rivers and streams out of their banks in the Elmira area.

Connecticut Civil Defense officials reported the heaviest damage was to the Milford area, just outside New Haven. Waves smashing 30 feet high across seawalls in the shore area did considerable damage to summer cottages and 300 residents had to be evacuated.

Little Danville And Powerful Evansville Reitz Are Sharing The Same Boat Today

By KURT FREUDENTHAL
United Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) — Little Danville and powerful Evansville Reitz shared the same boat today, both swept from the ranks of Indiana's perfect Indiana high school football clubs along with Indianapolis Howe, New Haven and Nappanee.

Danville's 17-game winning streak—the longest in the state—was hacked to smithereens by Mid-State Conference rival Brownsburg with unflinching finality—33-0.

Reitz, the No. 2 outfit in the United Press Coaches Poll, was dumped by unbeaten but once-tied city foe Central, ranked fifth, 28-7, in the top attraction Friday night.

Reitz won its first five games of the season with ease.

Undefeated Plymouth won a bruiser from mighty little Nappanee, 30-21, to gain its seventh victory and snap the losers' seven-game string. Howe's five-game skein went to pieces against cross-town rival Shortridge, 19-13, while New Haven, another five-game winner, was bumped by once-beaten Fort Wayne Concordia, 20-13. The victory gave the Summit City boys at least a tie for the Northeastern Conference title.

Five other members of the U.P. elite were victorious. Fourth-ranked South Bend Adams took a half-game lead over idle city foe Washington in the tight East NIHSC race, winning from LaPorte, 21-13. Sullivan's Western Conference leaders, in sixth place, shellacked Clinton, 35-7, Bobby Crick exploding for four touchdowns.

Kokomo, the No. 7 club, humiliated Alexandria, 75-19, in the biggest scoring splurge of the season although the scrubs played half the game. Logansport, like Kokomo of the North Central Conference, also took it out on a Central Conference member, running over Monticello, 41-0, Dave Loner contributing three tallies to the rout.

Marion's ninth-rated Giants blasted Frankfort, 34-6, to take over second place in the NCC behind Kokomo, as Anderson was upset by Lafayette, 13-12. Tenth-placed Boonville, finally, won from Marion, Ky., 27-13.

Central, which outplayed Reitz in all departments, paid dearly, however. John Goodley, its stellar quarterback, slipped and broke his right arm late in the fourth period and is lost for the rest of the season.

Fullback Roger Garrett and halfback Delbert Pace, who scored twice, helped Goodley engineer the victory.

Unbeaten but twice-tied Brownsburg threw up an eight-man line—and that stopped Danville's Jim Ware—the state's top scorer with 127 points. Danville gained just 66 yards rushing—65 by Ware—but never reached Brownsburg's 10-10-yard stripe. The Bulldogs, however, amassed 381 yards rushing and 100 yards passing. Tailback Tom Brunton and Bob Benge each scored twice.

There were heroes in the Plymouth-Nappanee battle, too. Nappanee fullback Rich Wright scored all three TDs and ran over an extra point to run his season total to 115, while Roy Grant racked up three tallies for the winners who made two quick fourth-period touchdowns to "ice" the game.

In other NCC games, Indianapolis Tech invaded martial law-controlled New Castle and came off with a 13-0 triumph, scoring twice in the last stanza. Half a dozen truckloads of National Guardsmen saw the game from the stands.

Froebel Upsets Emerson

Richmond's Mike Hoch scored three times in a 27-13 verdict over Muncie Central.

Also in the NIHSC, Gary Froebel upset city foe Emerson, 24-14, giving idle Western division leader East Chicago Roosevelt virtually a clear shot at the title. East Chicago Washington snapped a three-game losing string against Whiting, 26-0. In the eastern wing, Goshen blanked South Bend Riley, 6-0, and South Bend Central poured it on Mishawaka, 18-0.

Huntington remained undefeated in the CIC, scoring 20 points in the last period to take Rocester, 27-12.

Undefeated Seymour and Terre Haute Wiley coasted to easy victories. Seymour romped over Indianapolis Wood, 40-20, Bode Hill scoring thrice. Lloyd Robbs equalled the feat ii Wiley's 47-14 lacing of Bloomington.

Butler, Hall Debate Peace And Prosperity

In Preview Of Campaign Issues

By TOM NELSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—The chairmen of the Republican and Democratic national committees slugged it out verbally Friday night in a preview of 1956 campaign issues.

Republican Chairman Leonard W. Hall and Democratic Chairman Paul M. Butler locked horns in a debate centered around "peace and prosperity" before 1,600 members of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

Judging by the applause, the bout was a draw.

Butler, leading off 25 minutes of prepared statements and rebuttal by each opponent, accused the GOP of doing a "huckster job of selling peace."

The Democrats, he said, had not wanted to make foreign policy an issue in the coming presidential campaign, "but when the Republicans try to sell it as an exclusive Republican product, the Democrats have no choice but to meet this in rebuttal with facts."

For all practical pruposes, the war in Korea had stopped long before the truce, he said.

Hall countered that "peace and prosperity" was a factual accomplishment of the Eisennhower administration and added:

"I challenge any Democrat to show where we had prosperity under Democrats which was without war or preparation for war."

Besides, Hall said, Communist domination of many countries increased under the Democrats.

The chairmen also clashed on the issue of big business in government, farm policy, Geneva, and economic controls. Here's the box score:

Big Business

Butler: "The Eisenhower Cabinet is made up solely of representative of super big business. The stockholder is enjoying prosperity but the farmer isn't."

Hall: "Have we reached the point where success is a badge of dishonor? Actually the Democrats originated the idea of getting men from business to work as dollar-a-year men during the war."

Farm Policy

Butler: "All that Benson (Agribulture Secretary Ezra Benson; can say to offer spiritual comfort to farmers is that some action will be taken before prices fall further."

Hall: "All these things terrible in Mr. Butler's mind originated under a Democratic-passed farm law."

Geneva

Butler: "The Republicans were so eager to make Geneva look successful that they glossed over most of the real problems. Looking back, nearly everybody now agrees that all the peace publicity brought about a premature letdown among the Western powers, which have turned Geneva into their own success."

Hall: "No enemy is shooting at American boys now."

Economic Controls

Butler: Without them, "corporations and big business got the lion's share of the tax cut enacted by the 93rd Congress."

Hall: "We now have 65 million employed, factory wages higher. The American people like this climate of peace and prosperity."

Grain Futures Decline Sharply

CHICAGO (UP)—Grain futures declined sharply this week as selling in soybeans and rye brought liquidation in the entire list.

Prices turned lower Monday and continued the trend, closing weak on Friday.

Compared to Friday a week ago wheat ruled 1¾ to 3¼ cents a bushel lower; corn 3½ to 5⅛ lower; oats 1⅛ to 2 lower; rye 7½ to 10 lower; soybeans 10 to 13¾ lower; and lard 2 points lower to 2.05 cents a pound higher.

Selling hit soybeans and corn on Wednesday after the official government crop estimate put the expected harvest of both grains higher than private estimates. The government forecast a 1955 corn crop of 3,117,739,000 bushels and a soybean harvest of 374,816,000 bushels.

The declines in soybeans and corn also were attributed to favorable weather for harvesting. Traders expected increased arrivals of grains at terminal markets over the weekend.

Rye futures lost 5 cents Thursday and were off more than cents a bushel on Friday as renewed liquidation uncovered selling on stop-loss orders. The July contract traded at a new low for the season Friday.

The action in rye prompted selling in wheat.

Dealers said that hedge selling in corn reflected larger purchases on a to-arrive basis from the country. These purchases were estimated at 315,000 bushels, including 15,000 bushels of old corn.

Export news was disappointing all week, contributing to the lower futures tone.

Ike's Illness Affects Market

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor

Since President Eisenhower's illness the market has lost 42.77 points in the industrial average. It was down even further at the lows on Tuesday but rallied sharply since, notably Wednesday when industrials rose 6.99 points in the Dow-Jones average.

For the week, however, the industrial average closed at 444.68, off 9.73 points from last Friday's close. Rails were at 148.47, off 2.53; utilities 61.48, off 1.06; and 65 stocks 158.54, off 3.13.

At the lows on Tuesday, the market showed an overall loss in valuation of 17 billion dollars from Sept. 23. Since then it regained almost 520 billion dollars of the decline.

The Monday break, which amounted to 13.27 points in industrials and 4.63 points in rails, was the third Monday drop in a row. The first one came on Monday, Sept. 26, the first trading day after President Eisenhower's illness was announced. It was the widest decline since Oct. 28, 1929, also a Monday.

Keiser and others. In the Keiser drainage, the report of the engineer and viewers was confirmed on the modification that the lands of J. paul and Elsie E. Sattison be shown to be benefitted to the extent of 45 instead of 49 acres.

Congratulatory Greetings Swamp Miss Meredith

Deluged the past two days by congratulatory cards, greetings by telephone and in person, Miss Gertrude L. Meredith, today entered the newspaper office ready for "business as usual" though it was the day of her 50th anniversary as a newspaperwoman.

Nearly every United Press news subscribing paper in Hoosierdom has carried the story of Miss Meredith's newspaper record. Cards and notes have made up a gennerous portion of her mail, and she discovered on entering the newspaper office today that her desk had turned gold.

Her desk, typewriter table and chair were swathed in gold paper and from her typewriter floaded gold balloons. On the desk she found gold paper cups and napkins for her use whenever she takes a "coffee break."

Sunday she will be honored with a theatre party at "Holiday on Ice" at the Memorial Colisium in Fort Wayne. The newspaper staff will all be present and following the matinee will form a dinner party at the Hobby Ranch House.

Tommy Martz, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Martz, wants to know if Miss Meredith will skate on the ice.

Miss' Meredith's anniversary has even become the subject of poetry, today also being Poetry Day. Author is Foster W. Riddick, county treasurer, former editor of the Commercial-Mail. The verse is entitled "Congratulations to the Society Editor"

Oh, Gertie is the lucky girl;
  She sure is in the social whirl;
She samples foxy cake and punch
  At weddings and at many a lunch.
She writes about those fine collations,
  And parties for the rich relations.

But many a Sunday she has spent
  Describing brides accoutrement;
Of tulles and dress goods on the bias
  And all such duds that menfolks harass.
She well deserves to see a show
  With fancy skaters in a row.
  So happy anniversary, Gertie—
And congratulations after a busy
50 years of useful work in Columbia City. F.W.R.

Queen mother Eliabeth stayed home while her beautiful and headstrong daughter drove to Windsor. The queen mother had hurried to London from Scotland while her daughter the Queen delayed her return to leave Margaret free to act.

Townsend's mother, Mrs. Gladys Townsend, a 65-year-old widow, gave her blessing.

"Whatever happens in the future I hope with all my heart that both of them will be perfectly happy," she said. "That is a mother's wish."

The romance for the princess has been a rocky one. Since July, 1953, she and Townsend are known to have been in love, But they denied themselves public sight of each other and endured boiling gossip in silence.

Margaret, now 25, tried to go it alone. Townsend, now 41, was a divorced father of two sons — one half the age of the princess. He is a commoner. None of this really mattered except the divorce: Anglican Church law refuses to recognie remarriage of a divorced person while his former spouse still lives.

Unexpected Support Received

Unexpected support came today from the Manchester Guardian, one of the most influential newspapers in Britain. It said the couple should be allowed to marry even if by "remote chance" Townsend should one day sit beside the throne as consort to a British Queen.

Margaret is third in line to the throne after Prince Charles and Princess Anne and if she married Townsend she should have to renounce her rights to the throne. This, the Guardian said, is "nonsense."

Speaking of the Royal Marriage Act of 1772 which requires the Queen's permission to wed before the age of 25 and the implicit consent of Parliament, the Guardian said:

"To invoke any of this mumbo jumbo now would be ridiculous. Better to repeal the act straightaway as a matter of grace and fair play'.'

It took notice of the fact Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden, like Townsend, is the innocent party in a divorce and said:

"If we can have a prime minister, cabinet ministers and judges who are 'innocent parties' we can, without feeling unduly disturbed in our moral fibre, give the same latitude to the Queen's sister."

It was expected these considerations, along with the legal complexity of a royal marriage will get an airing when Eden meets his cabinet Tuesday for the first time in several weeks. He is meeting Queen Eliabeth II the same evening.

tal, and to top off his day, ate a slice of birthday cake for dinner.

Despite the increased activity, the President was reported to have taken the day in stride. His doctors reported in their final medical bulletin at 8:30 p.m. EDT Friday:

"The President's condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications. For luncheon, he had trout, baked potato, yellow wax beans, sliced tomato salad, whole wheat toast, fresh fruit cup and a glass of skimmed milk.

"Mrs. Eisenhower joined the President at lunch and read him birthday greetings from all over the world. The President then spent a quiet afternoon."

The President was in what his doctors called a "happy birthday mood." For the first time, they reported that his "cardiogram has stabilized at a satisfactory level."

In Boston, a spokesman for Dr. Paul Dudley White, the famous heart expert who is keeping in daily contact with the case, said the stabilization is normal, in line with gradual recovery.

Flood Waters In Northeast Begin To Recede; Death Toll Mounting

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—Flood waters rolled up a toll of 46 dead and half a billion dollars damage today in seven states before the great wall of death and destruction began to fall back.

The disaster, the second to strike the New England area since August, wiped out thousands of homes, sent countless persons fleeing to high ground and shelter, immobilized dozens of factories, and cut off food and water supplies to scores of communities.

The people of seven states suffered through this second flood. Some of them went through an encore of the frantic rush for safety as they had last August. They left behind the few possessions they had accumulated since Hurricane Diane dumped tons of water upon them then.

Their reaction was summed up by Mayor William Sheasby of Ansonia, Conn., who asked: "How much can our people take?"

Connecticut, which bore the brunt of the earlier floods, was the hardest hit. But New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New Hamphire, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island, also were affected.

In Connecticut the death toll was 22, New York counted 10 dead, New Jersey 4, Pennsylvania 4, Massachusetts 2, Rhode Island 3, and one person died in Maine.

Peterson Flies East

Val Peterson, National Civil Defense Administrator, flew East from San Francisco today to take personal charge of rehabilitation and rescue operations and to survey the damage.

President Eisenhower, recuperating from a heart attack at the Fitzsimons Army Hospital in Denver, maintained constant contact with the flood areas. He made it clear that flood states would be

America's Top Defense Heads Fly To Denver

Will Brief President On Developments

BBy MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP)—America's two top defense officials flew today to Denver to bring President Eisenhower up to date on defense developments since he was hospitalized by a heart attack.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were scheduled to arrive this afternoon.

The first medical bulletin of the day from Fitzsimons hospital said at 7 a.m. MST (8 a.m. CST) that the President awoke feeling refreshed and cheerful after a "good, sound" night's sleep of more than eight hours, and that his condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications.

Wilson and Radford will see the President shortly thereafter, but it depends upon his doctors whether it is before or after lunch.

Presiden Eisenhower was reported to be looking forward to the important defense conference with Wilson and Radford at Fitzsimons Army Hospital.

The Wilson and Radford conferences will be followed by conferences Wednesday with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles

Attlee Seems To Have Decided To Give Up 20-Year Leadership Of British Labor Party

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

"Dear old Clem" Attlee seems to have made up his mind to give up his 20-year leadership of the British Labor Party.

There are reports from London that the modest, colorless little man who became a Socialist by accident back in 1910 will announce his retirement when Parliament meets next week.

In any event there seems no doubt that he has decided to go. It is expected that, when he does, he will give up his seat in the House of Commons too, perhaps to become a peer and enter the House of Lords.

Attlee is 72. He suffered a heart attack last summer. He is tired out after years of riding herd on the highly undisciplined Labor Party, chronically torn by dissension.

It is expected that aggressive, shrewd Herbert Morrison, now deputy leader, will step into Attlee's job.

Gaiskell Rising Fast

But Morrison is 67. It is being predicted that he will act only as a place-holder for Hugh Gaitskeil, the 49-year-old party treasurer. He is the up-and-coming man.

They call Attlee a mousy, uninspiring man and a political accident. But he has proved himself a man of parts.

Clement Richard Attlee was not born into the Labor Party level of British society.

The son of a lawyer, he went to an expensive "public school" and to Oxford University. He came out a Conservative and an imperialist.

But it happened that a settlement house in London's East End needed a secretary and Attlee was looking for a job. Few Britons of Attlee's background ever even get to the East End. He saw for the first time the bitter, grinding poverty in which so many of his fel-

44,000 Workers Go On Strike At Westinghouse

Strike Affects 29 Plants And 105,000 Workers

PITTSBURGH (UP) —Some 44,000 CIO electrical workers went on strike at 29 Westinghouse Electric Corp. plants today, but the company declared it had made is "final proposal" in the wage contract dispute.

Robert D. Blasier, Westinghouse vice president in charge of industrial relations, rejected arbitration as a means of settling the dispute and said no further meetings had been scheduled in negotiations which broke off at 1:30 a.m. EDT.

The strike, which began at midnight, was the second in a month by the International Union of Electrical Workers. It idled more than half of 56 Westinghouse installations, which employ 105,000 production workers.

Blasier said "the principal issue is length of contract." The IUE, seeking a 15-cents-an-hour boost in a one-year pact, has rejected a Westinghouse proposal for a five-year contract with wage increases totaling 23* cents spread over the entire period. Other kye issues were the amount of the wage increase and company time studies of workers on day-rate jobs.

Federal mediators kept plugging away in an effort to restart the stalled negotiations, but Federal Commissioner J.A. Moran said the immediate outlook was "bleak."

In an effort to reach a settlement before the strike deadline, Westinghouse offered to make improvements in a separate pension agreement not up for bargaining at this time, but this was rejected along with a series of accompanying proposed contract changes.

The company is carrying on simultaneous but separate negotiations with both unions and with the independent Unied Elecrical Workers, which represents 11,000 Westinghouse employes, and the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, representing 8,000 others.

France Installs Four-Man Throne Council In Rabat

To Form Representative Moroccan Government

RABAT, Morocco (UP)—France installed four white-hooded Moroccan leaders as a throne council today in a move that pleased neither the nationalists nor the diehard French settlers who warned of violence to come.

The throne council promised a new and democratic era for the terror-ridden protectorate and said its first task would be to form a representative government to define the permanent links between France and Morocco.

While the 108-year-old grand vizier of Morocco was reading the proclamation in the imperial palace's Hall of the Viziers, acts of terrorism were reported throughout Morocco. And Frenchmen and Moslems still were killing each other in the Riff Mountains.

Installation of the throne council was a major move by Premier Edgar Faure to save his government in the bitter National Assembly debate at home which comes to a climax Tuesday afternoon when Faure has posed a vote of confidence.

The North African situation was snarled further by a quarrel with Spain and a flat charge by Resident General Pierre Boyer de Latour that French troops were fired on last week from Spanish Morocco and that Spanish denials that Riff terrorists have come from the Spanish zone go "against the facts."

But Faure was pinning hope of bringing peace to the Moroccan protectorate on the throne council which will replace two rival sultans ousted by the French — Sidi Mohammed ben Youssef two years ago and Sidi Mohammed ben Moulay Arafa two weeks ago.

A warning of French trouble came from the extreme right-wing movement of French settlers who claim the throne council is illegal and that only bloodshed can result.

And formation of the council brought a howl of protest from the nationalists who said inclusion of a fourth man would weigh the scales in favor of the French settlers. Originally Faure planned a three-man council and this had nationalist backing.

2 Accidents On Road 9, Drivers' Injuries Minor

Battle Creek Man Thrown From Car; Dalton Surfus Hurt

State Road 9 north of Columbia City was the scene of two accidents over the weekend. While extensive damage resulted to the vehicles involved, none of the drivers or passengers in the cars suffered serious injury.

At Harshbarger Curve

The first accident was at the north end of the Harshbarger curve less than three miles north of here This occurred at 8:30 p.m. Saturday when James L. Huestis, 56 of 172 Upton Ave., Battle Creek, Mich., was thrown out of his 1946 DeSoto coupe which was southbound.

The Michigan driver during the rain, allowed his right wheels to drop to the berm and in trying to regain the pavement he lost control of the auto. It went down an embankment and the left rear portion of the car hit a culbert. The car was spun around, throwing Mr Huestis out. He was taken to the Whitley County Hospital where it was determined that his left ear was injured, the top portion of the ear being cut and bruised.

Damage to his car was total according to State Policeman Norman Pierce of Columbia City, who investigated the crash.

Headon Collision

In the accident at 5:15 p.m. Sunday five miles north on Road 9 Dalton D. Surfus, 56, Columbia City R 6, suffered a laceration to the upper lip when his northbound 1955 Chevrolet was struck headon by the southbound 1953 DeSoto sedan operated by Mrs. Anita J Aburn, 34, of South Whitley. With Mrs. Aburn were her son and daughter. None in her car was hurt.

According to State Policeman Pierce, who was called to the scene of the accident, Mrs. Aburn was approaching the crest of a hill when she saw a northbound truck making a right turn. She thought the truck was on her side of the road and pulled her car to the right and in doing so slid off the wet highway. Regaining the highway her car went to the left and struck the northbound vehicle operated by Surfus. Her car then went off the road on the east side.

Damage to Mrs. Aburn's car was estimated at $400 while repairs to Surfus' car are expected to total

Sentences Are Suspended For Mailbox Tilters

3 Youths Forfeit Drivers' Lincenses; Must Repair Damage

A suspended one year's sentence at the Indiana state farm and a fine of $10 were received here Saturday by Ed Strack, 20, Allen county, while similar sentences were imposed upon his two juvenile companions, when Strack pleaded guilty to malicious trespass in the damaging and destruction of mailboxes in rural areas east of here.

Strack and the two younger youths pleaded guilty. In the case of the juveniles, their sentences are to the Indiana State Boys' school, but have been suspended by the court pending their good behavior and other conditions These conditions include co-operation with each other in replacing the mailboxes or paying for the damage within 10 days, co-operation with the sheriffs offices in Whitley and Allen counties in the matter of highway signs which they damaged, and complying with orders of the probation officer.

All of the youths, owners of automobiles, were ordered by Judge Lowell Pefley to surrender their driver's licenses to Probation Officer Nellie A. Underhill. Their driving privileges will be suspended until such a time as the probation officer deems fit to restore them.

Is Federal Offense

At the same time Strack and his companions were pleading guilty in the local court, the district attorney's office at Fort Wayne announced that due to the increase of vandalism against rural mailboxes in the area, prosecution under federal statutes will result. Some 60 rural mailboxes have been damaged or demolished in recent days in Whitley Allen, and nearby counties.

District Attorney Phil M. McNagny has pointed out that federal laws provide a penalty of $1,000 fine and three years in prison for anyone convicted of maliciously injuring, tearing down or destroying boxes for the receipt or delivery of mail. The matter of mailbox vandalism was brought to the district attorney's attention by R. E Biteman of Fort Wayne, postal inspector.

Will Reduce The Number Of Men At Hagerstown

No Change In Military Rule At New Castle

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Martial law was ordered lifted today in the Richmond area which Governor Craig placed under military control a week ago today because of strike violence at the Perfect Circle Corp.

Craig announced after a late-morning conference with Indiana National Guard officers he would end military control in a triangular area at Richmond, where two of the plants are located, and reduce the number of troops at Hagersown, where the headquarters plant of the piston ring firm is situated.

The governor made no change in military rule at New Castle, where a gun battle Oct. 5 wounded nine persons and brought modified martial law which Craig replaced with full martial law in a sweeping order Oct. 10.

Craig said he acted after receiving "some indication of an increased desire on the part of management and labor to negotiate their differences."

The Richmond martial law will be lifted as soon as Atty. Gen. Ed-

REMEMBER....
YOU'RE THE BOSS!

There's a little piece of a sentence in the Declaration of Independence that invites you to throw your weight around whenever you feel like it. It says that in America government derives its "just powers from the consent of the governed."

That little phrase means, Mr. and Mrs. citizen, that you're the boss. You're the one who hires or fires the President, governor, senator, mayor or trustee. You're the one who approves what they're going to do and raise Old Ned when it isn't done on time or costs too much.

Being a boss isn't easy. The responsibility never stops from the time you're 21 until the doctor says, "Call the mortuary." There's no time card or four o'clock whistle to the job of being an American Citizen. But the pay's good. You get paid off in real freedom and the highest living standard the world has ever known.

The help you hire may work out fine. In that case you probably want to renew their contracts. But again, if the hired help falls down on the job, it's up to you to clean up the mess and hire someone else. No one else can help you.. it's your show....your business.... your town. D.E.G

Government Warns Supporters Of Peron

BUENOS AIRES (UP) — The government, using troops to back up its words, warned supporters of Juan D. Peron today against any violence on this 10th anniversary of the revolt which confirmed the ousted dictator in power.

Soldiers were stationed at key points throughout the nation to keep order among still militant peronistas.

Oct. 17 was a holiday while Peron was in power but the revolutionary government decreed that from now on it will be just another working day.

Reuther Wants 30-Hour Work Week

WASHINGTON (UP)—CIO President Walter Reuther called for a 30-hour work week today in an eight-point program designed to cope with the "second industrial revolution."

As "cushions" to meet the age of automation, Reuther also called for a rapid increase in consumer buying power; an earlier retirement age, and improved social welfare services.

He gave his views in testimony before the subcommittee on economic Report.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Wright Patman (D-Tex), is holding hearings on the new industrial techniques of automation, the replacing of man by machine.

Reuther's program also called for aid to small businness; the retraining of workers affected by automation; aid to communities affected by the new technology; and corporate price policies designed to help consumers enjoy the benefits of rising productivity.

Tack a New Room Onto Your House

Only three hours time and $11.50 built this extra winter room

Hundreds of home owners are discovering an easy, low cost way of turning cold windswept porches and breezeways into warm extra rooms that can be used all winter long.

A pair of scissors, hammer, tacks, molding strips and a roll of crystal-clear Flex-O-Glass, is all that it takes to make this extra room of plastic.

If your porch happens to have screens, leave them up. Just cut to size and tack it right over them. Otherwise, simply tack the shatterproof plastic between uprights. When spring comes, take it down and store it away to be used next season. It's guaranteed two years.

A porch enclosed with this crystal-clear plastic, at a fraction of the cost of common glass, is especially valuable as a children's playroom because Flex-O-Glass is unbreakable and lets in Sunshine Vitamin D (Ultra-Violet Rays) which common glass filters out. Local dealers here carry Flex-O-Glass in rolls.

All Facing Jury Duty To Get Bar Association Book

A new handbook prepared by the Indiana State Bar association explaining the duties of jurors will be presented to each prospective juror in the Whitley circuit court, according to the plan of Judge Lowell Pefley.

This handbook is available also to high schools for students of civics, American problems, and related courses. The Indiana State Bar association is urging all Indiana courses to adopt the use of the manual, according to the association president, Thomas M. Scalon, Indianapolis.

The handbook relates the part of the juror in administering justice. It deals with both civil and criminal cases, how juries are selected, one part is devoted to the conduct of jurors. Rules and instructions of the court are discussed and other sections are devoted to evidence and its presentation, trial procedure and jury deliberations.

Legal words and phrases are included in a handy reference section while a summary and conclusion includes a creed for jurors to follow.

Actor Clark Gable Expects To Be A Father Next May

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Film star Clark Gable, childless in four marriages, expects to be a father next May.

A week ago the 54-year-old actor, for two decades one of the nation's top matinee idols, denied that his wife was pregnant. Mrs. Gable, the former Kay Williams Spreckels, said they learned from her doctor on Friday that she is expecting a baby. The child will be delivered by Caesarean section in late May, she said.

She has a son Adolph, 5, and a daughter, Joan, 4, by her third husband, sugar heir Adolph Spreckels.

Mrs. Gable said she had hoped to keep her pregnancy secret for a while but the actor "spilled it to everybody" at a party Saturday night.

The couple was married last July 11 in Minden, Nev. when they returned to Gabie's Encino Ranch after a brief honeymoon, the couple told newsmen that they both wanted to have children.

Enjoined From Disturbing Sewer

A temporary injunction restraining Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Weber, 205 Chicago street, from cutting, obstructing, or interfering with maintenance of a private sewer which crosses the southwest corner of their lot, was granted in circuit court late Friday upon the petition of Mr and Mrs. Clark Cleland, owners of the adjoining lot. Hearing upon the restraining order is set for Oct. 18. C. W. H. Bangs is the attorney for the Clelands.

The Clelands allege that a sewer built about 48 years ago on the lot they now own, crosses the corner of the Weber lot, that the sewer is owned by the Clelands with easement rights to the adjoining lot for repair of the drain, but that about Sept. 14 the Webers informed them they intended to interfere with the sewer so as to prevent the Clelands from using it.

Hurricane Katie Threatens South Coast Lowlanders

MIAMI (UP)—Hurricane Katie hurled winds of 115 miles per hour upon the Dominican Republic with only a few hours warning today, threatening southern coast lowlanders with flooding rains and dangerous tides.

The small but vicious new hurricane, 11th tropical whirler of the year, was first spotted by reconnaissance aircraft Sunday afternoon and by midnight EDT slammed full upon the hastily alerted country coastal residents were urged to flee inland.

The San Juan, P. R., Weather Bureau said the hurricane would lose much of its strength among the 10,000-foot peaks in the interior but probably would regain full force over the open Atlantic. Katie was expected to cross the island by noon EDT.

The indicated course was directed away from the U.S. mainland with Bermuda, hundreds of miles ahead, the only other landfall near its path.

Jet Airliner Sets Unofficial Record

WASHINGTON (UP) —A forerunner of jet airliners that will be in commercial service in 1958 zoomed across the country Sunday in 3 hours, 58 minutes to set an unofficial record for transport planes.

The four-engine Boeign Jet 707 transport flew 2,340 miles from Seattle, Wash., to nearby Andrews, Md., Air Force Base at an average speed of 592 miles an hour.

It slashed the cross-country time of present commercial airliners by more than half. The best time racked up by propeller driven planes on the trans - continental flight from Los Angeles to New York is about eight hours.

Pan American World Airways ordered 20 of the swept-wing jet-propelled Boeings and 25 Douglas DC8s last week at a total cost of 269 million dollars. The first of the planes, carrying from 104 to 125 passengers, are scheduled to go into service in 1958.

National Income Jumps To Record Annual Rate

WASHINGTON (UP) — The national income jumped to a record annual rate of 321-billion dollars during April, May and June, the Commerce Department reports.

This was well above the previous high of $303,600,000,000 set in 1953 and was up nine-billion dollars from the first three months of this year, the department said.

In another report, the Securities Exchange Commission announced that the working capital of U.S. corporations reached a record total of $100,600,000,000 on June 30 a gain of $2,500,000,000 in the April-May-June period.

The Commerce Department report, covering wages, rents, interest and profits, showed that all segments of the economy, except farming, shared in the general prosperity.

Farm income declined about 50 million dollars to a mid-year annual rate of 11-billion dollars. Unless there is an abrupt change during the rest of this year, farm income in 1955 will hit its lowest point since World War II.

The department said high profits and income from all other sources is part of a continuing "broad expansionary trend" in the nation's economy.

The Commerce Department said income from wages and salaries increased $6,400,000,000 in the second quarter to a record annual rate of $219,500,00,. The previous record was $209,200,000,000 in 1953.

Corporate profits before taxes climbed $2,100,000,000 to a mid-year annual rate of 43-billion-dollars, also a new record.

Major Woodfill To Be Reburied In Arlington

WASHINGTON (UP)—Maj. Sam Woodfill, the hero a nation almost forgot, will be reburied in Arlington Cemetery with the full military honors due him.

Woodfill, called the greatest hero of World War I, died four years ago. His funeral in Madison, Ind., went almost unnoticed by the world and reburial in Arlington's hallowed soil was decided upon only after his fellow townspeople asked the Defense Department to help pay for a larger monument over his grave.

Woodfill's recognition as a hero also was belated. It wasn't until 1921 that many persons in the United States heard of him. Gen. John J. Pershing came across his record while sifting through War Department files. He publicly proclaimed Woodfill, who killed 19 Germans in one day, first among America's heroes of World War I.

An earlier award of the Medal of Honor to Woodfill scarcely had been noted by the public during the turbulent days immediately after World War I.

Woodfill's new grave was dug on the tree-shaded slopes of Pershing Hill near the grave of his former AEF commander.

agent of Tippecanoe county, was a member of the Purdue University staff in the animal husbandry department, and for the past 25 years has been associated with Allied Mills where he advanced to the office of district sales manager. He will be retired in the near future.

The speaker explained his stand from the outset when he declared that "a man can have no nobler calling than to be a producer of livestock." He said a person must have a love and an understanding of animals or he had better not try to raise them.

He mentioned the financial challenge to the livestock producer and emphasized the vital matters of proper selection of foundation animals and the proper handling of grass pasture. The responsibility of a livestock producer is the selection of animals that can be sold to the farmer who turns his corn into meat through these animals and make a financial gain. These animals must also produce the kind of meat which consumers demand.

Cooperation and the exchange of ideas among breeders is always good, and Mr. Kreuck congratulated the county Anus breeders for possessing that trait in its organization.

Veterans Again Are Notified Free Permits Were Voided In 1955

Veterans of the various wars and other ex-service men were again today advised by County Clerk Kenneth Nichols that the free fishing and hunting licenses which had been granted them upon discharge from the service, were voided this year by legislative act.

This was in response to continued inquiries made of the county clerk, fish and game wardens, and other public officials.

To hunt or fish veterans must now purchase 1955 licenses the same as non-veterans. These are sold by the county clerk and by numerous sporting goods stores and businessmen in the lake areas.

Try To Trace Cars Seen Near Weitkamp Home

CRANE Ind. (UP) Authorities today tried to trace two cars seen near the home of 3-year-old Ronnie Weitkamp when the tow-headed youngster vanished from his home nearly a week ago.

Cmdr. Richard Turner of the Naval Ammunition Depot where Ronnie's father is a civilian employe said there were "suspicions associated" with the cars, and license plates would be checked.

Turner also said the FBI was asked to make inquiries in two "distant cities" where adults were seen in the company of a child. But he said "things are quieting down too much—we just haven't very much to work on."

Failure of an exhaustive search made authorities nearly certain Ronnie was taken from the area.

All Drinking Done On West Side Of Town Of Shirley

SHIRLEY, Ind. (UP)—All the drinking in Shirley is done on the west side of town.

That's because if you take a half dozen strides across Main Street, you're under military rule and all bars are closed.

This town of 1,087 has always been split in two by a county line. The division began to hurt last week when martial law was declared in the aftermath of a riot at the nearby New Castle, Ind., Perfect Circle Corp. foundry, where nine persons were wounded, eight of them shot.

National Guard officers who took Henry County. That took in about one-fourth of Shirley, the area east over enforcement of the law ruled all liquor outlets must close in Henry county.

Neighbors across the street — on the west side of Main—live in Hancock County, which was not affected by the martial law.

The alcoholic beverage order forced one of Shirley's two taverns to close. Its competitor, two blocks up—and across—the street, is enjoying a booming business. The loser in all this was L. C. Millikan, owner of the South End Tavern. Millkan, his two bartenders, and a waiter were tossed out of work and have nothing to do until guardsmen lift the ban or leave the county, perhaps in mid-November.

"I don't think it's justified, but there's not a thing I can do about it," said Millikan. "I told the guard it wasn't right to make me close when there is a bar open across the street, but it was no go."

The lucky tavern owner, Melvin Phillips, reported:

"We've probably just about doubled our business this past week.

First Steps Planned

Mr. Eisenhower's doctors planned to let him sit up more and more this week and probably begin taking his first steps next week, if his recovery continues on schedule.

Sturdy medical corpsmen lifted him from his bed to an easy chair for 15 minutes Saturday and for 30 minutes Sunday.

The President was greatly pleased to be out of his bed, even for brief periods. He also continued to enjoy his daily outings on the sun decks near his eighth floor room at Fitzsimons.

Mr. Eisenhower, jovial in bright yellow pajamas and a jaunty blue-and-red polka dot bow tie, was described as "having fun with his visitors" Sunday as he sat up in the big, brown-upholstered easy chair in his room.

Told Of Flood

He was visited first by Mrs. Eisenhower and Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey and later by Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams. Adams brought the President up to date on the latest flood disaster in the northeastern state and relayed the President's sympathies to the victims.

The temporary White House said the President would continue to keep in touch with reports and developments on the flood situation.

The temporary White House said there is "nothing urgent" in Dulles' return visit. Mr. Eisenhower conferred with the secretary here Tuesday.

Mr. Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty said Dulles wants to talk with the Chief Executive before his meeting in Washington Thursday with congressional leaders of both parties and his departure Saturday for the Big Four foreign ministers meeting in Geneva.

Wave Of Upsets Swamps Many Big-Name Teams, Changes College Football Landscape

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

A flood of weekend upsets which washed away many "big name" teams, including four of the nation's top ten, changed the college football landscape considerably today and even promised to affect the national rankings.

Although the nation's first three-ranked teams — Michigan, Maryland and Oklahoma—all survived during the weekend, four other powers — Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Texas Christian and Wisconsin—all went down to defeat.

Mighty Michigan, the No. 1 team in the country which goes gunning for its fifth straight victory of the season against Minnesota next Saturday, hurdled stubborn Northwestern, 14-2, last Saturday, while second-ranked Maryland defeated North Carolina, 25-7, and third-ranked Oklahoma clicked off its 23rd victory in a row by crushing Kansas, 44-6.

Southern California began the sudden storm of upsets by toppling eighth-ranked Wisconsin, 33-21, Friday night and all during Saturday form wasn't worth a nickel.

Michigan State Victorious

With a huge chunk of the country's football fans looking on Michigan State licked fourth-ranked Notre Dame, 21-7, in the television game of the week. Auburn followed the pattern and moved to the top of the Southeastern conference race by upsetting fifth-ranked Georgia Tech, 14-12, and Texas A&M, a 10-point underdog, beat sixth-ranked Texas Christian, 19-16.

Ol' Man Upset was no respector of regions, either.

At Seattle, Wash., for example Baylor defeated 12th ranked Washington, 13-7, and at West Point, N. Y., Syracuse white-washed 13th-ranked Army, 13-0. Southern Methodist beat 14th-ranked Rice, 20-0.

All other teams ranked among the first 15 in the nation came through unscathed although some had close calls.

UCLA, the seventh-ranked team, defeated Stanford, 21-13; ninth-ranked Navy, although scored upon for the first time, defeated Penn State, 34-14, and 10th-ranked Duke got by Ohio State, 20-14.

West Virginia, the 15th-ranked team, defeated William and Mary 39-13.

Mud-Soaked Fields

In the East, where virtually every game was played on a mud-soaked field due to heavy rain, Yale rolled over Cornell, 34-6; Harvard won its first game in history at Baker Field by beating Columbia, 21-7; Pittsburgh topped Nebraska, 21-7; Lafayette licked Dartmout, 21-13; George Washington clipped luckless Pennsylvania, 25-6, and Rutgers nipped Brown, 14-12.

Illinois downed Minnesota, 21-13, and Iowa played a 20-20 tie with Purdue in a pair of Big Ten contests while elsewhere in the Midwest, Indiana beat Villanova, 14-7, Iowa State defeated Missouri, 20 14, and Cincinnati shaded Marquette, 13-12.

Other scores by sections:

South: Virginia Tech 7 Richmond 7, Virginia 20 VMI 13, Florida 18 Louisiana State 14, Mississippi 27 Tulane 13.

Southwest: Arkansas 27 Texas 20, Houston 21 Oklahoma A&M 13, San Jose State 14 New Mexico 0.

West: Colorado 34 Kansas State 13, Wyoming 23 Tulsa 19, Utah State 32 Montana 6, Montana State 29 Colorado State 7, College of Pacific 13 Oregon 7

Anderson Keeps Title Of Strongest Man In The World

MUNICH, Germany (UP)—Paul Anderson, the 22-year-old Toccoa, Ga., Hercules, kept the "strongest man in the world" title in the U.S. today even though Russia won the international weight-lifting crown for the second straight year.

Anderson set a new world record by lifting a total of 1,127½ pounds in the heavyweight division Sunday but even with that victory, the U.S. won only three gold medals while the Soviets copped four.

The other two American winners were Tommy Kono of Sacramento, Calif., who won the light heavyweight title by lifting 957 pounds, and Pete George of Akron, Ohio, who captured the middleweight crown by lifting a total of 891 pounds.

By lifting a world record 408 pounds in the two arm press, 319 pounds in the snatch and 400½ pounds in the clean and jerk, the 342-pound Anderson erased the previous world record total of 1,072 pounds lifted by Norbert Shemansky of Detroit, the 1954 titlist who did not compete this year.

Jim Bradford of York, Pa., was runnerup to Anderson in the heavyweight class with a total of 1,045 pounds lifted.

The Russians, realizing they had no one to compete with Anderson, did not enter the competition in the heavyweight division, while he Americans did not compete in the featherweight and lightweight classes.

Russia, which also edged the U.S., four titles to three in the 1954 world championships at Vienna, won the 1955 world crown with 29 points. The U.S. was second with 25 points and Egypt third with four points.

1956 De Soto

Nothing in the Arabian Nights is half so exciting as the new 1956 De Soto. Out Wednesday October 19, at your De Soto Dealers. Don't miss it!

COMING . . . OCT. 19

The 1956 De Soto two-door Fireflite Sportsman hardtop takes on new length and thrusting grace with its restyled color sweep and upswept rear fenders. This very popular model last year is expected to reach new peaks of public preference—as well as in performance with its 255 h.p. power plant. The entirely new front end, including a striking perforated mesh grille and built-in parking lights, and new rear fenders with built-in turreted taillight assembly, are but a few of the two dozen improvements in the thoroughly changed new line.

State Football Followers Applaud Dawson's Arrival

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Indiana College football followers today applauded the "arrival' of Purdue's Len (The Arm) Dawson and a revitalized DePauw scoring machine.

But Notre Dame's 21-7 loss at Michigan State Saturday left the state without an unbeaten outfit.

Dawson, the nation's leading passer as a sophomore last year hurt in pre-season drills, fired three touchdown tossse, the last one with just four seconds to go, and booted the extra point after the clock had run out to salvage a 20-20 Big Ten deadlock at Iowa. This Saturday he'll hook up wih Notre Dame's Paul Hornung in another aerial duel before a sell-out crowd of more than 55,000 at Lafayette.

DePauw Thumps Valpo

DePauw, which earlier this month snapped a 22-game victory drought, made it three in a row with a resounding 40-20 win over defending Indiana Collegiate Conference champ Valparaiso, Art Bryant smashing for three tallies.

St. Joseph's, meanwhile, moved a step closer to the ICC title, taking Butler, 28-13, for its fourth straight league win. Ralph Tite plunged for three TDs to lead the Pumas.

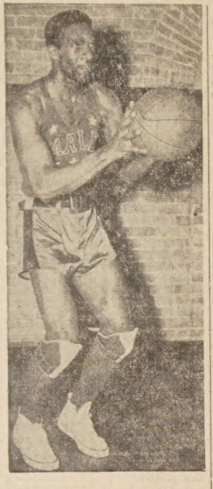
And Indiana Central, shooting for its third straight Hoosier College Conference crown, got some unexpected help when Manchester eked out a 21-20 win over Hanover, Ed Consolo scoring all three TDs, and Anderson tripped Earlham, 21-14. Central's Greyhounds, whose 13-game winning streak was snapped by Ashland, Ohio last year, bounced the Buckeye Staters, 32-21.

Indiana, which clipped a four-game losing streak at the expense of hapless Villanova, 14-7, rejoins Big Ten warfare at Northwestern this week. ICC games have Valparaiso at Ball State, DePauw at Butler and St. Joseph's at Evansville.

In the HCC, Manchester is at Anderson, Earlham at Taylor and Hanover at Indiana Central. A victory would "ice" the title for the Indianapolis club.

Also last Saturday, Franklin downed HCC foe Taylor, 21,14 Ball State took an ICC game from Indiana State, 19-6, while Wabash and Evansville split against out-of-state competition. Wabash dumped Ohio Wesleyan, 27-14, but Evansville was drubbed by Louisville, 29-7.

Indiana State and Rose Poly travel to Eastern Illinois and Illinois College Saturday, respectively. Franklin entertains Eureka of Illinois while Wabash welcomes University of the South, Tenn.



BASKETBALL MAGICIAN — Elmer Robinson, veteran member of the Harlem Globetrotters, is one of the players responsible for the world-wide reputation gained by the colorful team that will stage its big double-header and vaudeville program at Memorial Coliseum in Fort Wayne Wednesday night, Oct. 26. It will be the only Fort Wayne appearance for the 'Trotters this season.

Robinson keynotes some of the fancy ball-handling tricks by the spectacular 'Trotters.

Towne-Savage 10-Rounder Tonight

NEW YOR K(UP)—Artie Towne, the "Hooded Terror," will be unveiled at St. Nicholas Arena tonight for a 10-round television fight with Milo Savage of Salt Lake City, sixth-ranking middleweight contender.

British writers called Towne the "Hooded Terror" this year because he flattened Scotch champion Willie Armstrong at 1:52 of the first round and British Empire champion Johnny Sullivan at 43 seconds of the first. Also because he wears a black fur hood into the ring before disrobing.

Towne, 28, is a New York Negro who returned to the ring early in 1955 after a three-year retirement, caused by the unwillingness of worthwhile opponents to meet him. To earn a living for his wife and two children he went to work on his father's rubbish truck.

Since his return to the ring this year, Towne won seven straight fights and had a no-decision affair in Germany.

Despite his comeback prowess, Towne is a 7-5 underdog for tonight's TV fight with slugger Savage of Utah. Muscular Milo, 29, is favored because of his performances in nine fights against tough American opponents this year.

Towne's total record is more impressive than Milo's. Artie's figures are: 78-12-1 (plus one no contest and one no decision). He knocked out 37 of his 93 opponents and was stopped three times.

Savage's 37-32-8 record includes but 19 knockouts. He was stopped once.

Three teams are unbeaten in the CIC, and Huntington and Plymouth are two with a clean loop slate.

Huntington holds a two won-two lost-one tied record for the season, while the Eagles are still loking for a victory after six games.

Tom Hummer, halfback, and Lee Baker, fullback, are the two consistent Viking scoring threats.

Montreal Canadiens Are Still Unbeaten

By UNITED PRESS

The Montreal Canadiens, taking advantage of Detroit's early-season slump, were still unbeaten after the first five games in the National Hockey League season today and owned a four-point lead over the field in the bargain.

The Canadiens battled to a 2-2 tie with the Chicago Black Hawks Sunday night — gaining the equalizer on Maurice Richard's fifth goal of the season and 427th of his career. The Hawks had taken a 2-1 advantage earlier in the third period on a goal by Nick Mickoski.

The Boston Bruins moved into a second-place tie with the Black Hawks, downing the New York Rangers, 4-1, while the Red Wings took advantage of a porous Toronto defense for an easy 6-0 win over the Leafs in other games.

Detroit and New York are tied for third place, five points back of Montreal, while Toronto is last another point farther back.

Four Top Teams In NFL Separated By Only One Game

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press Sports Writer

The four top teams in the National Football League's Western Division are separated by only one game today — mainly because of a last-minute field goal, quick thinking on a fumble and the running of a rookie halfback.

The Green Bay Packers, Los Angeles Rams and Baltimore Colts are tied for the lead with 3-1 records and the San Francisco Forty-Niners are close behind with a 2-2 mark.

The champion Cleveland Browns and Pittsburgh Steelers are deadlocked for the Eastern Division lead with 3-1 records. But the weekend action produced the most stirring play in the Western race as three more upsets struck the scrambled pro circuit.

Fullback Fred Cone's 25-yard field goal with only 24 seconds to go enabled Green Bay to defeat favored Los Angeles, 30-28, and climb back into a first place tie with the Rams and Colts. Halfback Jim Cason's 25-yard sprint with an intercepted pass had given the Rams a 28-27 lead with four minutes to go.

First Loss By Rams

While the Rams suffered their first loss before 26,960 rain-soaked Milwaukee fans, the Bears whipped Baltimore — the only other previously-undefeated team — 38-10. Rick Casares, a rookie halfback, scored twice for the Bears. His 81-yard run—the longest scoring dash of the 1955 NFL season — helped the Bears (1-3) break open the game in the second quarter en-route to their first triumph.

Quarterback Y. A. Tittle furnished the quick thinking hat put San Francisco in the thick of the Western race. He fumbled a pass from center on the Detroit five with less than two minutes to go but scooped up the ball and pitched out to fullback Joe Perry for a ouchdown. The play climaxed a three-touchdown quarter rally that handed the favored Lions their fourth straight defeat, 27-24.

Cleveland defeated the Washington Redskins, 24-14, and the New York Giants shut out the Chicago Cardinals, 10-0, in the other Sunday games. Pittsburgh kept pace with Cleveland by upsetting the Philadelphia Eagles Saturday night, 13-7.

Passing And Mistakes

The Browns capitalized on Otto Graham's passing and Redskin mistakes. Ed Modzelewski scored twice and linebacker Walt Michaels ran 25 yards for another Brownie TD after intercepting a Ralph Guglielmi pass.

Quarterback Jim Kinks scored on a quarterback sneak after center John Reger recovered Dick Bielski's fumble on the Eagle five to start Pittsburgh to victory over Philadelphia. Lynn Chandnois ran five yards for the winning touchdown in the third period.

A 28-yard field goal by Ben Agajanian and Frank Gifford's six-yard end run gave New York the points it needed to defeat the Cardinals in the rain.

Next Sunday's schedule: Chicago Bears at San Francisco; Detroit at Los Angeles; Green Bay at Cleveland; Philadelphia at Chicago Cards; Pittsburgh at New York and Washington at Baltimore.

Don't Look Now, But We Have Another Kid Gavilan

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) —Don't look now, although you might want to take a peek Friday night, but there's another Kid Gavilan in our midst.

He is strangely named Isaac Logart, a 22-year-old welterweight who battles Gil Turner as the rodeo moves out and boxing moves back to Madison Square Garden four days hence.

Logart is like Gavilan in many ways, and whether you think that's good or bad depends on how you looked at "The Hawk."

But the many similarities are there. Logart, like the "Keed," hails from Camaguay, Cuba. Just as with Gavilan, Isaac was torn early between his desires to play baseball and box.

And, it may be added, he fights in the Gavilan manner.

That, naturally, is a tipoff to the fact that Logart is no knockout artist. Possessing only a fair punch, he has climbed int othe ninth ranking welterweight spot on his speed and flash.

Doesn't Seem Much

At first glance this doesn't seem like much of a bout with which to bring fisticuffing back to boxing's big house. Turner, a ranking middleweight, has more experience and will have a weight edge. The Philadelphian at 25 has had 58 bouts and lost only nine. Logart has engaged in 47 pro bouts but only 13 of them were in this country. Of those, he won 11.

But you can't knock the theory that currently the middleweight and welterweight divisions are the "live" ones and new talent must be developed constantly to keep them that way.

Rocky Marciano has the heavyweight crown virtually on ice as he fights on a twice-a-year schedule. The complainants aren't necessarily valid candidates, either. Old Archie Moore is hoarding the light heavyweight crown, with only Floyd Patterson as a probable opponent after Arch dusts off Randy Turpin in London come January.

Others Really Jumping

But the next two divisions are really jumping. Bobo Olson will give Ray Robinson his middleweight comeback shot and standing in line for the winner are a long line of hopefuls. Carmen Basilio, the welterweight champion, has a Nov. 30 date at Boston with Tony Demarco and the winner is committed to Johnny Saxton. There are a number of others waiting around, too.

However, when you get a "hot" champ such as Olson has been, it doesn't take him long to march through the top candidates. So there always has to be somebody moving up from the kindergarden to keep the production line rolling. Otherwise, you'd soon have a situation such as exists among the hopeless heavyweights.

Which may explain why Logart, the new Gavilan, get a shot out of nowhere.

Hornets, Barons Tied For Lead

By UNITED PRESS

Only two points separated the first five teams in the American Hockey League race today with the Pittsburgh Hornets and Cleveland Barons, perennial championship contenders, tied for the lead with six points apiece.

A five-point scoring spree by Ken Wharram earned the Buffalo Bisons an 8-2 win over the Barons, while Jimmy Bartlett's overtime goal enabled the Providence Reds to beat the Hornets, 6-5, in Sun-Hawks, scored a pair of goals and day night games.

Wharram, who had two brief trials with the Chicago Black figured in three others to share scoring honors with Ed Slowinski and Al Dewsbury, each of whom had a pair of goals in the Cleveland rout.

Willie Marshall, who is off to a fast start in the scoring race, picked up a goal and two assists for the Hornets for a total of four goals and eight assists in the last three games, but Bartlett's marker at 6:01 of the overtime period was the big goal of the game.

Since 1845, by act of Congress, the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November is the date for choosing presidential electors.

Stern Says TV Forces Announcers To Take Back Seat

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) —Bill Stern, the dean of active network sportscasters, ruefully predicted today that "TV would never develop any of the great sports announcers like the ones turned out by radio."

Stern, who has just launched his 21st season as a network blow-by-blow spieler, pointed out that television has forced announcers to take a backseat to the picture.

"The hardest thing a TV announcer has to learn is to keep his mouth shut," said Stern with a grin. "It's plenty hard for me. I spent 20 years learning to keep it open.

"We're not important. We're there to fill in the incidentals, give the score, identify the players, throw in a little color. The good TV announcer lets the picture tell the story—the best ones are those who haven't been schooled in a continuous flow of chatter."

No Chance To Grow

As a result, said Stern, a TV sports announcer does not have the chance to grow into a personality in the fashion of say, a Graham McNamee or a Ted Husing.

"About the only really big nation-wide personality to come out of TV sports reporting so far has been Dennis James," said Stern. "There are plenty of wonderful boys who have made a mark on a local level through TV, but the odds are against their ever gaining spectacular success in the big time."

Stern, who got his first big break in 1934 when McNamee let him describe the decisive two minutes of a Navy-William and Mary football game, tabbed the late sportscaster as the man who carved out the path for later announcers.

"I was just a young fresh punk when he put me on," said Stern. "A real great guy. He was the first; he was the pioneer. He had to do it all by trial and error and we learned from his mistakes.

Legend Untrue

"The legend has it that McNamee didn't know his stuff, but that's untrue. He injected a lot of color into a game, but he also knew what he was talking about."

Along with McNamee, Stern classed Ted Husing and Bill Slater as the two other great personalities to come out of the early days of radio sports announcing.

"Husing, by far, was the most accurate and the most respected. He was the greatest technician. Slater was the Red Barber of his day, a kind of combination of McNamee and Husing. And I guess you might say that I'm a kind of substitute for Graham."

Despite the gloomy outlook for a future in the field, Stern is aware that plenty of kids still would like to crack the sportscasting game.

"But about the only advice I can offer," said Stern, "is to buy yourself a radio station."

Air Force Will Lose Strength Over Next Year

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Air Force, the one service supposed to increase its manpower strength under the administration's "new look" military plans, actually will lose strength over the next year, officials disclosed today.

It is not because the Air Force could not use these men or can not get them through recruitment.

Raher the reduction is part of what Air Force officials described as a four-year program to level off sharp and expensive fluctuations in the Air Force's training load.

To make up for the lack of military personnel, the Air Force will hire civilians as substitutes under a program given the code name "Operation Home Front."

Under recently approved manpower plans, the Air Force will not reach its authorized ceiling strength of 975,000 men until mid-1959. This goal originally was to have been attained in mid-1947. At the same time the Air Force will reach its build-up objective of 137 wings.

The Air Force, which reached a strength of 966,400 men a year ago and has about 955,000 men now, is scheduled to drop to a low of 934,000 men in the middle of next year. It then will start a slow climb to the goal of 975,000 men, reaching 954,000 in mid-1957, 970,000 in mid-1958, and finally 975,00 men in mid-1959.

Scientists To Tell Of Development Of New Vaccine

WASHINGTON (UP) — Government scientists will announce shortly they have developed a vaccine which is expected to prove effective against one of the viruses linked with the common cold and similar infections, informed sources said today.

The vaccine is not the answer to the common cold. But its development is considered a major step in man's centuries-long struggle to conquer many of the cold-like infections which cost the nation one billion dollars a year in lost wages alone.

The Public Health Service said the results of the first field trials with the vaccine will be made public in a few weeks. It refused to give any details but medical sources said the vaccine proved effective.

These sources said experts believe the vaccine can be improved in time to provide protection against a wide variety of upper respiratory diseases which strike millions of Americans every year.

The vaccinen is a "killed-virus" type similar to the vaccine Dr. Jonas E. Salk developed against polio. It is the work of Dr. Robert J. Huebner, virologist at the govgermant's National Iinstitutes of Healh.

Huebner and his team of researchers tested the vaccine recently on volunteers at the Chillicothe Reformatory in Ohio. According to informed sources the tests showed the vaccine could build anti-bodies or bodily defenses against one of the so-called APC viruses.

The APC' are a new family of viruses which Huebner and his colleagues discovered in December, 1953. It has not been proved they cause the common cold.

But they do cause a number of respiratory diseases which are often diagnosed as severe colds. They also can cause bronchitis, virus pneumonia, and many of the common virus infections which used to be referred to as "Virus X."

Peace Tied To Religion Lecturer Says

Despite the challenging problems of the atomic age, the understanding of God offers peace, health and freedom for the individual and society, Helen Appleton of Boston, told an audience here Sunday.

On nationwide tour as a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, Miss Appleton spoke under the auspices of The First Church of Christ, Scientist at the American Legion Home. She was introduced by Mrs. Ruth Nei

Speaking on the subject, "Christian Science: Light in This Age," the lecturer stated that the solution for individual as well as collective problems is essentially spiritual.

Miss Appleton characterized fear, ignorance, and sin as the worst enemies of mankind. These foes, she said, lie at the root of all the sorrow and misery in the world.

The remedy for the belief that sickness, disaster, war, and accident are a necessary part of life was brought to light by Christ Jesus, she declared.

The allness of God is the foundation upon which spiritual healing in Christian Science is based, she explained. She stated that the spiritual fact of God's omnipotence and ever presence outlaws evil or error.

Miss Appleton held that problems of all kinds can be solved through spiritually correct understanding of God.

In addition to healing of physical and mental illness, the lecturer told how Christian Science aided in solving business and other everyday problems.

Turning to a discussio nof atomic problems, the lecturer stressed the vital need for constructive uses of atomic energy.

She recommended that her audience recall often the words contained in the United Nations Charter: "Since wars begin in the minds of men, it is in the minds of men that the defences of peace must be constructed."

Floods

given disaster loans, either through a new declaration or under the one he issued in August.

As the flood waters began to recede into their normal channels today a gigantic rescue and rehabilitation operation gathered momentus.

Twenty - six helicopters shuttled over flood - struck communities of Connecticut lifting hundreds to safety. Vessels ranging in size from rowboats to powered craft took over supply and rescue chores in 66 cities hit by the flood in this state.

Automobile traffic tangled in nearly all the flooded states. Many washed-out bridges were reported.

Many areas farther north in New York State were isolated by the high waters. Hundreds of families were evacuated to community shelters. A dozen streams roared beyond their banks in flash floods and then slowly receded.

The state by state reports provided a grim picture of death, suffering, and destruction:

Connecticut: 10,000 persons evacuated. Sixty persons rescued from train isolated by water near Danbury. Volunteer firemen and civil defense workers from New York rushed in 26 vehicle convoy to Danbury for rescue operations. Helicopters rescued 100 persons from rooftops and flooded areas. Entire National Guard on stand-by alert. Looting reported at Stamford and Danbury and National Guardsmen stationed throughout the citiesc. Freight train derailed at Norwalk. Stores and homes along Norwalk River toppled like toys. Communications and transportation disrupted but returning to normal.

Hundreds Reported Homeless

New York: Gov. Averell Harriman promised state agencies will provide whatever assistance needed. Thousands of Civil Defense workers activated or on standby duty. Hundreds homeless. Mohawk and Hudson river valleys considered critical areas and more flooding expected. Food and medicine rushed into Ellenville and Rosendale, now almost isolated by high waters. Serious communication and transportation difficulties.

New Jersey: Approximately 2,000 persons evacuated from their homes, mostly at Pompton Lakes, Mountain View, Lincoln Park and communities in the north Jersey lakeland region. Ramapo River waters blocked dozens of secondary roads, cut off service on Lackawanna Railroad branch line. Several main highways temporarily out of service or under water.

Pennsylvania: One - thousand persons without electricity or drinking water in a section near the New York State line. At Forty Fort, near Wilkes - Barre, Susquehanna River broke through a dike forcing 100 residents from their homes.

Massachussetts: Weather Bureau predicted more rains and further flooding. Main highway from Boston to Albany washed out. Scores evacuated from Westfield when Westfield River roared over its banks. Airline communications temporarily halted and railroad service disrupted.

Strike

Contined from page one

International Union President James B. Carey, who announced the strike officially, charged Westinghouse had refused to "bargain in good faith." But a company official said Carey's accusation was "complete nonsense."

However, Carey continued negotiations with company officials and mediators John R. Murray and J. A. Moran for an hour and a half past the strike deadline.

The action was the second mass walkout called at Westinghouse plants in five weeks. On Sept. 12 the membership began a three-day sympathy strike to support 2,200 dayworkers at the huge East Pittsburgh plan who had been away from their jobs since Aug. 8 in protest to a company time study.

Both company and union negotiators had rejected each other's proposal to extend the midnight deadline. Carey and Robert Nellis, chairman of the union's Westinghouse Conference BB o a r d, wired strike orders to the locals.

Pickets appeared at the gates of the East Pitsburgh plant an hour before the deadline. A 200 - man picket line strung around the Mansfield, Ohio, plant of Westinghouse where more than 4,800 union members are employed. In Cleveland local officials led picket lines at two Westinghouse plants. Pickets were reported at a Fairmont, W.Va., plant at 11 p.m., EDT.

About 6,000 members of another union, the Independent United Electrical Workers Local 107 went on strike Saturday at the Westinghouse plant at Lester, Pa., a Philadelphia suburb. The workers voted to strike although the UE had set no strike deadline. Company officials said the walkout was "purely a local situation."

A union spokesman said Local 401 at Metuchen, N.J., and Local 426, Newark, N.J., jumped the gun Saturday and set up picket lines although there was no weekend work scheduled.

Attlee

low Britons lived.

Represented Slum Districts

Attlee was shocked and shaken. With the resolution and sincerity that have marked him all his life, he joined the Labor Party.

He entered the army at the outset of World War I. He served with distinction in the Middle Sast and in France, and came out a major after being twice wounded.

After the war he became mayor of Stepney, in the East End. Then in 1922 Limehouse, another East End slum district, sent him to the House of Commons.

Despie his lack of oratorical prowess, his lack of combativeness, he rose to be deputy party leader.

When George Lansbury, the party head, retired there were two rivals for the leadership. Attlee was not one of them. But "Clem" was picked because of his sincerity and his gift of making himself liked and trusted by all factions of the party.

He became prime minister in 1945 when Churchill was swept out of office. He served through the difficult years until 1951, and made international the same good name he had made for himself in Britain.

win K. Steers signs official papers demilitarizing the areas.

Meanwhile, 133 persons reported for work at the New Castle foundry, scene of the gun battle, this morning, the company reported. That was a gain of 10 over the number which worked Saturday.

New Castle remained "peaceful as a church mouse" during the second night of a curfew imposed to halt nocturnal traffic.

Lt. Col. Walter Fries, who made the comparison, said New Castle and Henry County citizens were taking "very well" the curfew designed to keep peace in the area where a Perfect Circle Corp. strike riot injured nine persons Oct. 5.

The curfew, imposed for the first time Saturday, means adults throughout the county must be indoors after midnight, and children under 18 after 10:30 p.m.

Maj. Robert Wilson, guard operations officer, said heavy auto traffic throughout the night was the main reason for the curfew.

"We feel we can do a much better job with fewer people if we cut down on all this excess traffic," Wilson said. Guardsmen check all cars entering the community.

Many persons also are still fearful of more violence, Wilson said, and "we just have to be ready in case there is something."

Fries, executive officer, said a few persons were found outdoors after the curfew, mostly because they were unaware of the order. He said they were "given a slip of paper indicating there was a curfew on. They all accepted it very well."

Mason Predicts Party-Line Fight Over Tax Cuts

Plans On Best Way To Cut Individual Income Taxes Differ

WASHINGTON (UP) — A key member of the tax-writing House Ways & Means Committee predicts a party-line fight next year over the best way to cut individual income taxes.

Rep. Noah Mason (R-Ill) said he is certain President Eisenhower will recommend tax reductions early next year. But he and another tax expert—Rep. Hale Boggs (D-La)—differed sharply over the tax-cutting formula.

Boggs, also a committee member, said the "only fair approach" to the problem is an increase in exemptions, a plan advocated by many Democrats. This plan would give the biggest reduction to taxpayers in lower income brackets.

But Mason said the "only sound method is a straight percentable cut." He predicted Mr. Eisenhower will recommend such a formula.

Mason and Boggs spoke out in separate interviews Sunday in the wake of a new pronouncement on tax-cutting prospects by Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey.

Humphrey, after a bedside conference with Mr. Eisenhower, said that he hopes the budget can be balanced in the current fiscal year, clearing the way for the President to recommend a tax cut in the next fiscal year. But Humphrey said a budget surplus must be in prospect for fiscal 1957 before taxes can be slashed.

Arrest Follows Collision

Following a street intersection collision in South Whitley at 9 p.m. Friday, Raymond D. Bechtel, aged 16, of Columbia City R 1, was arrested for disregarding a stop sign. He posted bond in the court of Mayor Thomas H. Hood, Columbia City.

His 1947 Chevrolet coupe was westbound on Mulberry street and struck the 1937 Ford proceeding north on Main street which was operated by Richard L. Carver 23, of Clyapool R 2. Both Bechtel and Carver were alone in their cars. Carver's car was pushed onto the yard of the First Baptist church.

Bechtel, a high school student, suffered a servere laceration to his forehead. This was treated at a South Whitley physician's office.

Damage to Bechtel's car was estimated at $150 while that to Carver's car was about $150, according to Patrolman Pierce, who investigated the accident.

Fort Wayne Man Is World's Oldest Active Odd Fellow

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) — James Leverson of Fort Wayne the world's oldest active Odd Fellow, is a dapper, modest man whose spry step and firm handclasp belie the fact he is 99 years old.

Leverson is a former sheriff, insurance salesman, farmer and auctioneer. He has held virtually every local and state office in the Odd Fellows Lodge since he was initiated in 1882 while Chester A. Arthur was president.

Born in 1856, Leverson retains nostalgic memories of events now recorded in history.

"I'll never forget the day we first heard the new President Lincoln was shot," he said. "I was working on the farm with my dad when we saw an old neighbor hurriedly shuffling down the road. When he got near us he shouted 'Abe Lincoln's been shot." It made quite an impression on me."

Leverson was a close friend of Schuyler Colfax, former speaker of the House and vice-president. He also remembers President Grant.

He doesn't smoke, drink or chew. But he did smoke "a few cigars" long time ago.

Leverson attributed his good health to the fact he always has remained active.

"As long as I can take care of myself and don't need people to wait on me and take care of me, I'll be happy," he said.

As sheriff of Huntington County in 1884, Leverson carried a pistol. He never had occasion to use it although there were "some pretty tough characters around."

He is probably the only man alive who auctioned off a county courthouse. The courthouse was sold to make room for a new one.

Leverson also was instrumental in building a memorial hospital in honor of his old friend Colfax at the Odd Fellows Home in Greensburg.

Praises Old Folks' Home

"The just wanted to put up a cold monument in his honor," Leverson said, "but I thought a living memorial would be more fitting."

Leverson was interviewed while here for the 119th annual sessionn of the Indiana Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He did not make the annual tour of the Greensburg home this week, but lavished praise on the project.

Return Of Princess Marks Start Of Week Of Decision

By HAROLD M. WILLARD
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP) —Princess Margaret and Peter Townsend turned today from a weekend of rediscovery to give the verdict of their hearts to Prime Minister Anthony Eden and the Queen.

The answer was obvious to one and all—Townsend's long exile in Brussels did not dim their love. And the princess and the pilot were winning the support of press and public in their dreams of marriage.

The official newspaper of the British Labor Party, the Daily Herald, gave its blessing to a marriage with a demand: "Let the obstacles be removed."

The Daily Express, the powerful voice of Lord Beaverbrook, an intimate of premiers and cabinet ministers, gave its blessings, too. The Conservative newspaper said a marriage would be an occasion for "nothing but rejoicing and good wishes."

Week Of Decision

The return of the princess and the pilot marked the start of a week of decision. Tuesday morning Eden meets his cabinet. Queen Eliabeth II leaves Scotland today for London and will meet with Eden Tuesday night

Parliament meets next week, Oct. 25, and it was generally believed an official announcement would come then. The House of Commons could veto the marriage but such an act might bring down the wrath of millions of romantic Britons.

Margaret and Townsend spent weekend together on a country estate near Windsor, holding hands as they strolled through the grounds, posing for pictures that could be engagement pictures, sitting before an open fire.

Margaret, 25, now has th eright to marry the man of her choice if Parliament does not disapprove. The Daily Herald and the Daily EXpress made it plain the princess will have support from wide sections of both parties if she announces her engagement.

But the bishops of the Church of England sit in the House of Lords, and the Church of England, refuses to recognize remarriage of divorced persons. Townsend's divorced wife is still living.

Under terms of the Royal Marriage Act, Margaret still would have to wait a year once she voiced her intent to marry. But there was a growing clamor that this act be voided so the marriage could proceed at once.

It was clear the weekend tryst had forced the issue and that a public decision must be made soon.

It seemed likely that members of Parliament would bring it up by formally questioning the government once Parliament reconvenes.

Census Bureau Feeds Facts To Mechanical Brains

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Census Bureau poured millions of facts and figures into two mechanical brains today to get a high speed idea of what business looked like in 1954.

The census is in five major parts. It covers the number of businesses, types, number of employes, organization, payroll and sales of all businesses in the United States.

In the last such census in 1948, the adding up and figuring was done by 200 to 300 employes on adding machines and similar mechanical computors.

Now the Census Bureau has two electronic calculators, or Univacs, to do the job. It expects to finish the first section—on retail trade—in about three weeks. The entire basic figuring will be completed in about one month.

Formerly, it took about 14 months between the mailing out of questionnaires and the issuance of the first reports. First reports will be out this time in 10 months.

Romance

LONDON (UP)—The Communist Daily Worker splashed the news of Princess Margaret's romance across its front page today, but it added a warning: "Readers who do not believe in fairy tales about rich princesses marrying commoners are advised to turn to the sports page."

Boy Knows Easy Way To Be Good Cop

PEORIA, Ill. (UP)—An 11-year-old boy called police Monday and told them he had been accosted by two robbers. He then tied his own hands with ropes and explained, when his deception was uncovered.

"I want to be e policeman and I thought a good way to start was on a case I knew something about."

Big Rebuilding Task In Flood Areas Started

Peterson Takes Personal Charge

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—A multi-million dollar rehabilitation program moved into high gear today in the seven state area battered by flood waters which have claimed almost 50 lives.

Federal Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson took personal charge of the rebuilding program and promised to "see that red tape is cut" to restore the devastated area.

He said $11,600,000 in government funds would be used immediately to clear flood debris, open roads and give necessary relief.

The signal for the huge rehabilitation task came with the announcement by Gov. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut that the "worst is over."

Nearly all streams in the flooded states were back within their banks today but the flood toll stood at 48 dead, an estimated 500 million dollars damage and more than 25,000 homeless.

The bulk of the damage was in Connecticut, which reported 22 dead, and 4,500 families driven from their homes.

Linda Smith Officer Of Residence Hall

Since the last school year there has been an increase of 11.8 per cent in women housed in University residences. During the present semester there are 2,309 women compared with 2,066 in the 1954-55 semester. New accomodations were made with the opening of two new wings of Smithwood Hall.

Katie Whirls To Her Death In The Atlantic

New Storm Spreads Disaster Along West Coast Of Mexico

By UNITED PRESS

Eastern flood waters fell back and Hurricane Katie whirled to her death in the Atlantic Ocean today. But a new storm spread floods, death, and disaster along Mexico's west coast.

At least 40 persons were reported killed and scattered reports from the battered Mexican coastline indicated dozens of towns and villages were swept away.

The Mexican storm roared out of the Pacific after 10 days of steady downpours. Rivers turned into rampaging torrents and it was reported that eight large towns, including Manzanillo and Colima, were under water.

Laconic messages from the town of Atenquique indicated 40 persons had drowned when floods "buried the city."

The storm was a disastrous sequel to the series of hurricanes which battered Mexico's eastern coast, causing hundreds of deaths.

In this country, seven northeastern states counted 50 persons dead, an esimated 500 million dollars damage, and more than 25,000 persons homeless in the wake of another flood attack.

Skies cleared or were clearing over the area today after five days of floods and rain. Meanwhile, Federal Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson took personal charge of a rehabilitation program and said the government would spend $11,600,000 to clear debris, open roads, and provide relief.

Some Government Economists Believe Danger Of Inflation In United States Over

By ROBERT F. MORISON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Some government economists believe the immediate danger of inflation is over. They expect the economy to level off now at a high plateau.

They said this is partly the payoff for administration efforts to keep the boom from getting out of hand. But, they added, two other recent developments also played a part in taking the edge off the boom.

The first of these was President Eisenhower's heart attack which apparently has prompted politically-conscious businessmen to take a "stop, look and listen" attitude toward further expansion at this time.

The second was last Friday's announcement by major banks in the nation's bigger cities that they are raising their prime interest rates from 3 1-4 to 3½ per cent.

The prime interest rate in effect is a bank's cheapest line of credit. It is available only to the biggest borrowers with top credit ratings. Other borrowers pay more for the use of money.

Government economists said both developments intensified previous federal actions to reduce the supply of money available for loans and put a brake on new housing construction.

September housing "starts" declined to the lowest level of the year after the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing

No official callers were expected today but Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will fly in from Washington tonight to meet with the President for the second time Wednesday before departing for the Big Four foreign ministers' conference in Geneva.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, saw the President Monday on government affairs and reported the President in good spirits and making rapid strides in his recovery.

Hospital attendants said the victims were badly burned.

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Joel Thorne, was well known at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway as a 500-mile race driver and car owner.

Jefferson Civics Students Visit County Offices

Class Is Studying Local Government

The Jefferson Center senior civics class spent all day Monday on a study tour of the county offices in this city at the Whitley county Courthouse, the county jail the county farm, and the City Hall. Sixteen students comprise the class, and they are taught by Principal Eudolph Holycross.

The designated textbook for the civics classes in Whitley county schools is entitled "Government For Americans". The first unit of the text is a study of local government, namely town, township county, and city.

Many students will continue to reside in this community and conduct their business affairs in the local government offices. In order to better acquaint them with the functions of each office and so that they may more intelligently participate in local government, the visit to the offices was made. Mr. Holycross stated it is the best teaching procedure.

On the Monday forenoon tour the Jefferson Center class and and teacher toured the offices of the county school superintendent county welfare officer, sheriff, county clerk, county treasurer county auditor, county assessor county recorder, board of commissioners, attendance office, and the relic room. In the afternoon they visited the county jail, city hall, council room, fire department, and the Whitley County Farm. The day of visits was ended with a tour of the Franks Greenhouse by Glenn Frank.

All county officers did a commendable job of explaining the functions of his office to the students, Mr. Holycross said, and the students unanimously agreed they had learned much by their "on the spot" study.

Russia Silent Partner In 40 Nation Program

To Fly Airliners Over Iron Curtain

NEW YORK (UP)—Russia was a silent partner today in a 40-nation program to start flying airliners over the Iron Curtain for the first time.

Travel to Russia, and through it to India and the Far East, was urged by spokesmen for several of 74 airlines here for the annual meeting of the International Air Transport Assn. It was backed Monday night by Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon told top airlines men from both sides of the Iron Curtain at a banquet given 22 U.S. airlines that "in every effort you make toward increased freeom of movement between countires, you have the prayerful and hopeful support of the American people."

Russia's airline, Aeroflot, is eligible to joint IATA but has made no move to do so. However, airlines of three Communist countries — Poland, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia—do belong to the organization and the Polish fliers showed particular interest today in an IATA move to hurdle the curtain.

It was learned that the Polish delegates here grabbed up all the copies they could find of speeches at the so-called "World Airline Parliament" referring to Aeroflot joining IATA and to non-Communist airlines flying into and across the Soviet Union.

They had no immediate comment other than to say they thought two-way traffic between the East and West would be a good idea. Officials of the Czech airline said they would be interested in anything that would promote more business.

The Yugoslavs' arrival here has been delayed because one of their planes crashed last week and the accident is being investigated.

Whitley County CROP Campaign Committee Makes Final Plans For Drive November 6-13

A handful of people, representing churches in this county, met Monday evening in the Peabody Free Library to make final plans for the Whitley County CROP campaign. The CROP campaign under the direction of Rev. Ernest Minegar of the Blue River Methodist church and Rev. Frederich Wraight, Big Lake Church of God will be conducted November 6 through 13.

Pastors of local rural churches plan to cooperate in the campaign, and on Sunday, November 6, will urge their congregations to support the county campaign.

CROP, Christian Rural Overseas Program, is a program of the central department of Church World Service of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States. The idea was born in 1945 and 1946 when the Church of the Brethren, through the Brethren ervice Commission, made an appeal to its members for contributions of wheat for relief overseas. At about the same time, the Mennonite Central Committee collected from members of the Mennonite church carloads of wheat which again were sent overseas, mostly to Holland. In the fall of 1946, a group of people, under the Evangelical and Reformed Church leadership, felt that a great deal of corn could be collected for overseas relief from the Iowa farmers if Church World Service could handle it. These ideas were forerunners of CROP.

Early in 1947 the idea of attempting a comprehensive commodity campaign in rural areas for overseas relief was presented at a meeting of the President's Control Board for Voluntary Foreign Aid. CROP was organized as an interfaith organization, and although some changes have taken place during the intervening years, it remains an interfaith organization. CROP continues to accept contributions for any agency designated by contributors. While 53 Protestant denominations are

Dulles also said it would be permissible for the Middle East situation to be placed formally on the Geneva agenda if all of the Big Four foreign ministers agree. But Dulles said he thought it more likely the matter would be discussed informally in private

Authorities Seek Man In Connection With Weitkamp Case

CRANE, Ind. (UP)—Authorities today sought a man in work clothes "with a long, slender face" in connection with the week-old disappearance of three-year-old Ronnie Weitkamp.

The boy vanished while playing near his home at the Naval Ammunition Depot where his father is a civilian employe.

Cmdr. Richard C. Turner said the latest clue led to an unidentified man about 30-35 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, slender, wearing tan work clothes, a light tan hat and having a "long, slender face."

He said the man was seen in the area about the time Ronnie disappeared last Tuesday, "leading a little fellow by the hand." Turner added the boy "seemed to be dragging back as if reluctant to come along."

Princess Was Playing With Her Dolls While Townsend Was Leading Fighter Squadron

By MARGARET SAVILLE
United Press Palace Writer

LONDON (UP)—Princess Margaret was 9, a little girl playing with dolls on the afternoon in 1940 when Peter Townsend led his fighter squadron against 250 German aircraft over the Thames estuary.

Townsend shot down three enemy planes in that one clash.

Only a few weeks before, Townsend himself had been wounded in the foot and shot down. He parachuted from his Spitfire just in time, was rushed to a hospital where doctors amputated his left big toe. Within two weeks he was in the air again.

Townsend was one of those about whom Winston Churchill said "Never has so much been owed by so many to so few."

And so it was that seldom has even a storybook princess had such a knight in shining armor come along as Margaret did when war hero Townsend was picked by the late George VI as an equerry to the royal family at Buckingham Palace.

Popular at Palace

Townsend had married in 1941. The King moved him and his wife, Rosemary, into Adelaide cottage, a grace and favor residence near Windsor Castle. The King was godfather to the couple's second son.

Townsend became very popular at the palace. He sampled movies and plays in advance of royal attendance, arranged details of royal appearances, played canast with the Queen and entertained the King's daughters—Elizabeth and Margaret.

In 1947 he went to South Africa as an aide to Princess Margaret annd in 1948 the King chose him to be the 17-year-old Margaret's equerry on her first solo visit abroad—to Holland for Queen Juliana's coronation.

Townsend was a special favorite with the Queen Mother and the princesses. In 1949 Margaret asked him to fly her blue and gold Miles Whitney straight racing plane in the King's Cup air races. He was an also ran but the next year he tried again and finished second.

But Townsend's duties, which made him the target of every West End society hostess, cost him many hour of overtime work and cut deeply into his home life.

The breakup of his marriage came six years after he went to the palace. And it was just before Christmas of 1942 that a court granted him a divorce decree on grounds of his wife's adultery with export merchant John Adolphus de Laszlo, son of the late portrait painter, Phillip de Laszlo.

Townsend was awarded custody of their two sons. His former wife married De Laszlo in February, 1953.

King George had died the year of the divorce and it was then that Margaret drew very close to Townsend.

Man of Action

Townsend was born in Rangoon, Burma, the third child of an officer in the Indian civil service. His childhood was spent in Burma and Assam, explaining his love of Eastern color, wramth and exotic foods.

He was educated at Haileybury in England, Clement Attlee's old school. He was a shy youth until he joined the RAF in 1935. He lost that shyness in the bucaneering fighter pilot days of the war.

The handsome Townsend became very popular with his comrades. One fellow pilot wrote of him in a letter: "The squadron worship him. He is a hero to the ground crews. What a lesson one can learn from a person like that. He has no idea of his own courage."

When Townsend came to serve the royal family he was mature, confident, experienced, intelligent, a man of action.

He shared Margaret's budding tastes for books, drama, music, painting and a keen interest in current affairs. He had wit and a sense of humor to match Margaret's.

Margaret decided he was a man worth waiting for.

Fears Of Possible Labor Violence Calmed Today

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. (UP) —Unloading of a clay shipment for the strikebound Kohler Co. proceeded without incident today, calming fears of possible labor violence.

Gov. Walter Kohler had warned that he would move National Guardsmen into Sheboygan if CIO United Auto Workers interfered with the unloading of the Norwegian motorship Divinia Monday.

But the strikers and their sympathizers heeded a union plea not to mass at the dockside or hinder the unloading in any way. No picket lines were established, although about 100 persons gathered some distance away.

Two sister ships of the Divinia were expected to dock here soon with more clay shipments.

Kohler had issued the National Guard warning because a crowd of 1,000 demonstrators prevented the unloading of a shipment last summer. The strike at the plumbingware plant in nearby Kohler began April 5, 1954, and is the nation's longest major walkout.

Youth Confesses Killing Mother

PASADENA, Calif. (UP)—A 19-year-old boy confessed he beat his mother to death with a hammer "because my parents don't understand me" and then tried to kill himself by leaping in front of two cars and a truck, police said today.

The youth, John Hawley, was reported in serious condition at San Bernardino County Hospital about 60 miles from here, Pasadena Detective Richard L. Jamison said Hawley confessed murdering his mother.

"I did it," the detective quoted the boy. "I killed my mother. I hit her with a hammer and stabbed her with a knife."

The youth underwent surgery for eight hours Monday for injuries suffered in his suicide try after fleeing from here in his car.

Mrs. Iris Hawley, 45, wife of a wealthy advertising executive William A. Hawley, was found dead Monday by a maid in the family's fashionable home in the Oak Knoll district here.

The Hawley boy apparently fled in his car after his mother was killed, police said. His car suffered a blowout on U.S. 66 and went off the road about five miles north of San Bernardino.

Officers found young Hawley in critical condition at San Bernardino County Hospital after his bizarre suicide attempt. In his wrecked car was a bloody hammer which detectives said might be the murder weapon.

Youths Sentenced For Opening Grave

KOKOMO, Ind. (UP)—Two teenagers who dug up a grave out of curiosity and removed a vertebrae were sentenced Monday to serve 75 days at the Indiana State Farm.

Howard Circuit Judge Merton Stanley also fined William Brunt and Gene Decroes, both 18, $125 and costs, put them on probation for one year and suspended a one-year term for malicious trespass.

He further decreed the youths must trim the Twin Springs Cemetery during their probationary period and keep the grave of Jesse Dowden, which they opened last June 16, decorated with flowers next summer.

In passing sentence, Stanley said the crime of opening a grave was "about as disgusting and silly as any I've had in this court."

Make Big Strides Toward Conquest Of Common Cold

By MICHAEL J. O'NEILL
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Science is making big strides toward the conquest o fthe old common cold.

Man's old enemy hasn't been conquered yet by any means. People will go on sniffling and coughing this winter and probably for several years to come.

But researchers said today there is every reason to believe the common cold will finally yield to the broadscale attack now being conducted against it in the nation's medical laboraories.

A sign of the progress being made was the disclosure Monday that government scientists have developed a vaccine which has proved effective against one of the so-called APC viruses.

The APC viruses are not the cause of the simple cold. But they do produce a whole flock of cold-like infections that strike millions of Americans and cost hundreds of millions of dollars every year.

They cause severe colds, sore throats, hoarseness, viru pneumonia, grippe, bronchitis, and a sprawling hodgepodge of other upper respiratory infections.

The vaccine developed at the government's National Institutes of Health is regarded as a vastly important step in the effort to conquer these APC infections.

But more than that, experts said it supplies promising evidence that it probably will be relatively easy to develop a vaccine against the virus or viruses which cause the mild, common cold.

The distinction between APC infections and the simple cold is not always easy to make clinically. Consequently, APC illnesses often are diagnosed as colds.

Actually, the APCs generally produce relatively severe symptons such as a sore throat, fever, and, possibly, inflammation of the eyes and lung congestion. In the common cold there usually is a nasal discharge but little or no fever. It also has been established that a person with considerable defenses against APC infection have no immunity to the common cold.

Consequently, investigators feel another virus or group of viruses are involved in the common cold. It is expected, however, that it will be possible to isolate these with the same tissue culture methods which proved spectacularly successful in the discovery of the APC viruses.

Youths To Observe Annual Work Day For Christ

NEW YORK (UP)—Across the country Saturday (Oct. 22) thousands of teen-agers will tear themselves away from dance records and hot-rods, put on old clothes and go to work.

They'll dig potatoes on Long Island, pick fruit in California. They'll wash windows, polish cars, rake yards, saw wood and scrub floors in towns and cities in all the 48 states.

And everything they earn—about $30,000 altogether—will go to missionary churches, schools and hospials all over the world.

Saturday is the annual "Work Day for Christ" in the Pilgrim Fellowship Youth Organization of the Congregational Christian Churches. While it is only one of many youth programs carried on by churches of all denominations, it is one of the most unique and fastest-growing.

From its beginning only five years ago the "Work Day" idea has grown to include more than 700 different groups of high school boys and girls who voluntneer for a day's work once a year and turn their earnings into the Pilgrim Fellowship World Mission Fund.

This means they have worked to help pay for hospital dressings for patients at a mission in India, or for books for a youth training center in Germany.

They do odd jobs in groups of two or three, or descend in larger numbers into orchards and fields, wherever a job can be found.

Officers and enlisted men of U.S. Army, Europe, contributed $320,310.03 to the 1955 March of Dimes campaign.

Throne Council Is Determined To Name Leader

RABAT, Morocco (UP)—Morocco's French- installed four- man throne council announced today it would "sit all day every day" until it names a man to lead a national government.

The council met for 2 hours and 15 minutes Monday at its first session but was unable to agree on the first premier for this French protectorate.

Fatmi Ben Slimane, a moderate, was generally expected to be named to the post and he said in Paris he would accept the nomination if it is offered.

Ben Slimane had planned to fly to Rabat Monday night but decided at a late hour to postpone the flight intil the throne council finishes its deliberations.

Premier Edgar Faure of France ordered the throne council set up to replace two deposed sultans as the first step in graning Moroccann nationalists more self-rule. The premier it names is to organize a government which will include representatives of the nationalists and the pro-French factions which oppose severing the ties with France.

Ginns Moving To East Of City

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Ginn and children are moving this week from 511 East Van Buren street to their newly remodeled home on road 205 east of the Morsches Park, which was formerly the home of Mr. Ginn's father, Lester Ginn.

The exterior has white aluminum siding and French Lick limestone trim. A dormer was added to the second floor for a bath. The former porches are included in the main part of the house.

The front entrance at the west has what-not shelves up each side of the door. A birch planter is just inside matching the panelled wall along the stairway. Three bedrooms and bath are on the second floor. At the south is the den which was formerly part of the porch.

The fireplace along the north wall of the living room is of French Lick limestone with birch mantle. Picture windows are at the south and east.

The dining room and kitchen at the northeast are separated by a planter wall. The kitchen has an L-shaped bench and table next to the divider. Red birch cabinets are along the north and east walls. The kitchen features a stainless steel wall-type oven, built-in stove and dishwasher.

A back entrance and utility room are combined, off the kitchen. A family room is on the north and west side. The windows here also are arranged to take advantage of the view, on this this side the courthouse dome and Lutheran church spire are seen above the treetops.

Consultations May Decide Future Of Princess, Townsend

By HAROLD M. WILLARD
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Anthony Eden met with his cabinet today and prepared to see Queen Elizabeth II in a day of consultations that could decide the future of Princess Margaret and Peter Townsend.

The unsmiling Queen arrived today from Scotland and a crucial meeting of the House of Windsor was believed imminent—a family hearing at which the princess might deliver her own decision on her love affair with the handsome pilot.

Arrival of the grave-faced Queen and her two children from a vacation in Scotland set in motion the machinery that will move the Margaret-Townsend case to its climax. Some British newspapers already were hinting that the wedding may be off.

The outcome of today's talks could well decide the issue. Eden called in his cabinet and it was reported they would study proposals that the government sweep away legal obsacles to a marriage.

Save Green Tomatoes To Eat After Frost

LAFAYETTE, — Hoosier families can continue to eat home-grown tomatoes long after the first killing frost if the advice of W. B. Ward, extension horticulturist in vegetables at Purdue University is followed.

Ward says gardeners should pick good, large tomatoes before damaged by frost and store them in a dark, cool, dry place The tomatoes should be placed on a shelf and not piled up or left in a basket

Some gardeners have had tomatoes from their garden as late as the Christmas season. When ripe tomatoes are wanted, they should be left in a warm, well-lighted room until the green color turns to red.

Vietnamese To Choose Emperor Dai Or Premier Diem

PARIS (UP)—Playboy Emperor Bao Dai announced today he had "fired" South Viet Nam Premier Ngo Dinh Diem who has called a referendum in an effort to end Bai Dai's role as chief of state.

An estimated three million South Viet Namese will vote Sunday on whether to oust the absentee emperor or the prime minister. Diem is expected to win a resounding vote of public confidence.

Bai Dai announced that he has withdrawn the mission he gave Diem 18 months ago and that the "full powers given the Roman Catholic premier has been cancelled."

The emperor apparently was making a last desperate effort to maintain at least some semblance of power in the outh Viet Nam state. Diem is equally determined to force him out.

1,407 Runners For Cross-Country Event

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—A record yield of 1,407 runners from 140 schools was announced today for next Tuesday's Indiana high school cross-country sectionals.

IHSAA said total entries were eight schools and 108 athletes more than last year.

The preliminaries will be held at Anderson, Fort Wayne, Hammond, Hobart, Indianapolis, Jasper, South Bend and Terre Haute.

The South Grove golf course here is site of the finals Nov. 5.

Indianapolis Shortridge is defending champion. Dale Lubs LaPorte, topped the field last year.

Spain's Famed Philosopher Dies

MADRID, Spain (UP) — Jose Ortegay Gasset, Spain's famed philosopher, died of cancer today at the age of 73.

He had been in a coma since Monday.

One of his last conscious acts was to reconcile himself with the Roman Catholic Church and he was confessed by his friend, Father Felix Garcia.

The philosopher and critic was surrounded by members of his family when he died.

Ortega fled Spain after the Franco regime took over but after 12 years abroad, mostly in Portugal and France, he made his peace with the new government and returned to Madrid, the city where he was born in 1883.

Former comrades in the struggle of Republican Spain were shocked at Ortega's decision to go back to Franco Spain. He had assisted in drafting the Republican constitution after Alfonso XIII slipped out of the country in 1931 and, behind a microphone in besieged Madrid, had exhorted his compatriots to continue the fight.

They also recalled how ortega with his "Espana Invertebrada" (Spineless Spain) published in 1915, had convinced Spanish intellectuals and the middle class that the monarchy and all it stood for, had to go, thus earning for himself the name of "Father of the Revolution."

Football Scoring Championship May Go Down To Wire

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—The battle for the 1955 Indiana College football scoring championship may go right down to the wire.

Evansville's Ken Lutterbach remained the leader with 42 points, but his margin over his nearest rival has narrowed to six points. Lutterbach failed to score Saturday for the second straight week.

Manchester's Ed Consolo, who crashed for three touchdowns against Hanover, became the latest threat. He now has 36 points on 6 TDs.

At least five other players still have high hopes. All are tied with 30 points each. They are Art Bryant of DePauw, Herb Sawyer of Earlham, Bill Parrish of Evansville, Dick Nyers of Indiana Central, and Ralph Tite of St. Joseph's.

Orioles Acquire Bobby Adams

BALTIMORE (UP)—The Baltimore Orioles have acquired utility infielder Bobby Adams from the Chicago White Sox in an even swap for outfielder Cal Abrams, it was announced today.

Athletics Release Veteran Vic Raschi

KANSAS CITY The Athletics gave veteran Vic Raschi his unconditional release today.

He had a 4-6 record for the season, but completed only one game. His earned run average was 5.44.

The 36-year-old right-hander was a 20-game winner in three of seven seasons with the New York Yankees. In February, 1954, he was sold to the St. Louis Cardinals who released him last spring.

Raschi pitched in eleven World Series games and was named to the American League All-Star team four times.

Another Member Of Field Family Freed By Soviets

MOSCOW (UP) — Mrs. Erika Glaser Wallach, adopted daughter of Noel and Herta Field, has been freed from a Soviet labor camp and is in Moscow awaiting transportation to the West, it became known today.

Mrs. Wallach, the last member of the Field family to emerge from captivity by the Communists, was released several days ago. She appeared healthy and was reported anxious to return home.

She is trying to get Soviet travel papers to go to Berlin by train where she hopes to get an American visa and join her husband, Robert, who is living in Virginia near Washington with their two children.

Mrs. Wallach apparently has been corresponding with her husband, averaging one postcard a month to him and receiving pictures of her children.

Mrs. Wallach, 33, disappeared in East Berlin in 1950 while seeking information about the Fields.

Noel Field, a former U.S. State Department and League of Nations official, disappeared from Prague, Czechoslovakia, on May 12, 1949.

Field's wife, Herta, and his brother, Hermann, a former Cleveland, Ohio, architect, went to Prague to look for him two months later. Hermann went on alone to Warsaw Poland, where he disappeared on Aug. 22, 1949. His wife vanished from Prague.

Noel and Herta Field were released by the Hungarian government in Budapest in November, 1954, but chose to remain there in "asylum."

Hermann, who was released a month earlier by the Polish government after being cleared of spy charges, went to Switzerland to recuperate and is still there.

Indianapolis Will Stay On Fast Time

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—The city of Indianapolis, bellwether of a Central Indiana area where more than a million persons live, will stay on "fast" time when many Hoosier communities revert to "slow" time.

The City Council made no move at a regular meeting Monday night to backtrack from a stand made last spring to keep Daylight Saving Time this winter.

In effect, the council ignored a request by the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce and governmental leaders from numerous cities and towns in the general area to switch back to Central Standard Time around Oct. 30.

Capehart Speaks At Hammond Rally

GARY, Ind. (UP)—Sen. Homer E. Capehart completed a tour of Lake County in behalf of Republican candidates in the Indiana municipal election today with appearances at Hammond and Hobart.

Monday night the Hoosier Republican spoke at Hammond as part of his 26-speech campaign. Other cities on this week's schedule were Indianapolis, French Lick, Madison and Seymour.

Capehart's itinerary winds up on Nov. 7, election eve, at Washington, his home town. He also will appear at Crawfordsville, Clinton, Richmond, Marion, Muncie, East Chicago Franklin, Linton, Mount-Vernon, New Castle, Valparaiso, Lafayette, Nappanee Elkhart, Goshen and Warsaw.

Towne Wins Split Decision From Savage

NEW YORK, — Artie Towne of New York won a split decision from Milo Savage Monday night at St. Nicholas arena.

There were no knockdowns in the 10-rounder, but Towne opened a cut over Savage's eye in the final round.

Hoosier To Observe His 104th Birthday

VEVAY, Ind. (UP)—Francis L. Miller, who with his 99-year-old wife observed their 78th wedding anniversary two months ago, will celebrate his 104th birthday anniversary Wednesday.

Miller was born only a few miles from his present home near the tiny community of Pleasant. He and Mrs. Miller, who will be 100 years old next April 19, were married just 12 years after the end of the Civil War.

They lived for 64 years of their married life on a farm near Dupont and moved away only when the government took their farm for the Jefferson Proving Ground in 1941.

The home in which they now live is occupied by four generations of Millers, including greatgrandchildren of the centenarian.

What's New In Washington

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — What's new in Washington:

The problem of a language barrier came up when the college kids were being briefed about their trip to South America on an exchange of young farmers. Farmerette Mary Louise Ansberry of San Adro, Calif., o nher way to Uruguay, said she didn't think any of the nine in the group would have an trouble. All of them know how to pitch hay and milk a cow. Language would be no problem, either, she said. "Pass the butter is an international phrase," she said, "and not only that we all know how to reach across the table."

Betty Jane Owen is one government gal who can tell you that the spoils system doesn't mean too much. She was "spoiled" from her job in he Agriculture Department when the Republicans came in. Meaning she got a notice saying her particular job was being abolished. But under civil service she switched to another section of the Agriculture Department—and has gone up four grades. A lot more take home. Better still, she would up marrying the son of her boss.

One of the oldest bars in Washington is the "Old Ebbitt" which has been in business since the Civil War. It still exhibits a sign which says: "One man on his feet is worth two on his seat." The point is that since the repeal of prohibition it has been against the law in Washingon to stand on your feet at a bar.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover made a plea not long ago for better salaries for police officers. He made the statement that in one town at least, a beginning garbage collector gathered more take-home than a rookie cop. Hoover made it clear that he had nothing against garbage collectors. Nonetheless he got a flock of mail from wives of rookie garbage collectors, not to mention posies from the spouses of rookie coppers.

U. S. Appeals To Britain To Back The Philippines

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The United States was reported today to have appealed to Britain for help in its fight to get the Phillipines elected to a seat on the United Nations Security Council.

The assembly will resume balloting Wednesday afternoon on the deadlocked issue in which Russia first supported Communist Poland and then switched to Yugoslavia as a compromise candidate.

The United States backed the Philippines from the start.

Rene Coty Gives French Leaders Earnest Warning

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

President Rene Coty has given his fellow French leaders an earnest warning that they had better end their long political spree.

Unless they do, he told them, France is going to lose its position as a world power.

He said that Parliament must end a situation in which a French premier is harassed and tormented from the moment he takes office until he resigns or is overthrown.

The sole solution, he said, is radical constitutional reform which will give France the political stability it has lacked for 40 years.

In giving his admonition, Coty stepped aside from his accustomed role.

The role is that of a non-political chief of state. Coty is not a chief executive. His job more nearly approximates that of Queen Elizabeth II than that of President Eisenhower.

Coty gave his warning in a speech Saturday. He had in mind the fact that Edgar Faure, France's 21st premier since the end of World War II, faces a critical vote of confidence today.

Coty must have thought deeply before he spoke. He usually is content to remain the background, as he is supposed to do, as the 16th president of the French Republic.

He presides over cabinet meetings and he formally appoints France's premiers. He also is chief of the armed forces.

But the cabinet and the National Assembly—which corresponds to the British House of Commons—run the country.

The cabinet is directly responsible to the National Assembly, not to Coty. And actually the National Assembly, not Coy, names the premier.

Presidents of France are elected not by popular vote but by Parliament in joint session.

Navy Says New Record Of Bomber Can Be Bettered

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Navy says its tiny A4D jet attack bomber which has set a new world speed record of nearly 700 miles an hour around a closed circuit course can fly even faster.

"The new record does not reflect the maximum speed capabilities" of the bantam bomber, the Navy said.

The A4D, built by Douglas Aircraft, set a new record of 695.163 m.p.h. in flying five times around a 100 kilometer course last Saturday at Edwards Air Force Base, Muroc, Calif.

The plane's new record compares with the 760 m.p.h. speed of sound at sea level. It bettered by 45 miles an hour the previous record for a 500-kilometer measured course set by Air Force Maj. John L. Armstrong in an F86H Sabre Jet on Sept. 3, 1954, at Dayton, Ohio.

The new record was set by Lt. Gordon Gray, 32, La Jolla, Calif.

The world's official absolute speed record of 822 m.p.h., set on a straightaway course, was established last August by Air Force Col. Horace Hanes in an F100C Super Sabre.

Offer Different Roads For South In Presidential Race

POINT CLEAR, Ala. (UP) — Sharply differing roads for the South in the 1956 presidential race were offered today at the 21st annual Southern Governors Conference.

Republican Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland said the GOP with or without President Eisenhower can again lure the Southern vote.

Gov. George Bell Timmerman Jr. of South Carolina, enraged over a "trend by both parties" away from constitutional government, predicted a third party movement.

Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee, the nation's youngest chief executive at 35, vowed a Solid-South return to the Democratic fold.

Presidential politics appeared to be uppermost on the minds of most of the 16 governors who arrived Monday night for the conference.

Albion Man Killed In Car Crash Near Fort Wayne

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UP)—Carl H. Hardick, 31, Albion, was killed Monday night when an auto went out of control on rain-slick U.S. 24 six miles west of here and overturned. Three other passengers were injured but driver Robert Turnbull, 25, Fort Wayne, escaped unscathed.

Womens Program Planned For Muck Crop Show

LAFAYETTE, — A day-long program for women has been scheduled during the Northern Indiana Muck Crop Show at Walkerton Thursday, October 27. The four-day muck crop exposition will open October 25 and continue through October 28.

At noon, a vegetable plate lunch preparatin contest will open with Mrs. Lloyd Thomas, Walkerton, in charge.

Any homemaker in Indiana, except professional home economists and families of extension personnel or ladies who have participated in previous muck crop contests, are eligible to compete. Entries should be sent to Fraser at the Horticulture Building, Purdue University, on or before October 27.

Mrs. Ray Kaufman will serve as chairman of an entertainment program for the women at 2:30 p.m. After a number of musical selections by Walkerton high school groups, a travelogue will be presented by Mrs Don Brearley, Monticello. U. S. Senators Give Token Cash Donations To Egypt's Collection

CAIRO, Egypt (UP) — Four touring United States senators Monday gave token cash donations to Egypt's collection to buy arms from Czechoslovakia.

The senators — Harley Kilgore (D-WVa), John McClellan (D-Ark), Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass) and John Stennis (D-Miss) — had just ended a visit with Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser. They were approached by Sheikh Ahmed Salem, a dwarf who stands only three feet, six inches. He is in charge of arms fund collections.

The wrinkle-faced little man, wearing a turban, rushed forward and thrust his cash box toward the Americans, saying in English, "Money for the army."

The senators were taken aback and an official quickly explained They broke into smiles, reached into their pockets and dropped coins into the box, which brought applause from bystanders.

Witnesses were unable to estimate the amount donated by the senators. They said the coins were mostly five piasters (15 cents).

Egypt is currently observing Egyptian Armament Week to collect funds for the purchase the arms.

Kefauver Has Not Decided About Running

For President In 1956 Campaign

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver says he has not made up his mind whether he will run for president in 1956.

The Tennessee Democrat issued a mimeographed statement Monday saying he wants to consult "a number of Democratic leaders in various parts of the country."

Kefauver said he would decide and announce his decision within a "reasonable" time. But he indicated that he is in no hurry.

He told newsmen his decision will not be materially influenced by similar decisions to be made by President Eisenhower and Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson.

Stevenson was in New York today for a conference with Sen. Herbert H. Lehman (D-NY), a supporter of Stevenson and a possible holdout if the New York delegation goes to the Democratic convention pledged to Gov. Averell Harriman. A spokesman for Lehman said the senator may have something to say about the Democratic presidential nomination in a week or so.

Kefauver did make clear that he is not considering the vice presidency and that he will run for the top job or not at all.

Chances For Peace Are Good At This Time Says Nixon

NEW YORK (UP)—Vice President Richard Nixon said Monday night that the coming Geneva Big Four ministers connference holds more promise for resolving East-West differences than any conference since World War II.

Nixon spoke at the New York Herald Tribune Forum. His speech was non-partisan and even included a quotation from Democratic President Woodrow Wilson.

Nixon said the "chances for peace today are better than at any time since World War II." He cited the "Spirit of Geneva" as setting up the peaceful atmosphere but warned that the Geneva sripit "does not mean peace at any price."

The vice president said Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will go to Geneva "on the lookout for the real policies of the Kremlin—no merely professions of good will."

"The United States is willing to accept any proposal leading towards peace," Nixon said, "except one that would mean surrender of our own freedom or the freedom of others. . ."

He said the American position is the same as stated in 1912 by Woodrow Wilson who said: "A patriotic American is never so proud of the great flag under which he lives as when it comes to mean to other people as well as to himself a symbol of hope and liberty."

Oil Progress Week Parade Here Saturday Afternoon

The first Oil Progress Week parade was held in Columbia City Saturday afternoon at 1:30.

The parade was held in conjunction with the national observance of the part petroleum has played in the development of America.

From nylons and other clothing, from cosmetics, to the gasoline used in cars and the oil used for fuel, the oil industry has brought the standard of living to its present peak.

Altogether there were 35 units participating in the parade, including the Columbia City fire engine, Police car, old Model "T", ambulances, farm tractors, farm machinery, dairy trucks, new 1956 automobiles, tank trucks and transports.

Al Bennett served as county chairman for the observance here, assisted by Ed Heupel. Willard Phillips was county oil information chairman.

Body Of Eva Peron To Be Reburied

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UP)—The new Argentine government moved today to erase another "memorial" to the 10 years dictatorship of Juan D. Peron, the "shrine" of the late Eva Peron.

It was announced that the body of the wife of the deposed Argentine "strongman" will be removed from its tomb in the headquarters of the General Confederation of Labor. It will be turned over to the next of kin for re-burial, the announcement said.

Production Reaches One- Third Of Normal At Perfect Circle

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP)—Production reached one-third of normal today at the Perfect Circle Corp. foundry, scene of a three-month strike which erupted into a picket line gun battle two weeks ago.

Company officials reported a few additional workers show up each morning to supplement a force of non-striking workmen who operated the plant despite the strike until the Oct. 5 violence.

Meanwhile, life continued much as usual for the Henry County populace under martial law imposed to prevent more bloodshed in the bitter labor controversy.

Indiana National Guard troops have confiscated 29 guns, 36 cases of beer and 75 bottles of liquor, as well as blackjacks, knives, knucks and ammunition, since they set up roadblocks to control traffic in and out of the area. Four men were arrested and charged in military court with bootlegging while a ban on the sale of liquor continued.

One of the biggest headaches of the civil government, which was subordinated to the military when the troops occupied the areas, was the operation of Henry Circuit Court. Civil cases scheduled since Oct. 10, when martial law was imposed, have been continued while attorneys and the judge confer with state officials about removing the court from military control.

Governor Craig lifed martial law Mondnay for a triangular area around the corporation's two Richmond plants and reduced the number of troops at Hagerstown, where the main plant is located. The effect of the order was to cut the number of guardmen in the strike area from 1,000 to 600.

Don't Cut Sweet Potato Vines Off

LAFAYETTE, — "Don't cut the sweet potato vine from the roots even if damaged by frost, "W. B. Ward, extension horticulturist in vegetables at Purdue University warns Hoosier farmers and home gardeners.

Ward says some growers follow the erroneous idea that the vine, when damaged by frost, should be cut off before "sun up" or the roots will not keep. Cutting off the vine before harvest not only exposes the roots to later chilling temperatures but causes a decrease in the yield.

Since the sweet potato is an enlargement of the root, it will continue to grow and increase in size as long as the roots stay alive. The stored plant food in the stem and leaf will function for some time after the leaves have been nipped by frost.

Five hundred thirty-four thousand persons participated in the War of 1812.

Building Booms In Six-County Chicago Area

By ALFRED LEECH
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—Industrial and residential construction is booming in the six-county Chicago area and the labor supply in the building trades is tight, a study shows.

The Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry reported that new plant construction and expansion during the first nine months zoomed about 41 per cent above the corresponding period of 1954.

Meanwhile, building industry sources reported that residential construction this year appears likely to top the billion-dollar mark for the first time in history.

U.S. Department of Labor spokesmen said competition is keen for skilled labor in the building trades. Officials of the Illinois Labor Department concurred, and said very few building trade employes have applied recently for unemployment compensation.

Skilled Workers Needed

Signs reading, "Bricklayers Wanted," have become almost commonplace wherever housing developments, shopping centers and new plants are being built.

Figures compiled by the association showed that expenditures for industrial projects alone, including land and equipment costs, hit $258,970,000 by mid-September, compared to $183,081,000 for the same period last year.

Nevertheless, industrial expansion this year seemed unlikely to top the record of $461,545,000 set in 1942, of the $401,586,000 in 1951, the second best year.

The figures cover Cook, Lake, Kane, DuPage and Will counties in Illinois and Lake County in Indiana, where the biggest industrial expansion projects are underway.

Major projects for the six-county area include expansion programs being carried out by Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., Inland Steel and United States Steel Corp.

Youngstown is building a large bore seamless pipe mill, a battery of 75 coke ovens and two high pressure boilers with a 25,000 kilowatt generator at Indiana Harbor, Ind.

These projects are in addition to a 7-building Youngstown tinplate mill announced earlier this year.

Many New Projects

Inland Steel is building 87 coke ovens at Indiana Harbor. It also has installed facilities to produce wide-flange structural steel beams at a cost of about $14,755,000 and this project is about to go into production.

Inland also is installing additional material handling equipment in one of its giant Indiana Harbor open hearth shops to add 200,000 tons of the plant's annual production capacity.

United States Steel is expanding its Gary Sheet and Tin Mill with the addition of a high speed electrolytic tinning line.

Standard Oil, hit by a disastrous explosion at its Whiting, Ind., refinery, is conducting engineering studies to determine whether to rebuild its fluid hydroformer.

Meanwhile the company has announced plans for immediate construction of a new ultraforming unit originally scheduled for construction in 1957. The unit will have a capacity of 14,000 barrels of high octane gasoline per day.

Brazilian Senator Challenges Publisher To An Armed Duel

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UP)—Paulo Bittencourt, publisher of the Correio de Manha and president of the Inter-American Press Assn., has been challenged to an "armed duel" by a Brazilian senator his newspaper castigated.

Sen. Jaracy Magalhaes issued the challenge in a speech in the Senate Monday. He proposed the duel be held in Uruguay because such "affairs of honor" are prohibited by Brazilian law.

An editorial in Correio da Manha Sunday denounced Magalhaes as a "low-level demogagoe, irresponsible and turncoat."

Magalhaes was a collaborator of the late President Getulio Vargas who committed suicide last year after being ousted by the armed forces. After Vargas' death, he became prominent in the political circles of the new government.

Administration increased down payment requirements and shortened maximum loan periods.

Consumer credit figures won't be available until the end of October and there will be no official indication until then of the effect of the tighter loan policies on business boom.

But a top administration official disclosed recently that confidential figures led him to believe "there is no cause for alarm" in the large amount of consumer credit outstanding.

He conceded total installment credit should be smaller but added that the picture is "in the process of improving."

Chance of Progress

The United States his gravely concerned by recent Soviet bloc diplomatic moves in the Middle East. The Communist world already has arranged to end Czech arms to Egypt; Russia has hinted it might be willing to provide weapons to Israel; and has offered to help Egypt biuld a 600 million dollar dam on the Nile.

Before leaving for a Denver meeting with President Eisenhower, Dulles also:

1. Revealed that the United tates, in talks already underway at Geneva, has raised the question of Red China renouncing use of force in trying to solve Far East problems In the same discussions, Dulles said, Red China has raised the question of trade and a higher level meeting between Communist China and the United States.

2. Disclosed that he told India's roving ambassador, V. K. Krishna Menon, the time is far from ripe for a high level meeting between the United States and Red China Dulles said the possibilities of progress at the current Geneva discussions between the two nations should first be fully exhausted before considering a higher level session.

3. Said he believes there is a reasonable chance of practical and substantial progress at Geneva on European security, German unity disarmament and lowering East-West barriers. He emphasized that he does not expect German unification either to be accomplished or assured at the foreign ministers meeting starting Oct. 27. But he said he expects the Western nations and Russia to be brought closer together on the German issue.

4. Said there were certain aspects of the recent visit of Soviet farm experts to the United States that were undesirable such as the emotionalism attached to the visit. He did not elaborate on this point. But Dulles said that, on the whole, he believes such exchanges between the East and West are probably desirable.

5. Announced he will leave Friday afternoon for Rome for a talk with Italian leaders on common problems. From there he will go on to Paris and Geneva for the foreign ministers meetin.

Industry Official Foresees Possible Labor Shortage

WASHINGTON (UP) — An electronics industry official said today that unless automation is stepped up "there is a strong probability of a labor shortage in the years ahead."

President Don G. Mitchell of Sylvania Electric Products Inc said fears that automation will lead to wide scale unemployment are groundless. On the contrary he said, the national labor force probably will not keep pace with the growing production demands of the future, and more labor-saving devices such as provided by automation must fill the gap

Mitchell, in a statement prepared for a joint congressional subcommittee on economic stabilization, said past experience proved his point. Quoting employment figures for recent years, he noted that the rise in employment did not match the nation's increase in production. Automation, he said made the difference.

"There is no question but that the rate of mechanization will have to be increased if we are to realize our ambitions of a steadily rising standard of living and a shorter work week," Mitchell said.

Motorist Reports Seeing Two 'Hot Rods' In Forest Preserve

Congress Likely To Consider Some Form Of Federal Flood Insurance

By HERBERT FOSTER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — New England's second disastrous flood in three months is likely to spur Congress to its first serious consideration of some form of federal flood insurance.

President Eisenhower assured New England governors by letter from Denver Tuesday that the administration will make specific legislative suggestions next month.

The Senate Banking Committee, with Sen. Herbert H. Lehman (D-NY) as acting chairman, will begin a series of hearings on the problem here next month, and later will move its hearings to flood and hurricane - stricken Connecticut, New York, Rhode Island and perhaps North Carolina and Massachusetts.

It is to these hearings that Mr. Eisenhower said the administration, which has been studying the problem, will submit some program for insuring citizens against flood damage, a field seldom adequately covered by private insurance policies.

No legislation is now pending, but Lehman and several other senators have announced that they will sponsor some sort of insurance program. Generally, their bills are still in the drafting stage.

Lehman's proposal is expected to cover not only food damage, but the risks of future wars, including atomic bombs, and similar disasters too big for private companies to handle. As now contemplated, it would involve some direct government insurance and some reinsurance in which the government would add its backing to that of private companies.

Other members of Congress, particularly from flooded states, have announced they also will sponsor insurance legislation. Massachusetts' Sens. Leverett Saltonstall (R) and John F. Kennedy (D) jointly announced they would introduce a bill.

Sen. Prescott Bush (R-Conn) also promised legislation. So did various House members.

Rescuers Report Death Toll Of 50 In One Town

Literally Buried By Mud And Debris

MEXICO CITY (UP) — Rescue teams which reached Mexico's storm-battered Pacific Coast reported today a death toll of 50 in one town which was "literally buried" by mud and debris.

Many other sections of the three-state West Coast area flooded by a violent storm which blew in off the Pacific three days ago remained inaccessible today.

Red Cross teams were flown to the town of Atenquique in Jalisco State and reported the "whole place" was covered by mud with "only the church steeple showing." The teams said 50 bodies had been recovered in Atenquique.

At Mexico City, officials said they had had no communications with the little coastal state of Colima for more than two days. It was reported "virtually all under water."

Rescue workers said Tuesday night they were unable to get within more than 75 miles of Colima City because of washed-out bridges and inundated roads.

Authorities in Michoacan State also said no word had been received from a number of towns and villages caught in the sudden floods.

British Support Of Yugoslavia Dims U. S. Hopes

Of Winning Seat For Philippines

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) —British and Soviet support of Yugoslavia dimmed hopes of the U.S. - backed Philippines winning a seat in the United Nations Security Council today.

The General Assembly resumes balloting for the seat at 1 p.m. CST against a background of frantic diplomatic maneuvering to settle the deadlocked issue.

The election, which ran through six inconclusive votes last Friday, overshadowed debate on peaceful uses of atomic energy in the main political committee. Sen. John O. Pastore (D-RI) was scheduled to present a revised Anglo-American resolution providing for an 84-nation conference to set up an international agency to govern peaceful uses of atomic energy.

In the election race, an exchange of high-level messages between Washington and London was understood to have left both Britain and the United States holding firmly to their positions in support of Yugoslavia and the Phillippines respectively.

The Philippines came within one vote of the required two - thirds majority last Friday over Poland, Russia's original candidate.

On the fourth ballot, the Russians dumped Poland and switched their support to Yugoslavia, which also gained Britain's support.

Research Important Factor In American Economic Growth

Lafayette, - Research may be the most important single factor in America's economic growth, a distinguished scientists and administrator revealed Tuesday in a lecture at Purdue University.

Dr. Raymond H. Ewell of the National Science Foundation, speaking under joint sponsorship of the Purdue sections of the American Chemical Society and the Society of Sigma Xi, said that he has found "a definite correlation" between America's research expenditures and her economic growth.

The pioneer in the economics of research estimated that if no research had been conducted from 1928 to 1953, national product would have been $400 to $800 billion dollars lower than it was.

Comparing research spending during that peiod with the national product, Dr. Ewell found that the annual return on research investment averaged 100 percent to 200 per cent per year.

"This represents a very high rate of return compared with other areas of investment," Dr. Ewell declared, concluding:

"Perhaps it would be in the national interest for us to put more of the national income, or the national effort, into research than we are now doing."

Dr. Ewell is currently assistant director for program analysis of the National Science Foundation. Having pioneered in the field of the role of research on economic growth, he is now organizing a research economics group in the National Science Foundation, to study this entire area.

A former chemistry department staff member at Purdue, Dr. Ewell, took his M.S. degree there in 1930, and his Ph. D. in 1937. During the war, he received the medal of Merit for his work on developing the flame throwers and incendiary bombs.

President Holds Conference With Secretary Dulles

About Forthcoming Geneva Meeting

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower holds a last-minute bed side conference today with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles about the forthcoming Big Four foreign ministers' conference in Geneva.

When Dulles' plane landed Tues day night, he said the theme of his and the President's conference was "getting ready for Geneva." But Dulles and the recuperating President were expected to cover a wide range of foreign developments.

Meanwhile, the President's doctors in their first medical bulletin of the day issued at 7 a.m. MST (8 a.m. CST) said the President slept nine hours Tuesday night and that his condition continues to progress.

The conference will be brief, on doctors' orders, and was set some time during the morning. Later today, Dulles will fly back to Washington for a conference Thursday with congressional leaders of both parties. He leaves Saturday for Geneva.

The President steadily gained strength and his doctors went ahead with their methodical preparations to get him back on his feet again. He was allowed in a wheelchair Tuesday for the first time.

Lifted From Bed

But hospital corpsmen lifted him from his bed and into the wheelchair, and, after pushing him about on an eighth floor terrace at Fitzsimons Army Hospital for 30 minutes, returned him to the bed.

While the President was sitting in his room, he was visited by Dr. Milton Eisenhower, his younger brother, who is the president of Pennsylvania State University. Mrs. Eisenhower brought the President up-to-date on goings on at

The boy, Richard, wanted to tag along to the movies with three of his friends. But Mrs. Padal ruled in favor of a family auto trip to the Williams Bay, Wis., area.

Richard cried when his mother said "no."

But about five hours later his three friends, Robert Peterson and John and Anton Schuessler, were murdered somewhere on Chicago's northwest side.

Driver Dozes, Unhurt When Car Overturns

James Dimmick Makes Miraculous Escape OnState Road 14

James Dimmick, 18, of South Whitley, made a near miraculous escape about 9 o'clock this morning when he dozed at the wheel and his Ford coach was completely wrecked as it left state road 14 and overturned several times about two miles east of the junction with state roads 5 and 105.

Dimmick, rushed to the Whitley County Hospital, was found to have no fractures, but he will be held at the hospital overnight before being released. He also escaped lacerations and his bruises were minor. He was taken to the hospital in the Miller Funeral Home ambulance, summoned from South Whitley.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Dimmick, South Whitley, was westbound, returning home after work at the Salisbury Axle Works plant, Fort Wayne, having completed his first night on duty at the factory.

His car was a total loss. State Trooper Hammersly, Warsaw, and Deputy Sheriff Calvin Watkins, investigated the accident. They found that when Dimmick's car left the highway at a curve it traveled 340 feet, rolling over at least twice, before coming to rest with the wheels skyward. Interior as well as the exterior of the car was nearly demolished. The car hit a grassy slope along the highway soon after leaving the pavement.

Price Of Newsprint To Be Increased Effective November 1

MONTREAL (UP)—Some major producers of Canadian newsprint indicated today they may follow the lead of the St. Lawrence Paper Corp. and announce an increase by $5 a ton effective Nov. 1, in the price of newsprint which customers on both sides of the border protested as unjustified.

The increase would hike the price for U.S. customers from $126 to $131 per ton. Newsprint customers in Canada, although equally affected by the price boost, will pay around $127 a ton because of the traditional difference of $4 a ton between New York and Canadian basic prices.

The viewpoint of some American customers was expressed in a statement by B.H. Ridder Jr., president of the Inland Press Assn. which is holding its annual fall meeting in Chicago.

Ridder, who is also publisher of the Duluth (Minn.) Herald and News-Tribune, said that the exceptionally strong financial position of the newsprint industry did not justify a price increase and that the sincerity of any statement made by spokesmen for the newsprint industry in Canada was now put to the true test.

In Washington, meanwhile, the Justice Department said it was "studying" the increase in newsprint prices. A department spokesman emphasized that the department "is not investigating the situation, just studying it."

Charge Stirs Up New Bitterness In New Castle

Reuther Says Craig Pulled Double-Cross

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP)—CIO President Walter P. Reuther's charge that Gov. George N. Craig pulled a "double-cross" by failing to end martial law stirred up new bitterness today in strife-torn New Castle.

New Castle was the scene of a gun battle between nstrikers and gun battle between strikers and non-strikers at the Perfect Circle Corp. foundry Oct. 5, in which nine persons were wounded.

Reuther, in Detroit, charged that Craig promised several days ago to remove National Guardsmen and reinstate civil law at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

He telegraphed Craig: "The only assumption nwhich I and my associates from the United Auto Workers, and the Perfect Circle workers and CIO members generally can draw is that you suddenly have seen an opportunity to use to your own personal political advantage a collective bargaining dispute that exists only because a reactionary and recalcitrant management prefers violence and bloodshed to the peaceful and sensible procedures of industrial democracy."

Meanwhile, 300 of 600 guardsmenn stationed in the area prepared to go home by noon Thursday on Craig's orders.

Craig acted after the troop commander said he "feels he can police the area properly with fewer menn."

There will be no relaxation in martial law regulations, however.

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Governor Craig said today he is "very much pleased" with CIO President Walter Reuther's pledge of no more violence at the strife-torn Perfect Circle Corp.

But Craig said Reuther's charge that the governor pulled a "double-cross" by failing to end martial law, and other accusations, "will not be dignified by either comment or answer" because they are "false."

Plan Would Save Half-Billion In DefenseSpending

Wilson Outlines New Move

WASHINGTON (UP) — The administration has directed the military services to concentrate on the weapons and forces needed in the opening stages of a war and cut down on building long-term war reserves.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson brought the new move to light Tuesday in outlining a plan which he hopes will bring annual savings of about 500-million dollars in defense spending.

Wilson said that the savings sought would be "just one little piece" of the effort to balance the federal budget and would help to offset increasing military spending in the field of weapons, radar and other new developments.

The emphasis on forces ready to strike devastating blows at the opening stages of a conflict fits the theory, mainly, advanced by the Air Force, that another global war would be decided quickly because of the power of nuclear weapons.

Wilson told a news conference late Tuesday that the Pentagon had turned away from the idea of preparing to "refight" a five-year war on the World War II pattern and "storing all the brooms and adding machines" in advance.

The new orders to concentrate on modern weapons, reduce inventories and make manpower savings were in line with the administration new look for defense adopted in 1953. But Wilson said there now is need "for further review" to assure that defense programs are aligned as closely as possible to "current administration policy and world conditions."

He directed the services to eliminate about 68,000 civilian jobs by next June 30. That will make a civilian cutback of more than 250,000 since Wilson took office. Most of the cuts are achieved through attrition rather than firings.

Few Feet From Ditch Where 3 Bodies Are Found

Gives Credence To Theory Of Teen-Age Gang Slaying

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP) A motorist reported today that he saw two "hot rod type" cars in a forest preserve parking area a few feet from the ditch where the nude and mutilated bodies of three young boys were found.

Police said the report was their "hottest lead so far."

The motorist, E.J. Malone of suburban Schiller Park, said he saw a light green convertible and a cream-colored sedan Tuesday morning, a few hours before the bodies were found.

But he said he thought nothing of it at the time and naturally did not get the license numbers.

Police said the "hot rod" angle gave credence to the theory that the three youngsters were slain by a teen-age gang in one of the city's most shocking crimes.

Search Through Woods

The bodies of the three boys, missing since Sunday, were found stacked like cordwood in a ditch in Robinson's Woods northwest of the city. The victims were Robert Peterson, 14, John Schuessler, 13, and his brother, Anton Jr., 11.

A searching party of about 150 men, including 110 members of the 49th Anti-Aircraft Battalion stationed near the scene, searched the woods this morning.

There was a report that a soldier had found a pair of burned

Princess Margaret Faces Leaders Of Church Of England At Royal State Dinner Tonight

LONDON (UP) — Princess Margaret faces tonight at a state dinner the leaders of the Church of England—the bishops and archbishops who above all others oppose her marriage to Peter Townsend.

The state dinner for the royal family gave the outspoken Archbishop of Canterbury an opportunity to deliver his verdict on whether the church will use all its power to block a wedding.

The dinner at Lambeth Palace was the fourth of five crucial events this week in the unfolding romance.

There were three Tuesday. Prime Minister Anthony Eden met with his cabinet to discuss the legal implications of such a wedding. Then Eden went to see the Queen While they talked Princess Margaret received Townsend once more —their sixth date in six days.

The fifth major event of the week comes Thursday when Eden, believed fully briefed in an unusually long 90-minute call on the Queen at Buckingham Palace holds another cabinet meeting at No. 10 Downing St.

Tonight's dinner was a crucial one though the conversation may never be made public. It brought Margaret together with her sister the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh who scowled behind dark glasses Tuesday when he was caught and detained by the throng in front of Clarence House. He is reported leading the opposition to the wedding.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, could not sanction the marriage. But it was still unknown whether he would lead the Church of England in condemning it if Margaret chose to wed Townsend outside the state church.

The traditions of the empire hinged on his decision—silence or public protest. The crown and the church are linked in a thousand years of union and the Queen herself is defender of the faith.

The archbishop is known for forthrightness in expressing his views on church matters, but it could not be foretold whether he would broach the publicity over the romance and its effect on the church.

His views are well known, however, and he has repeatedly stated his support of the church ban on remarriage of divorcees while the first partner is living. He said earlier this year this includes "all persons without exception."

Townsend is the innocent party in a divorce.

"The Bible is the rock upon which our republic rests"
Andrew Jackson

To the hundreds of tourists, who daily come to gaze upon Plymouth Rock, a certain awesome solemnity is felt, as they look down upon this glacial boulder that is such a vital part in the life of every American.

There is nothing about Plymouth Rock that is as important as the part it has played as a symbol in our country's tradition. It was on this rock that the Pilgrims planted their feet when first they landed—feet that felt freedom from the old world suppression, that had sent them out to worship Almighty God in their own way.

When in 1620 these Pilgrims had landed on the New England coast it was natural for them to drop on their knees in prayer, to thank the God above for their arrival in this new world.

Soon afterwards the chopping of trees was heard, as the men began to build homes for their families. The women, too, pitched in, hauling forth their kitchenware brought from the other side. These were a people who had made their own way, and in so doing they founded and gave us our nation — They gave us America. They had landed! They had worked! They had prayed to God!

Today, 335 years later, as we view Plymouth Rock, we can realize that it does not mark a beginning or an end.

It is a revelation of that which is without beginning and without ending; it is a purpose, shining through eternity with resplendent light, a light undimmed by man's imperfections, and with an answering purpose, from those who, disdainful of all else, left an older and tottering civilization, to come to a new world so that they might seek only an avenue for their immortal souls.

It is no bad thing for a nation to be founded on a rock.

Thomas To Serve 20 Days In Jail

Gerald E. Thomas, 28, Fort Wayne, arrested here Saturday, pleaded guilty before Judge Lowell Pefley in circuit court late Tuesday to a charge of driving while drunk and was sentenced to a six-month term at the Indiana State farm. The court suspended all of the sentence except 20 days which was ordered served at the county jail.

In addition Thomas was fined $50 and costs and the court recommended that his auto driver's license be suspended for one year.

Thomas waived trial by jury and declined appointment of a defense attorney. The charge against Thomas was drawn up by Prosecuting Attorney Edward J. Meyers. Officers who made the arrest were Norman Pierce, state policeman, and Morris Carlile, of the city police department.

Davila, 68, died at his home on the grounds of the Pan American Union, after having suffered reverses in his recovery from an operation performed last May for Cancer of the kidney. His heart also was affected by complications which developed in recent weeks.

Davila had been regarded as on the way to recovery from the operation, which was performed in Norwalk, Conn., last May 10. Last Saturday night, however, e suffered a reverse and his condition continued critical since then.

Davila was the second head of the Pan American Union to die in office in recent years. Dr. Leo S. Rowe, who held the former title of director general of the union for 26 years, was killed by an automobile on a Washington street in 1946.

Love-Crazed Soldier Kills His Mistress And Then Himself

MIAMI (UP) A soldier's suicide note today told the story of his love for a major's wife that began with their headlined flight across Germany and ended in blazing gunfire, suicide and murder at a busy Miami intersection.

"This ends what was once a beautiful romance," the note said.

George D. Bryson Jr., 32-year-old combat veteran of two wars, wrote the note Tuesday a few hours before he pumped two bullets into his mistress, Mrs. Sylvia Dahl Hess, 22, then shot himself in the temple and fell dead across her body.

Witnesses said Bryson met Mrs. Hess at an intersection near where she worked as a waitress. They quarreled violently and slapped at each other Then Bryson took a gun from his pocket and fired the three fatal shots.

End Much Like Start

The romance ended much as it had begun.

Bryson, a veteran of World War II and the Korean War had risen from buck private to first lieutenant and was stationed in Germany when he met Sylvia two years ago. She was the wife of a major.

The two fell in love and ran away together in a stolen jeep on a wild ride across the Black Forest of Germany. Bryson was captured, court martialed, and dishonorably discharged from the Army.

The incident had no effect on his romance. He took the woman he loved to Miami, and there they lived as common law husband and wife.

Quarreled Violently

Authorities said the beginning of the end occurred two months ago. The couple quarreled violently and separated.

Tuesday Bryson bought a .32 caliber automatic and some ammunition and wrote his suicide note. Then he waited near the place where Sylvia had recently obtained a job as a waitress.

Police said Sylvia's attentions to a Marine sergeant apparently touched off the shooting.

Authorities said Bryson was believed to have a wife and two children living at Bethlehem, Pa.

Sylvia's parents are residents of Ogden, Utah.

Seek Cause Of Fire In Which Three Lost Lives

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP)—Authorities poked through ruins of a modest three-room frame home on the western edge of the city today for cause of a fire in which three small Negro girls were burned to death.

Fire Chief Richard J. Duck speculated the blaze may have been set off when an oil heater ignited clothing.

The victims were Tannie Mae Smith, 3; Banice, 2, and three-months-old Ruth Mae, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith.

The fire broke out Tuesday shortly after their mother, Mrs. Montanna Smith, 21, left to go to neighbors. Enroute back she saw smoke pouring from the house but stood helplessly by as it burned to the ground.

Two bodies were found later on a couch in the front part of the house. Remains of the third child were found in another room on what appeared to have been a large bed.

Caterers Among Biggest TV Stars In Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Premiers of the new fall TV show are over, but the cocktail parties for them wound up with better reviews than the programs.

The television industry has a custom of herding the press together, stuffing them full of ice, olives and hors d'ouevres, and then flashingn some new show on a screen.

After two weeks of this hazardous life (once there were eight parties in one day) the results are in: The food got the highest rating.

Most critics agreed not one top new show or new personality emerged on the fall TV scene. Last year TV got "Medic", George Gobel and Disneyland. This year's George Gobel wasn't rated as high as last year's George Gobel.

The movie studios moved into TV with the air of a hero rushing to the rescue. But the Warner and Fox programs turned out to be long commercials, in disguise, for movies—plus filmed dramas that drew few raves. MGM may revise its show of old film clips, trade reports say, to include more live entertainment at the request of the sponsor.

Even Walt Disney's new "Mickey Mouse Club" was bombarded with complaints of too many commercials, not enough cartoons.

If the filet mignon served on the set of Mark Stevens' "Big Town" show could have had a rating, it would have pushed Jackie Gleason off the air. During the screening of the program, several scribes tried to tiptoe away but were caught in a maze of phoney doors on the sets.

The caterers are among the biggest TV stars in Hollywood these days.

Give Child Love Of Wildlife, Forests, Parks And Streams

"Forests, parks, abundant fish and wildlife, and pure water will do us little good if our youngsters grow up with false values, knowing nothing but money and machines," said Harley G. Hook, director of the Department of Conservation.

"We try, through our department and our conservation clubs, to bring conservation to as many as possible." We co-operate with such youth groups as the Boy and Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubs, Campfire Girls, and sponsor programs of game bird raising, game management, school activities, fire fighting and prevention, and a park system aimed at family use, continued Mr. Hook.

"These programs are very valuable, but their effect can be more than doubled if the children we contact have already been taught at home to love nature. If I could talk with every father in the state, I would urge each one to take his boy or girl along some of Indiana's thousand or more lakes and streams and into her fields and woodlands. No museum could possibly contain so many interesting exhibits as can be found here every day. A hike with a child will pay a double dividend too, since all of the adult's first love of nature will return as he relives his experiences with his son."

"The father and son who walk together along the banks of the Whitewater River, Brandywine Creek, the Mississinewa or the Tippecanoe, along the shores of any of the streams and lakes in Indiana, will find themselves in closer kinship and greater love of nature than ever before. Each will learn important lessons from the other, and the return to civilization will leave a memory of a day well spent.

Detroit's median income of $4,023 makes it the most prosperous big city in America.

TV Program Ballyhoo Pops Up In Strange Places

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Ballyhoo for television's $64,000 Question program is turning up in the strangest places, such as the monthly letter of New York's First National City Bank. There's a plug for it, too, on the editorial page of the current Saturday Evening Post.

The Wall Street Journal has taken note of the program. Financial writers as a group are interested in it. The bankers are interested because they and many others believe The $64,000 Question is an effective argument against what they regard as a bad tax law.

The bank calculated that a contestant who was single and had an income of $4,000 annually would have to win $448,711.11 to acquire $64,000 of actual, take-home prie money.

Long, Last Step

Such single person attaining the $64,000 of actual, take-home prize would be assessed a tax of $15,400, reducing the actual prize money to $16,600. If the contestant took the last, long step and doubled the $32,000 into $64,000, the additional tax bite would be $23,292. The take-home prize would be increased by only $8,708. The foregoing figures are from the bank's letter, which added:

"Thus he is risking an assured $16,000 for a chance to win an additional $8,708."

The program has been estimated to reach up to 55-million persons with a spectacular demonstration of the tax bite on relatively high income.

The bank argues that the same tax situation which discourages contestants from reaching from $32,000 toward $64,000 applies to businessmen with venture capital who refuse to risk it by reason of tax limitations on their possible return.

The Saturday Evening Post editorialized:

"What high taxation is doing to free enterprise is a subject which is about as interesting to the average man as a treatise on medieval metaphysics."

But the Post contended that the famous TV show would "cause millions of persons to give some thought to the effect of the tax laws on business."

"Perhaps," the Post suggested, "TV could make the thing even more dramatic by putting an industrial tycoon on the screen and letting him decide before millions of people whether it's worthwhile for him to go after another million dollar's worth of business or create 20,000 new jobs by building a new plant."

Mr. Eisenhower signed documents proclaiming Oct. 26 as "National Day of Prayer" and extending emergency flood relief to two more states — Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

After the President enjoyed his first wheelchair outing, Mrs. Eisenhower made her first public social appearance since he was stricken Sept. 24.

She attended a lunch and fashion show given by officers' wives at the hospital officers' club, and later went to the home of her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, before returning to the hospital.

It was the second time the first lady had left the main hospital building since the President's heart attack.

Two of the President's top medical advisers, Dr. Paul Dudley White, Boston heart specialist, and Col. Thomas W. Mattingly, heart Hospital in Washington, will return expert from Walter Reed Army Saturday for further conferences with the other doctors.

The results of their conferences may largely determine how much longer Mr. Eisenhower must stay in the hospital and where he may go to convalesce afterward.

Chicago's newest electric generation station consumes about 6,500 tons of coal daily, and 80 per cent is delivered by barges.

Congress

President Eisenhower did not disclose the nature of the administration proposal. But he gave a possible tipoff last year when he proposed a government reinsurance plan for health insurance, in which the Treasury would guarantee private companies against excessive loss.

The question of flood insurance has been before Congress in the past, but got short shift. Former President Truman asked for a federal flood insurance plan in 1952 in the wake of devastating Missouri Valley floods. But the 82nd Congress, then in its closing days, was plainly hostile. The House Banking Committee gave the idea a 90-minute hearing and dropped it.

On that occasion, the northeastern states had no recent memory of floods in their own back yards. Now nature may have changed their lawmakers' minds.

Mr. Eisenhower also assured the New England governors that the administration is determined to help their area get more physical protection against floods He promised full federal consideration of their detailed requests for emergency relief funds and of large additional sums for planning and construction of flood control projects and a hurricane survey.

Most of these requests for funds cover not only flood damage, but must be approved by Congress.

Adenauer Making Hopeful Progress

BONN, Germany (UP) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, 79, is making "good and hopeful progress" and is being allowed out of bed for brief periods, members of his household said today.

Adenauer left his bed for one hour Tuesday night for the first time since he fell ill with an attack of bronchial pneumonia two weeks ago. But he was not permitted to leave his room.

Charity rackets are currently getting about $100,000,000 of the total of close to two billion dollars given no private philanthropy in this country, notes a new Twentieth Century Fund report.

About 19 million persons — one out of every eight in the population — entered a hospital at some time during 1952, notes a new report of the Twentieth Century Fund.

In order to assure a speed of over 100 miles an hour on British Railways sharp curves are to be eliminated, new bridges built and the track facilities at stations improved.

Britain Announces Turboprop Transport

LONDON (UP) — Britain today disclosed its answer to the latest American jet passenger plane designs, a "double-bubble" turboprop transport that carries 105 passengers at 425 miles per hour.

Vickers-Armstrong released the design and British European Airways announced the first orders for the double-decker "Vanguard," a challenge to the American Lockheed Electra.

British airmen immediately dubbed the Vanguard "double-bubble" because of its two-deck design.

The Vanguard will be built by the same firm that developed the original turboprop Viscount airliner. The Viscount is the first all-British airliner sold to American carriers.

Eagles Lose 34-0

A demoralized Columbia City football team proved no match for the Huntington Vikings at Kreigbaum Field Tuesday night, as the Eagles were handed their seventh loss of the season 34-0.

From the outset of the game, the Vikings held the upper hand and scored twice in the opening period, and once in the remaining quarters. Huntington took Deutsch's opening kick-off and marched down the field for the first touchdown, sending Dolby over from the one-yard line with the game only five minutes old.

The Eagles took Huntington's kick-off and were thrown for three straight losses before Deutsch got off a hurried punt on fourth down. Huntington took the punt on the Eagle 40-yard line and again marched to the goal line for a 14-0 score with two and one-half minutes left in the opening quarter.

Columbia City made its only first down of the first half on the series of plays following Huntington's second touchdown kick-off. The yardage was made on a pass from Kniss, quarterback, to Smith, end.

The first half ended 20-0 and told the story of the game. In the first two quarters, Huntington executed 47 plays for three touchdowns, 217 yards rushing, and 14 first downs. The Eagles executed 17 plays in the first half for a net gain of one yard and one first down.

A hard charging Huntington line cracked the Eagle forward wall repeatedly and grabbed the C.C. quarterback before he had time to hand off or pass the pigskin. On offense, the Vikings consistently opened holes in the Eagle line and drove straight ahead for yardage. Most of the Vikings' long runs were chalked up around the Eagle ends, and Gary Deutsch, playing in the Eagle safety position on defense, got more than his share of tackles during the evening.

Long Drives

All of Huntington's touchdowns were scored after marches of at least 40 yards. The fourth score for the Vikings came in the third quarter after Huntington's first punt of the game. The punt was taken deep in Eagle territory by Deutsch, and he was tackled on the spot by Huntington's end, Musselman. On the first play, Yant fumbled, and Passwater recovered for Huntington. Two plays later Huntington had moved the ball over the goal from the five-yard line.

Both teams substituted freely during the game.

Friday night the Eagles will travel to Decatur for their final conference game against the Yellow Jackets.

Carter Favored 8-5 Over Smith In Tonight's Bout

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UP) — Shufflin' Jimmy Carter, who pops in and out of the world lightweight championship like a jack-in-the-box is a 8-5 favorite to win the title for the fourth time tonight in a return bout against Cincinnati's Wallace (Bud) Smith.

Smith, 26, will be making his first defense of the 135-pound crown since he won it from hard-to-figure Carter at Boston on June 29 on a split decision.

Their 15-round bout at Cincinnati Garden will be televised and broadcast nationally over ABC networks at 10 p.m. EDT.

Carter, 31, is favored because he lost the title to Smith in June by the narrowest possible margin of a single point. And because he recaptured the crown on other occasions in return bouts with Lauro Salas and Paddy DeMarco.

Carter who suffered a deep gash on his right brow at Boston, had his hopes boosted by the Cincinnati Boxing Commission, which agreed that the fight will not be stopped because of cuts.

Tonight's engagement is not only a return title fight, but their third and "rubber match." Each holds a victory. Carter won a decision over Smith at Cincinnati on May 28, 1950. That was before Jimmy first became champion by belting out Ike Williams on May 25, 1951.

If the fight lasts 15 rounds, it will be decided on a 10-point-must basis, but by the vote of three judges, instead of the usual two in other cities. However, the referee has no vote.

Regardless of the outcome, each will receive the same pay. Each has been guaranteed $18,000 — $9,000 from the gate by promoter Sam Becker of Cincinnati and $9,000 from the $30,000 TV-radio money by the International Boxing Club.

Dawson Is Midwest Back Of The Week

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UP)—Lenny Dawson, Purdue University passing artist, ruled today as the United Press "Midwest Back of the Week."

Dawson tossed three touchdown passes last Saturday against Iowa to help the Boilermakers tie the Hawkeyes at 20-20 in a Big Ten game.

He fired the passes despite a painful injury to the thumb of his right hand in pre-season scrimmage, an injury which never has healed completely.

Coach Stu Holcomb said after the game that Dawson is getting better all the time.

"He did a tremendous job against Iowa on defense and is running a lot more," Holcomb said. "He's a much better kicker, too."

Turpin Retires After Knockout By Gordon Wallace

LONDON (UP) — Former middleweight champion Randy Turpin, who craved a shot at the light-heavyweight title, retired from boxing today as a result of a four-round knockout at the hands of Gordon Wallace of Ontario, Canada.

Wallace stunned a huge crowd at Harringay Arena Tuesday night by flooring Turpin, the man who once beat Sugar Ray Robinson, four times — the last time for the full count. Wallace was down once.

"Randy will throw no more punches for me," announced George Middleton, Turpin's manager in his dressing room. Turpin, who holds the British Empire light-heavyweight title, nodded in sober agreement.

"Fair enough," said Turpin. "I will take them for no one else."

Turpin said he could see many of Wallace's punches coming but his reflexes didn't react quickly enough for him to avoid them. Middleton commented, "when that happens, it is time to give up," and again Turpin nodded.

British promoter Jack Solomons, who had hoped to match Turpin against world light - heavyweight champion Archie Moore here in January, said he agreed with Randy's decision to retire now. In fact, the promoter appeared somewhat annoyed at Turpin's poor showing.

"They said Turpin was a cinch to beat Wallace," said Solomons. "Now you see what happens."

Solomons said he now will try to match Yolande Pompey of Trinidad, BWI, against Moore for the light-heavyweight crown.

Bosses Should Have Their Backs To A Becoming Wall

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) —Men should have their backs to a becoming wall, a successful woman designer of building interiors advises.

A black-painted wall or solid white are both effective backgrounds for bosses, Mrs. Florence Knoll suggested. Green, on the other hand, often gives a perpetual "morning - after" tinge to an executive's complexion, in the designer's opinion.

Mrs. Knoll, a zippy, junior sized woman of 38, is successful at a career she admits might not have been possible 15 years ago — designing and decorating interiors of all kinds of office buildings and commercial structures. Men are getting steadily more "background-conscious" around the office, she says. They also aren't afraid of the woman's touch in the office.

Most Exciting Building

"Now I'm working on my most exciting building. Instead of the usual pea green partitions with frosted glass panels at the top to separate desks in the big rooms we are using screen dividers in yellow, blue and red."

Her "most exciting" building is a huge modern office structure for the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co., in Hartford which will house approximately 2,000 employes.

Mrs. Knoll does "paste-ups" of rooms and entire floors of office buildings. They look like homemade doll's houses and would serve the same purpose for a housewife redecorating the living room as they do for this pretty executive and her office buildings.

Walls and floor are made of cardboard. Fabric the color of the rug is glued to the cardboard floor. Then Mrs. Knoll and her assistants use samples of actual fabric they are considering for the furniture, cut in tiny squares or oblongs and placed on the floor to represent scale-model chairs or sofas.

Even Tiny Pictures

Heavy paper or cardboard cutouts are used for wooden furniture, side walls are colored the approximate shade being considered and even tiny pictures, cut from magazines, are pasted on the side walls in proper places. Once the paste-up is finished, the cardboard side walls are taped together to stand erect, yet can easily be taken apart to lay flat for rearranging the room.

"Usually I start out with a commission to do the general building interior and then get invited by the president to plan his office too," Mrs. Knoll said.

She believes a man's office furniture should be scaled to his sie, so he isn't dwarfed by a mammoth desk if he is of slight stature or made to look awkwardly large by a too-small desk.

Sometimes she paints one wall black behind a man's desk and does the other three walls in white.

"Strong dark colors are becoming to most men," she explained. "Black brings out their own natural skin tones."

Throne Council Asks Ben Slimane To Be Premier

RABAT, Morocco (UP) — The new throne council asked Si Fatmi Ben Slimane to become Morocco's first premier today.

Ben Slimane flew to Morocco from Paris earlier in the day and almost immediately went into session with the throne council.

The meeting lasted an hour and a half. When it ended, the four-man council announced that it had asked the former pasha of Fez to form the new representative government that will negotiate with France for reforms and more freedom for this North African protectorate.

Ben Slimane, a moderate, had been the favorite for the post from the outset. He said in Paris two days ago that he would accept "in principle" he nomination if it was offered.

When the actual request was made by the throne council, Ben Slimane asked for time to think it over. His final answer depended on the attitude of the Istiqlal (independence) Party nationalists.

Parking Meter Revenue
Saves The City Taxpayer Money!

During the 1954 year the revenue derived from the parking meters in Columbia City amounted to $19,319.72. $14,000 of this was turned over to the general fund. The remainder was used for maintainance of the street department and other miscellaneous expenses.

Without this revenue, the money would have been available only through additional taxes.

In addition to this, the parking meters have lessened the parking problems in the city. Other steps may have to be taken, but the meters have definitely helped the situation.

The parking meters were just another of the many improvements originated under a progressive Democratic Administration.

dungarees, but police said they had not been able to check it out.

In a refuse can near a trailer camp searchers found sections of a rope which appeared to have been cut and burned. There were two lengths of about four feet and another about two feet.

Detectives said the rope possibly was used to bind the victims.

Coroner Walter J. McCarron conducted an inquest this morning at the county morgue and said later he believes the crime was the work of a gang.

Suspect A "Gang"

"We're all convinced that not one but at least two or three people are involved," he said. "We don't know, but it might turn out to be a teen-age gang like the Pachucos."

Harry Glos, McCarron's chief investigator, said, "I don't believe we'll ever find a sex motive."

Glos said he believes the youngsters were slain by a gang and that their bodies were disrobed "to make it look like a sex crime."

Although preliminary reports indicated the victims died Sunday night, Glos said he believes they may have died as late as Tuesday morning, because the bodies showed few signs of exposure.

The fathers of the victims, Malcolm Peterson, 36, a carpenter, and Anton Schuessler, 42, a tailor, testified at the inquest. Peterson broke down and wept. Schuessler had to be helped to and from the witness stand.

Peterson said he could recall only that a year or more ago his son had told him a boy had been found at school with a gun and a knife. But he said he knew nothing more of the incident.

McCarron recessed the inquest until Oct. 24.

The clothes of all three boys had been ripped from them and marks showed their eyes, mouths and hands had been taped. They were not sexually assaulted.

Nevertheless, Dr Harry R. Hoffman, widely known psychiatrist, said the slayings could have been motivated by a perverted sex urge which found gratification in physical assault. Hoffman, associate of the Cook County Behavior Clinic, said the slayings could be an extension of previous sex deviations manifested by the slayer.

It was by far one of the worst crimes in Chicago's history.

In their modest bungalow homes, the murdered boys' parents were near collapse.

Mrs. Schuessler, a frail, 37-year-old woman, rocked back and forth on her living-room couch Tuesday night while neighbor women clustered about her.

She would murmur "My life . . . my arms . . . my legs . . . now one." Once she shrieked, "I want my boys! I want my—"

The father came in and fell on his knees before his wife. "Mother, mother—what kind of land do we live in?" he sobbed.

The boys' bodies were found shortly after noon Tuesday, piled on top of each other in a forest preserve ditch near a parking lot. They had apparently been killed shortly after they were last seen in a bowling alley Sunday night.

Disagree On Motive

Chicago authorities disagreed on the motive behind the killings. Coroner Walter J. McCarron called it the work of a "sex maniac—the most horrible sex crime in years." Sheriff Joseph Lohman, however, believed that a brutal teen-aged gang had murdered the boys.

The search for clues in Robinson's Woods, located outside the city's northwest limits, continued through the night and into the early morning hours. It intensified at daybreak, with 100 officers, stationed only four or five feet apart, moving through the brushland. Guards and road blocks isolated the area.

Police conducted a giant roundup of known sex deviates, concentrating on persons employed in bowling alleys.

The boys had been dead 36 to 40 hours before they were found and marks on their bodies showed they had apparently been carried in a car or truck.

The two Schuessler boys had been thrown into a ditch adjoining a parking lot, their faces pointed at the sky. Bobby Peterson was lying face down across them, a twig clutched in his hand.

There were 14 cuts on Bobby's head which could have been inflicted by an ax, a pistol butt, the flat of a knife, or a tire iron. They were not the cause of death, but indicated that the boy had fought courageously for his life.

Fingernail scratches on the throats of the Schuessler brothers showed they had been strangled by hand.

"What About Automobile Safety?"

All modern cars are incorporating safety items in their cars.

We in General Motors have had safety door latches on all our cars for about six months, our steering wheels have safety features, and we have installed safety belts in many cars for as low as $12.95.

But the fact still remains that no car will ever be foolproof or accident free no more than your bathtub or step ladder.

It still rests with the driver to use good common sense in the way he drives, obeys traffic regulations and maintains his car in top condition.

We can't build an accident proof car and no one else can It still is up to the driver.

The automobile industry is making great strides and we feel General Motors is doing its part.

Miss Sarah Cordill, Local Resident, Dies Tuesday Night

Death Due To Coronary Heart Attack

Miss Sarah Ann Cordill, 63, a resident at 210 North Walnut street, died at the Easthaven Hospital, Richmond, at 11 o'clock Tuesday evening. Her unexpected death was due to a coronary heart attack.

She was born near South Whitley, October 22, 1891, a daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Sparks Cordill. In the year 1914 she came with her parents to Columbia City where she had since made her home. She was a member of the First Baptist church; the American Legion Auxiliary of Post 98; the Columbia City Chapter Order of the Eastern Star, and the Royal Neighbors. Her father preceded her in death in the year 1924 and her mother in 1931.

The surviving relatives include one brother, Alex Cordill, and one sister, Miss Marie Cordill, both at home.

The body has been removed to the Smith and Sons Funeral Home where friends may call after 7 o'clock Thursday evening. Tentative plans for the service are that the memorial rites will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Funeral Home with the Rev. Dale T. Heinbaugh, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating. Committal services and burial will be in the Greenhill cemetery.

Memorial Rites Held For Simon Ummel

Memorial services were held at the J. A. DeMoney and Son Funeral Home Tuesday afternoon for Simon Ummel.

The Rev. H. R. Steele, pastor of the Washington Center EUB church, officiated at the rites. Mrs. B. V. Widney played the prelude and postlude on the funeral home organ. Pallbearers were Ray Goble, Paul Goble, Roe Goble, Roy Rumsyre, John Schrader and Don Argerbright.

Many See New DeSoto At Schrader & Sons

Many viewed the 1956 DeSotos today at the C. W. Schrader & Sons display room as the new cars went on display and demonstration. Two models are being shown by the local dealer.

Chief comment was about the front and rear end styling changes and the push-button shift featured on the '56 cars.

On Friday the new Plymouths will be introduced to the public.

More than 60 per cent of Indiana's coal is obtained from surface mines, compared with the national figure of 23.6 per cent.

Greece And Brazil Are Elected To Economic And Social Council

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The United Nations General Assembly, entangled in its worst election snarl in history, today elected Greece and Brazil to the remaining vacancies on the Economic and Social Council.

Hopelessly deadlocked after nine ballots, the assembly heeded American advice and suspended voting for the other two major councils—economic and social and trusteeship.

The Philippines, backed by the United States, held a slim lead over Yugoslavia, supported by Russia and Britain acting independently, but was nine votes short of the required two-thirds majority.

A similar snarl developed as the assembly passed to the voting for the 18-nation Economic and Social Council. After five votes Wednesday night, the council had succeeded in polling the required majority for only four of the six vacancies which will occur Jan. 1. These places were taken by the United State, Canada, Indonesia and Yugoslavia.

Four more ballots—equalling the Security Council total of nine—were required today before the remaining two Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) places were filled. Brazil was elected on the seventh ballot and Greece on the ninth.

Weaken Yugoslavia's Chance

The election of Greece to ECOSOC added a new fillip to the political picture in the assembly's elections.

Observers regarded the maneuver to force prior elections to ECOSOC as a move to weaken Yugoslavia's chance for the Security Council. It is against custom for a non-permanent member of the United Nations' top council to sit in two councils at the same time.

But, as British and Russian support for Marshal Tito's candidacy showed little sign of weakening, there had been a growing belief that Greece might subsequently be introduced into the Security Council race as a new compromise candidate.

Greece's election to the Economic and Social Council put it in the same position as Yugoslavia as regards the Security Council race.

The United States led the floor fight for the Philippines with a

Soil Conservation District To Start Full-Time Operation

The Whitley County Soil Conservation District will start full time operations November 1, it was announced at a meeting of the Supervisory Board, held at the county agent's office, Tuesday evening. Lloyd Lawrence, the vice-president, presided in the absence of the president, Carl Thomson, who is in California. Other board members are Ralph Heine, secretary, Walter Halt and Carl Hess.

Arthur Flickenger, Albion, will be the Work Unit Conservationist, assigned by the Soil Conservation Service to give technical assistance to the supervisors. An office is being established in the Masonic Building on the second floor. All projects worked upon by the conservationist must first be approved by the Board of Supervisors, it was decided at the meeting. Applications for assistance may be filed with any supervisor, the county agent or the Work Unit Conservationist.

Drainage problems are of major concern in Whitley county, the supervisors pointed out. The conservationist will have the assistance of a licensed engineer in dealing with unusual problems in drainage. Flickinger has been trained and is experienced in laying-out drainage systems. Other assistance of the conservationist will include terracing, livestock ponds, land use and farm planning.

Services of the Soil Conservation District are available without cost. The main requirement is that the recipient will observe conservation practices in consideration of the technical assistance given him.

Martial Law Lifted From Two More Areas

150 Troops To Remain On Duty At Perfect Circle

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Martial law was lifted in Henry County and the Hagerstown area today, but Governor Craig ordered 150 troops to remain on duty to guard against violence in the Perfect Circle Corp. labor dispute.

Craig removed the two areas from military occupation shortly after he determined in a conference with Indiana National Guard officers and New Castle city officials that the threat of trouble "has been reduced to a point where the situation can be controlled by local authorities with the assistance of troops."

The action followed by three days the removal of a triangular area in Richmond from the occupation zone, and by two days the assurance of CIO President Walter Reuther that no more violence would occur.

Local Rotary Club Sees "Magic Barrel"

The Columbia City Rotarians saw and heard the "Magic Barrel" program Wednesday evening, as a delayed observation of Oil Progress Week.

Last week when oil progress was being nationally observed, the Rotary District Governor made his official visit to the Columbia City club, and the program on oil was postponed.

Ed Heupel introduced the speakers, Tom Elshaw and Bill Hilbert, of the Texas Company; and George Farling, of the Ohio Oil Company.

Mr. Elshaw opened the "magic barrel" and drew from it 95 manufactured products which are used almost daily in the lives of Americans. These products, which he briefly discussed, are obtained through the petro-chemical industry.

Stalk Rot Is Unusually Prevalent In Corn This Year, Diseased Stalk Breaks Easily

Plant pathologists and agronomists at Purdue University reported today that stalk rot of corn has become unusually prevalent over most of Indiana during the past several weeks.

The disease is recognized by a tan to brownish discoloration of the lower section of the stalk which becomes soft and is readily crushed when squeezed. Affected stalks frequently break over at the soft, discolored internodes.

The disease, for the most part, is caused by a fungus which attacks corn plants as they approach maturity. Infection takes place generally at the crown immediately below the soil line or at the lower joints of the stalk. This fungus is the same as that causing dry rot of corn ears. The latter disease, however, does not seem to be abundant this year.

Hot, Dry Weather

Purdue's specialists said the long period of hot, dry weather in late August and early September probably accounts for the unusual amount of stalk rot this year. Leaves dried up rapidly and corn matured at a faster rate than normal. Under such conditions the fungus was able to infect and progress rapidly in the lower stalk.

Parts of some fields may show more stalk breakage than others due to gusts of wind that hit some areas. Very heavy nitrogen fertilization and increased number of stalks tend to produce taller plants

Swedish Scientist Wins Noble Prize For Medicine

Over Five Famed American Candidates

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UP) — A Swedish research scientist won the 1955 Nobel Prize for medicine today over five famed American candidates.

Prof. Axel Hugo Theorell won the coveted plaque and the cash prize of 190,214 Swedish crowns ($36,720) for his 20-year-old research into the secrets of enzymes, the complex organic bits that cause chemical transformations of material in plants and animals.

It was the first year since 1950 that an American failed to win a share of the Nobel Prize for medicine.

Two California scientists who have studied mushroom mutations to determine how genes affect the metabolism of cells in human heredity were unofficially reported to be runners-up.

They are George W. Beadle, 52-year-old genetics professor at Pasadena's California Institute of Technology, and Edward L. Tatum, 46, biology professor of Stanford University.

Also considered in the running, although the list of candidates was secret, were New York heart specialists Andre Cournand and Dickinson W. Richards, and brain specialist Vincent du Vigneaud of Cornell University.

6th Annual Show Of Kiwanis Seen By Huge Crowd

Show To Be Repeated Tonight

Marshall Memorial Hall was filled to capacity Wednesday evening for the sixth annual Kiwanis Review which will be repeated tonight.

The hidden talent of the city's high school principal, Max Gandy, came to light last night before the end of the show in his high wire walking fete, only to appear with one black eye.

"Weary Willie," the sad-faced tramp was cleverly portrayed by Ferman Orcutt, and the "Kiwanis Khorus Kuties" brought down the house. The half hour of dancing and acrobatic stunts of the talented Connie Johnson and her brother, Kelly, of Tri-Lakes, were features of the two-hour show, also the "King of the Trampolene," Bob Hoover and his partner from North Manchester.

Davy Crockett, in the person of Leonard Barnum, was frightened by the bow and arrow of two little Indian maidens, and took to the tall timber. Everybody liked the vocal trio who had to appear without the accompanist who didn't show up. The music of Gary Link, Dave Nusbaum and Dan Martin was enjoyed by the crowd and the Stumblebums had their place in the show, too.

Kiwanis participates in many worthwhile community activities, but only a few are listed here that the organization has promoted in the community:

Sponsor and supervise the Teen Canteen. Sponsored boys and girls to the 4-H Junior Leaders Training School at DePauw. Presented 3 Showmanship Awards at the 4-H Fair. Sponsored a high school boy to Boys State. Sent two children to Camp Whitley. Maintain the Youth Building at City Park.

Prepared and distributed the "Table Prayer Cards." Managed and operated the store and concession stand at the Scout Camporee - All profits being turned over to the Anthony Wayne Council to defray the expenses of the Camporee. Helped secure wheel chair for Whitley County Hospital. Helped several school boys find employment for the summer. Aided "The Opportunity School."

Have co-sponsored: The Annual Bike Rodeo on Kids Day. The annual Athletic Banquet; The annual Rural-Urban Fish Fry; The all-night Junior-Senior party; The drive to sell the Common School Stock for new Joint high school; The Queen Contest for the Mermaid Festival.

Participating in the "Neighborhood Extension Organization Banquet." Participating in the "Red Feather" Drive.

Prizes To Be Given For Best Costumes

Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes in the Community Halloween Festivities sponsored by the Band Parents Club, October 26, at the City Hall.

Walter Grant, parade chairman, states that the parade to the City Hall will start at 6:45 and the judges will begin judging the costumes at 7:15.

Mrs. Mary Lorber, chairman of the awards committee, announces that a prize of $1.00 will be awarded for the following costumes: Patriotic; movie, TV, nursery rhyme character; western, cowboys; ghosts, witches; circus, clowns, animals; hoboes, tramps; foreign, gypsies; negroes; family groups and original.

Three $1.00 prizes will be awarded for adults over high school age, at the discretion of the judges, without regard to categories.

Serious Burns Result From Paint Thinner

Dale A. Grigsby Hospitalized After Blaze At His Home

Dale A. Grigsby, 35, suffered first, second and third degree burns to his hands and forearms shortly after 9:00 Wednesday night at his home, 214 East North street, when a spark from an electric drill which he was using as a sander, ignited lacquer thinner.

He had been working in his basement, cleaning metal strips for several storm windows. In addition to sanding the strips he applied lacquer thinner to aid in stripping the metal, he related to Fire Chief Russel Wolfe. The quart can of lacquer thinner was standing nearby on a work bench. The sparks from the sander ignited the fluid and to minimize the damage he grabbed the can to place it on the floor. It was so hot that he was forced to drop it when it was about a foot from the floor and the spilled thinner flamed over the concrete.

Mr. Grigsby leaving the drill run, ran to the telephone to call the fire department. The firemen were able to quickly conquer the remnants of the blazing fluid by use of a chemical fog Damage to the basement was not great, was mostly smoke to the wallboard ceiling, some damage to electrical wiring, and to the storm windows on which he was working.

The injured man was taken to the Whitley County Hospital where he will remain as a patient.

None but Mr. Grigsby was hurt as the four Grigsby children had gone to bed. Mrs. Grigsby was summoned home from her work at the Ion Capacitor plant where she works until midnight. Two nearby families, the William Moogs and the William Blooms, took in the children for the night.

Mr. Grigsby is an employe of the General Electric Company in Fort Wayne.

To Receive Gallon Blood Donor Pins Thursday, October 27

Several Whitley county residents are expected to receive their Gallon Blood Donor pins when the Red Cross Bloodmobile visits the county Thursday, October 27, according to Stanley Mullendore and Carl Arntson, co-chairmen of the blood program in Whitley county.

The Bloodmobile, operating for the Fort Wayne Regional Blood Center, will be at the Columbia City American Legion Home from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Those who receive their Gallon Blood Donor pins will mark up a record of eight donations, extending over a period of more than two years. A person may donate a pint at each visit of the Bloodmobile.

Sub-chairmen throughout Whitley county now are lining up names of donors to be present for the visit, Arntson and Mullendore said.

The blood received from the visit here will be credited to the Whitley county account in the blood bank. Whitley county residents then can draw from the supply through any hospital.

Cost of collecting and distributing the blood to the hospitals in the area is taken care of by the Red Cross through its local chapters.

Community Chest Campaign Nears Quarter Mark

List Names Of Area Workers

The Community Chest of Whitley county campaign neared the one-quarter mark today as Red Feather thermometers posted in Columbia City, South Whitley and Churubusco were painted in.

Chest President Clarence Gall announced that a total of $4,766.12 has been recorded at the Community Chest office. The amount is slightly over 23 per cent of the goal of $19,855.

An estimated $200 reported by volunteer workers in Churubusco boosted the campaign total while other reports from the industrial and retail division added even more.

The campaign results were coming in slow while the volunteer workers were completing their rounds to homes throughout Whitley County in addition to winding up the campaign at businesses and industries.

"Greater stress must be placed on the individual agencies," Gall said in making the report of the campaign to date. "Should you give individually to each of the nine agencies now members of the Community Chest, your total contribution would be greater. Through the Chest you are able to give one time and cover all the agencies. Therefore, your gift to the Chest should be large enough to fully support all the agencies."

Gall suggested that givers consider the fact that the 1955-56 campaign has the highest goal in the history of th eChest in Whitley county.

"But I feel that the people of Whitley County will meet this challenge when they think about how the Community Chest steps into every home in many ways to

Choralaires Find Too Few Days Until Christmas

The Whitley Choralaires are again practicing every Tuesday evening and Vernon Stinebaugh, director of the group, recently advised that although there are 56 shopping days until Christmas there are only seven rehearsal nights before the Christmas Concert.

This Concert will be given on Sunday afternoon, December 11, in the auditorium of the new school in South Whitley.

The Whitley Choralaires were organized early last spring and is a mixed chorus with members coming from Huntington, Bippus, Sidney, North Manchester, Columbia City, Tri-Lakes and Ligonier as well as South Whitley.

This group was organized primarily for the enjoyment of singing together and for the pleasure of bringing music to the ears of others.

This organization is self-sustaining and is not a profit-making group. However the cost of new music has already depleted the fund from membership fees.

Chicago Police Conduct Canvass For Clues Today

Distribute Handbills Door-To-Door

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP) —Fifty policemen became handbill distributors today in a door-to-door canvass for clues to the wanton strangling of three young boys.

The handbills contained a detailed description of the clothing stripped from the youngsters before their battered bodies were dumped in a forest preserve ditch.

Police hoped householders might come across some of the clothing in trash cans, rubbish burners, garages or basements.

Eleven thousand of the circulars were printed, and their distribution was centered in a six-block area where the young victims were believed slain.

The victims, Robert Peterson, 13, John Schuessler, 13, and his brother, Anton Jr., 11, last were seen alive in the area Sunday night.

The Massive Search

The circular instructs anyone who finds a clue to get in touch with Chief of Detectives John T. O'Malley.

So many reports were stacked on the desk of Lt. James McMahon in the homicide squad headquarters this morning it took him two hours to wade through them.

Every police detail was contributing time and men to the massive search.

Police themselves hunted in garbage cans, vacant lots and alleys for clues.

Says He Was Not Consulted Before Yalta Conference

Did Not Support Concessions Made To Russians There

By CHARLES CORDDRY
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur admitted today he urged Russia's entry into the fight against Japan in World War II, but vigorously denied he ever supported concessions made to the Russians at the Yalta conference.

The famed former Pacific commander made the statements in a bristling reply to a Defense Department report on long - secret wartime decisions which showed that MacArthur had strongly favored Russia as an 11th hour ally in the fight against Japan.

But he said he had not been consulted before the Yalta conference in February, 1945, exercised no influence on it, and knew nothing about its secret agreements.

"I repeat," MacArthur said, "had my views been requested concerning the secret agreements bearing upon Russia's entry into the Pacific War I would have opposed them as fantastic."

Long Political Controversy

MacArthur's views on Russia's entry into the war against Japan have been the center of a swirling political controversy for years.

The Democrats have claimed the pressure of MacArthur and other

Fear Some Newspapers May Be Forced Out Of Business By Increase In Newsprint Prices

WASHINGTON (UP) — A congressional group, fearing some U. S. newspapers may be forced out of business by an increase in Canadian newsprint prices, has called a meeting to find out what can be done about it.

The meeting of the nine - man House commerce subcommittee will be held in New York on Nov. 1.

Concern about the newsprint price increase was also voiced elsewhere. In Canada Quebec Premier Maurice Duplessis warned his country's newsprint producers that they were not the sole owners of Canadian forests and should "play fair" with other partners, "the newspapers and the consumer."

In Honolulu, Richard W. Slocum, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Assn., denounced the price increase. He said the ANPA had reviewed the reported earnings of newsprint manufacturers and saw no economic necessity or long term advantage in any price increase at this time.

Chairman Arthur G. Klein (D-NY) called the meeting of the House group after at least one Canadian newsprint supplier — St. Lawrence Paper Corp. — announced a $5-a-ton price boost.

Klein said the subcommittee is drafting plans to visit southern U. S. newsprint mills to get "on-the-spot information" on domestic newsprint production. The tour probably will begin in mid-November, Aides said.

"We fear that any untoward increase in the price of newsprint may have the possible effect of reducing, or possibly eliminating entirely, the publication of some newspapers throughout the country and could easily result in further increases in prices of newspapers to the public," Klein said.

Philadelphia Bulletin Executive

Slocum, who also is vice president and general manager of the Philadelphia Bulletin, said he felt the announced price rise would hurt the paper company stockholders as much as the publishers.

"The price increase announced for St. Lawrence corporation newsprint, if followed by other manufacturers, will mean higher costs to most advertisers and many reads," Slocum said. "It will do no long term good for newsprint company investors."

"Particularly we regret the short 12-day notice by St. Lawrence of its price increase," he said. "We thought that was a fast practice of the old days we had outlived," Slocum said.

Make Trip Into Canada With Friends From Pennsylvania In Interest Of Church

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wolfe of new Road 30 west, have returned from a 1600-mile trip through the Ottawa Province of Canada. The Wolfes drove to Connellsville, Pa., where they were joined on the trip by Mr. and Mrs. William Fox. Mr. Fox is president of Men's Work in the entire denomination of Evangelical United Brethren churches. Mr. Wolfe is vice-president of Men's Work in the North Indiana Conference.

The party journeyed into Canada by way of Buffalo, N.Y., crossing the International Peace Bridge there, spending one night at Niagara Falls on the Canadian side. Pembroke, Ottawa, Canada, was the destination of the party, whose visit in Canada was largely in the interest of the church.

Speaking engagements were filled on Sunday morning and evening, October 16, which was proclaimed Men's Day throughout protestantism when some 100,000 churches united in the observance.

On Monday evening the two men addressed the combined churches of the Pembroke District in Canada in a rally held in the Golden Lake church, where a great interest is being shown in the work of the men in the church. On Tuesday the party continued eastward toward Ottawa, the provincial capital, then south on the St. Lawrence river, crossing into the United States on the 1000 Islands bridge at Ivy Lez. They continued through Syracuse, N.Y. and on Southwest through New York and back to Connellsville, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe drove to the Pennsylvania turnpike and continued to the Ohio turnpike on their return to this city. They report seeing a great number deer in the Algonquim Provinical park in Canada and the scenery most beautiful.

The Wolfes state the forests in particular were brilliant and a blaze of coloring especially in the mountainous regions of Pennsylvania. They report the trip was most worthwhile.

MacArthur

U.S. military leaders to get Russia into the war was the main reason the late President Roosevelt agreed at Yalta to postwar territorial concessions for Russia in the Far East.

The Republicans have claimed just as vigorously that Roosevelt sold out the country at Yalta. And as late as last spring MacArthur said he would have opposed Russia's entry into the war at the time of Yalta if he had been consulted.

In his 350-word statement issued from his Waldorf Astoria headquarters in New York, MacArthur declared any attempt to associate him with the concessions made at Yalta would be "wholly unwarranted" and "prevaricate the truth and the record."

He declared the Defense Department documents released Wednesday night "confirm I was never consulted concerning the Yalta conference, that I exercised no influence whatsoever thereon and knew nothing about its secret agreements."

Opposed Yalta Concessions

MacArthur said the controversy never was over whether Russia should have entered the war. He said this "should clearly have been done at the very beginning."

The real point at issue, he said, was whether "we should have made vital territorial concessions at the expense of Chinese sovereignty to induce Russia to come in at the end"

"There is not the slightest hint of documentation over my signature," he said "... which even remotely suggests my support of these territorial concessions which so adversely altered the course of future events in Asia."

Then he reiterated he would have opposed them.

In the Defense Department documents, Col. Paul L. Freeman reported to his defense chiefs on an interview he had with MacArthur on Feb. 13, 1945, just after the Yalta conference.

In this interview, Freeman said MacArthur expressed the opinion that Russia would want "all of Manchuria, Korea and possibly part of North China" and that the "seizure of territory was inevitable."

According to Freeman, Mac Arthur said therefore the United States should "insist that Russia pay her way by invading Manchuria at the earliest possible date after the defeat of Germany."

His First Recommendation

Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) said the latest documents "seem to exonerate President Roosevelt's decision at Yalta to bring Russia into the war against Japan" He said they revealed MacArthur and other U.S. military leaders advocated that Russia be brought into the war "in order to reduce American losses in attacking the Japanese mainland."

In his statement today, MacArthur said that on Dec. 13, 1941, he "urged that Russia attack immediately from the north." He said this would have saved "countless lives, billions of dollars and spared the Philippines, Malaya, the Dutch East Indies, New Guinea and Pacific islands."

After that initial recommendation, he said, there is no evidence that he ever advocated Russia's entry into the Pacific War "prior to Yalta."

However, once the Yalta decisions were made, MacArthur said "they became binding upon me as upon any other theater commander."

"All future discussions thereon with War Department representatives necessarily became limited to consideration of their ultimate application to the conduct of the war," he said.

"The attempt to interpret any statements I may have made in the course of such post Yalta discussions as reflecting my pre-Yalta views and convictions is wholly unwarranted."

Report Quotes Stimson

The Defense Department documents quoted the late Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson as advising against trying to back out of the Yalta agreement because "the concessions to Russia which were made at Yalta are generally matters which are within the military power of Russia to obtain regardless of U.S. military action short of war."

The Defense Department document revealed no evidence that MacArthur had been consulted it was held in February, 1945. But about the Yalta conference before they also showed he was urging Russia's entry three days after the conference before he knew what had taken place at Yalta.

The Defense Department Wednesday night sent MacArthur a copy of its report "as a matter of courtesy."

Rock, Don't Roll, Says Coach Watson

By UNITED PRESS

The New York Rangers held down undisputed possession of second place in the National Hockey League today because they've learned how to rock instead of roll.

"You guys are just rolling with your checks," rookie Coach Phil Watson told the Rangers before Wednesday night's home debut at Madison Square Garden. "You've got to rock 'em."

Reacting quickly to Watson's orders, New York then went out and rocked the Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-2.

In tonight's games, the Detroit Red Wings entertain the Chicago Black Hawks while the Boston Bruins visit the league-leading Montreal Canadiens.

Bud Smith Wins World Lightweight Championship Bout

By JACK CUDDY
United Press Sports Writer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UP)—Wallace (Bud) Smith, elated at ending Jimmy Carter's fantastic "on again, off again" romance with the lightweight championship, said today, "I guess everybody will realize I'm really the 'champeen' now."

Although Smith was champion when he entered the ring at the Cincinnati Garden before 6,693 hometown fans for his first defense Wednesday night, Carter of New York was favored at 8-5 to win back the 135-pound crown.

But Bud's aggressive, left-hooking attack prevented 31-year-old Carter from winning the title for the fourth time, although Bud was nearly knocked out in the 13th round of the thrilling, bruising 15-round fight.

Smith wound up with a unanimous decision, after more than a half-hour of calculating and correcting the addition of one of the judges.

A "Rubber" Match

It was the third and "rubber" match between the two Negroes—the best combination boxer-punchers in the 135-pound division. Carter had won a decision over Bud on May 28, 1950 — before Jimmy first became champion.

Smith took the title from Carter on a split decision at Boston last June 29. And he made it definite with the unanimous verdict on Wednesday night.

Each scaled 135 pounds, exactly the lightweight limit, for their thriller, which attracted a gate of $30,441 and was televised and broadcast nationally for a $30,000 fee. Bud and Jimmy were guaranteed $18,000 each.

Smith won by improving on the tactics which gave him his upset June victory over Shufflin' Jimmy. He went after the hard - hitting ex-champion with an aggressive left-hooking attack that prevented Carter from forcing the fight. Carter wanted Bud to back - pedal and become a long-range target for his booming right.

Gash Over Eye

Bud's left hooks again opened a gash on the ex-champ's right brow, in the same spot where his fists had cut it at Boston. The cut dripped blood in the sixth round, and Bud used it for a target thereafter. By the close of the ninth, the eye had swollen shut and Jimmy was running with only one headlight.

But Smith took plenty of punishment before he wound up with the verdict — his 32nd in 49 fights. Carter, suffering his 20th defeat in 100 bouts, nicked Bud's right brow in the sixth round also, and he hurt the champ badly with three right smashes to the head and one left hook to the same target in the seventh. Smith's knees were buckled by a right in the ninth. He was shaken twice by uppercuts in the 12th and he was on the verge of a kayo in the 13th when staggered by a left hook and almost floored three times by the bombardment that followed. But Jimmy rallied magnificiently to win the 14th and fight on at least even terms in the 15th.

Sauer Signs

CHICAGO (UP) — Hank Sauer, power-house slugger of former seasons who batted only .211 in 79 games this past season, became the first player to sign a Chicago Cubs' contract for 1956 Wednesday. Sauer, who lives in Inglewood, Calif., was voted the National League's most valuable player in 1953.

Etna Festival Reports Given

Mr. Klingaman reported that 100 barbecued chicken dinners were sold.

Stars To Compete Tonight At Madison Square Garden

NEW YORK (UP)—Wes Santee, Paul Anderson, Hayes Alan Jenkins, Tenley Albright and a bevy of other world and national champions will compete in six sports during tonight's Olympic Festival at Madison Square Garden.

The program will open a nationwide fund-raising drive to raise the estimated one million dollars needed to send the nation's top amateur athletes to the w4inter Olympics next January at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, and to the summer competition the following November at Melbourne, Australia.

Santee, the lanky ex-Kansas star who ranks as the nation's top miler will get an early warm-up for his 1956 indoor campaign when he runs in the featured mile.

Anderson, the 332-pound Toccoa, Ga., lad who has been thrilling Europeans with his strength, heads a weight-lifting trio fresh from triumphs in the world championships at Munich, Germany.

Jenkins and the slender Miss Albright, two of the country's best bets for gold medals at the coming winter games, will demonstrate some of the talent that enabled them to win world and U.S. figure skating championships.

In addition to the mile, there will be four other track events. Lon Spurrier, the ex-California runner who set a world mark of 1:47.5 for the half-mile earlier this year, heads the field for that race.

Lou Jones, former Manhattan College runner who set a world record of 45.4 seconds for 400-meters during the 1955 Pan American Games, meets Jim Lea of the Air Force and Dick Maiocco of New York in the quarter - mile. There also will be a one-mile men's relay and a four-lap women's relay.

The four-tiered cake, topped with a miniature church, donated by Mrs. Thomas Wheeler and Mrs. Vernon Adams, brought $177.

Calvin Knapp showed colored slides of the 1955 festival with the Wolf Lake and Larwill bands, Norma Engle and her marimba, the Weatherford quartette, and chicken and steak on the barbecue grills.

Pictures were shown of the parade including Larry Gaerte's first prize float; the Banner class float "Christ at the Door," second; the Prayer float of the primary class, third; and the MYF emblem float, fourth.

Parade judges were the Rev. Graham Kleespie, Grace Lutheran Church; Mrs. Fletcher Witmer, West Etna Community Church; Albert VanVoorst, Troy Presbyterian.

The Whitley County Council for Retarded Children received $120 for the Opportunity School.

Alvin Wagner received a gas stove from the M. C. Wheeler and Sons store where 400 guests had registered for the openhouse.

Officers elected for the 1956 Lord's Acre Festival are: Robert Keck, president; Arden Rider, vice-president; Tom Wheeler, treasurer and Grover Gaerte, secretary.

move to suspend Security Council voting late Wednesday.

This was accomplished by a U. S. floor maneuver. But, with Russia and Britain, acting independently, still backing Yugoslavia for the Security Council observers saw little chance of an early solution.

Only Outside Chance

There is precedent for one nation serving in two of the U.N.'s three major councils at the same time, but custom is against it and qualified observers gave Yugoslavia only an outside chance now of obtaining the Security Council seat.

The assembly met Wednesday to resume its balloting — deadlocked after six tries last Friday — for the remaining Security Council seat. After three more ballots, neither the Philippines nor Yugoslavia had gained the two - thirds majority required for election.

U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. moved that the assembly suspend its voting for the Security Council until a later date and proceed with elections for the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) and the Trusteeship Council.

American Plan Carried

Lodge won.

The assembly moved on to election for the six vacancies occurring on the Economic and Social Council Jan. 1.

On the first ballot, the United States, Canada and Indonesia were elected.

On the second ballot, Yugoslavia went into ECOSOC with 46 votes—six more than the 40 required for election.

Then followed three more ballots with no country able to get the two-thirds majority for the remaining two ECOSOC seats.

Driving in Strange Town Confusing to Motorist

By Betty Skelton, Dodge Test Driver

I'm a stranger in town. As a matter of fact, I've been a stranger in many towns. They're nice towns—all of them. But each new town poses a new problem for me, and millions of other feminine drivers.

"I'm a stranger in town." How many times have you been stopped on the street and asked directions by some man or woman who precedes a question with this frank admission? How many times have you done it on your own travels?

Let's say that I'm a stranger in YOUR town. I stop and ask you the directions to the best hotel. The fact that I have stopped to get directions is my first problem. While you are figuring out the directions, several cars pile up in back of mine and the drivers honk crazily. Naturally in this hub bub you find it difficult to direct, and I find it hard to remember.

Miss Skelton

I start in the general direction you have pointed. You said, I think, to turn left on Main Street, then right at Bank Boulevard. When I get to Main Street there is a sign saying, "No left turn." Do I go straight ahead or turn right? Since I'm in the center lane . . . I keep going straight. The next street lets me turn left and I do. The next street up says "Bank Street" . . . but you mentioned "Bank Boulevard," and I've been tripped up by this fooler more than once. I keep going, still looking for Bank Boulevard. About two miles and a headache later I realize that this time it was no "fooler" and I turn around to return to Bank Street.

I'm doing fine, until I see another chap who seems rather intelligent and I decide that before going any further, I had better confirm the directions to the hotel, just in case it was "Bank Boulevard" after all.

I should never have stopped. He tells me that I'm going all wrong, I should have taken the "Drive."

By this time I'm so confused I decide to stop for a cup of coffee. I find a nice little coffee shop with a parking space right beside it. I start to pull in, but pull out just in time. It's a cab stand and I cannot park there "by order of the police department."

Go Around and Around

So I drive around some more. Finally some kind person decides to leave his parking space and I wait for him to get out of it. I hold up a block of traffic just so that I can get a cup of coffee. By the time I sit down at the counter, I really need that coffee.

It's funny what a cup of coffee will do for you sometimes. I look out that big plate glass window and see one of the most beautiful sights in your city—the very hotel I've been looking for!

So please, when you see a feminine motorist craning her neck to look at every sign post and starting to turn the wrong way down a one way street, don't say "There's another woman driver."

Just say, "She must be a stranger in town," and please be patient with her.

America's most famous woman driver, Miss Skelton holds the woman's automotive speed record of 143.44 mph, and is the only woman test driver in the automotive industry. Address any questions or suggestions about cars, safety, and driving problems to her in care of this newspaper.

JERUSALEM, Israel (UP) — A Foreign Office spokesman charged today that Syrian forces fired on two U.N. truce observers investigating the kidnaping of an Israeli soldier Wednesday.

with higher ears. Such plants, when they do get stalk rot, break over easier than shorter plants with lower ears Stalk rot may be more prevalent where corn is grown continuously year after year in the same fields, as in river bottoms. Low levels of potash tend also to hasten maturity and thur increase stalk rot.

Farmers should not be hasty in condeming a hybrid because it broke over more than usual this year—it may have many virtues and may stand well in a normal year. Some of the better open-pedigree certified hybrids that show resistance to stalk rot are: Indiana 252, Indiana 680, A.E.S. 702, Conn. 870, and Indiana 805.

Chicago Police Arrest Eight For Questioning In Slaying Of Boys

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP) — Police disclosed today that eight persons have been arrested for questioning about the slaying of three young boys, but none was regarded as a "good suspect."

Lie detector tests were scheduled for at least two of the eight, Edward Rohlfes, 47, and Michael Chupick, 22.

Rohlfes, a former railroad worker, volunteered the information that he spent all of last Monday night and most of Tuesday morning in a forest preserve parking lot near the ditch where the nude and battered bodies were found.

Crime laboratory technicians found a crowbar, a clawhammer and a sweatshirt, stained as if it had been used to wipe up something, in Rohlfes' truck. The articles were sent to the laboratory for analysis and to determine whether human hair could be found on the hammer.

If the bodies had been there then, he said, he would have seen them. They were discovered by a liquor salesman at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Rohlfes said he saw three men in a battered old Ford drive into the parking lot at 10:30 a.m. just as he was leaving. Detectives said these men could have been the slayers, about to dispose of the bodies.

Hold for Lie Test

Rohlfes said he had withheld his information because he did not want to get a forest ranger in trouble for letting him sleep in his parked truck in the forest pre serve.

He said he formed the habit of sleeping there because of marital discord at home. He now is div-

Former Russian Sailors Fly East Across America

Turn Their Backs On Communism

SEATTLE (UP)— Nine former Russian sailors flew eastward across "von-der-ful Amerika" toward New York today highly pleased with their decision to abandon Russia for life in the United States.

They turned their backs on communism when their ship was seized by the Chinese Nationalists 16 months ago. They got their first glimpse of the United States when they landed at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport Thursday night.

In quick succession following immigration clearence, they learned water in the United States is free, the vodka "better than in Russia" and that "everyone here seems so friendly."

"I wanted freedom; I wanted to come to the United States,' said Victor Salovyer, a baby-faced blond who appeared no more than 19 or 20. "I did not like the politics and neither did my friends who arrived here with me."

The nine merchant sailors were aboard the Russian tanker Tuapse which was seized by the Chinese Nationalists near Formosa June 23, 1954. They refused to return to Russia with the ship's captain and 28 other crewmen and were granted asylum by the Chinese Nationalists. They are being admitted to this country under the immigration law of 1952.

They said there were 11 more of their shipmates now on Formosa waiting for visas to come to this country.

Accompanying the sailors was a Lutheran missionary, John L. Wilenius. The men are being sponsored by the Church World Service, an international relief organization and a member of the National Council of Churches with headquarters in New York. They said they were members of the Russian Orthodox Church.

Ramp Boy On Bicycle Struck By Car, Hurt

David Ramp, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ramp, 512 North Line street, was injured though not seriously about 5:25 p.m. Thursday when he was thrown from his bicycle at Van Buren and Line streets when struck by the car operated by Irel Vere Pence, 60, of Peru. Pence is a state excise officer.

The Ramp boy had a front tooth knocked out, received a cut on the forehead, and suffered scratches to his face and hands. His injuries were treated at the Memorial Clinic. X-rays to his teeth are soon to be made to determine if there was any further injury to his jaw and teeth. Following examination at the hospital, he was released to return to his parents' home.

According to the report of the accident received by Sgt. J. L. Ballein of the city police, the Ramp boy on his week-old bicycle was riding north on Line street with the green traffic light. Pence, driving a state-owned 1955 Ford 2-door sedan, was southbound on Line street, making a left turn to head east on Van Buren street. He said he did not see the boy in time to avoid hitting him. The damage to the Ramp boy's bicycle was almost total.

Strike Closes Big Stockyards At Indianapolis

Officials Cannot Agree On Wage Increase

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—The Indianapolis Stockyards, one of the world's largest hog markets, closed indefinitely at noon today.

It closed because of the threat of a strike set for midnight Sunday, and an official of the Producer's Marketing Association said it would not reopen until that dispute is settled.

The CIO United Packinghouse Workers Union called a strike against the stockyards, one of the world's largest hog markets, for midnight Sunday. Negotiations broke down Thursday.

But Clayton Sayles, union field representative, said there was a "possibility" the workers would change their minds at a meeting tonight.

Both sides agreed to a 14-cent hourly wage increase for the 166 union workers. But the Belt Railroad and Stockyards Co., operator of the yards, wanted to take out three cents for insurance, while the union rejected any deduction so it could "shop around" for insurance on its own.

The shutdown would force farmers in a wide area to market livestock at other cities such as Cincinnati, Chicago, Louisville, and Evansville, beginning Monday. The yards are normally closed during the weekend.

Richard Kreusser, company public relations officer, said the wage increase was in line with those granted recently at the Chicago yards.

"We'll put the matter up to the local again tonight," Sayles said.

Royal Family Pays Homage To King George VI

In Ceremony Unveiling Memorial

By HAROLD WILLARD
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP)—Princess Margaret, still torn between love and duty, pays homage today to her father, the late King George VI, the man who first brought her and Peter Townsend together 12 years ago.

Margaret joined her sister Queen Elizabeth II, the queen mother and the Duke of Edinburgh in a ceremony unveiling a statue on the mall near Buckingham Palace.

King George brought Townsend into the palace as an equerry when the flier was 29 and Margaret but 13. The king died before Margaret became entangled in a romance paralleling that which brought George to the throne.

Gala Dinner Party

Most Britains believed the princess still had not made up her mind about marriage, but a gala dinner with Townsend which lasted until eight minutes past one this morning confirmed that the romance is very much alive.

The morning papers were just hitting the streets when Margaret, wearing green velvet and a mink stole, rode home from the dinner in a Rolls-Royce whose chauffou she had kept waiting for an hour while she said her long, long good night to Townsend.

Today's ceremony recalled once again the days of 1952 when the King died and Elizabeth became queen. It was then that Margaret turned to Townsend for comfort and the queen mother asked him to take out the princess and cheer her up.

Townsend won his divorce the same year annd he in turn looked to Margaret for comfort. It was then they fell in love only to run

Brownell Gives President Report Of $1-A-Year Men

Justice Department Studies Advisers

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER UP) — Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr., flew to Denver today to give recuperating President Eisenhower a personal report on the Justice Department's study of big businessmen as "dollar-a-year" advisers in the administraton.

Brownell was expected to see Mr. Eisenhower in his eighth floor room at Fitzsimons Army Hospital well before lunch.

The President, nearing the end of the first month of his recovery was refreshed for today's conference by a session at painting on Thursday, by having his favorite dish, quail hash, for lunch, and by a visit from Clifford J. Roberts, a personal friend and golfing and bridge companion.

Legislation Recommendations

Brownell was also expected to review with Mr. Eisenhower the Justice Department's recommendations for new legislation on several subjects. The major topic, however, was whether the "dollar-a-year" men violate conflict-of-interest statues.

The temporary White House ruled out politics as a subject of the President's conference with Brownell. Brownell said he will hold a news conference when his visit with the President is over.

The President did no work Thursday. Cloudy skies cost him his daily wheel chair outing on the Fitzsimons eighth floor terrace. But he sat in his room, painting a while on a Colorado landscape he started Wednesday, put it aside and started another landscape.

Purely Social Visit

Roberts, who visited him for 15 to 20 minutes, is a New York investment banker and chairman of the executive committee of the Augusta (Ga) National Country Club, one of President Eisenhower's favorite golfing spots. It was the first purely social visit the President has had since his heart attack Sept. 24.

Another indication of the easing of the anxiety and tension among those closest to the President was Mrs. Eisenhower's third trip away from the hospital. She drove into Denver Thursday to spend the afternoon with her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud.

$20,000 To Send Planes To Return Senators, Wives

Expenses To Be Charged To Defense Department

By JOHN W. FINNEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — An empty, four-engined Air Force transport winged toward Madrid today to pick up two senators and their wives and return them to the United States at Defense Department expense.

Another plush transport is scheduled to leave in 10 days — loaded this time the Air Force hopes — to pick up another senator and his wife in Paris.

The cost of the two special round - trip flights across the Atlantic will be about $20,000.

The Defense Department said that under law it "had no alternative" to sending the planes once they were requested by the senators.

Defense Spending Survey

The three senators and their wives who will receive the special flights are Sens. John McClellan and Dennis Chavez (D-NM) — all members of a Senate appropriations group which has been touring Europe and the Near East to check on defense spending.

The plane which will pick up Stennis and McClellan and their wives in Madrid on Sunday left here late Thursday. Officials said the plane was forced to leave in such a hurry that it was impossible to round up any passengers or freight for the trip across the Atlantic.

The Air Force, however, already has a tentative load lined up for the plane that is scheduled to leave Oct. 31 to pick up Chavez and his wife in Paris on Nov. 3.

Required By Law

The Defense Department by law is required to furnish transportation to congressmen who are on official committee business. But Robert Tripp Ross, Assistant Defense secretary for Legislative and Public Affairs said the Defense Department originally had proposed that the senators return in previously - scheduled airplanes that would leave from Madrid and Paris two to three days later than the departure dates set by the senators.

The department was advised through the escort officer to the senators — Maj. Gen. Robert Moore — that the later departures were "unacceptable."

"Therefore," Ross said, "there was no alternative under the legislation ..... but to send the special aircraft to meet the request."

Farm Tractor Contract Let By The County

A contract was let by the board of county commissioners Thursday for purchase of a farm tractor for use at the county farm. The bid of the Whitley County Farm Equipment Co., for a John Deere "70" with pull-type plow and cultivators, was accepted. This equipment was offered for $3,243.92 plus the trade-in of the county farm's old tractor, an Oliver "70" with plow and cultivators. The allowance for the used tractor was $1,054.08.

The successful bidder also offered a John Deere "60" for $2,890.-70 cash, the allowance for the old tractor on this trade being $994.30 in addition to the cash payment.

The More Farm Store, Allis-Chalmers dealers, offered a Type WD 45 for $2,673.80 in cash plus an allowance of $650.00 for the trade-in. The Whitley County Farm Bureau, bidding on a Cockshutt No. 40, offered a price of $2,950.25, plus the trade-in. Thsi allowance was $1,007.00.

The Trier Implement Co., International Harvester dealers, placed two bids. On the Model No. 300 they offered a trade-in allowance of $839.84 and a cash payment of $3,191.95. On the "400" series they made an allowance of $1,093.42 for the old equipment, making a cash difference of $3,535.00.

Russia Seeks To Throw Blame On United States

For Failure Of UN To Reach Agreement On Arms Reduction

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) —Russia sought today to throw the blame on the United States for the failure of the United Nations disarmament subcommittee to reach agreement on an overall arms reduction program.

But Soviet delegate Arkdady A. Sobolev, in a meeting of the United Nations' 12-nation Disarmament Commission demanded by the Russians, said there was a "definite possibility of agreement on the basic questions of disarmament."

From Aug. 29 until Oct. 7 representatives of the U. S., Russia, Britain, France and Canada, met in secret sessions here with no semblance of agreement. The report of these discussions, together with a complete record of a imilar series of meetings in London last spring, was published today as a 6,000-page document.

The West believed that time should be given to the other seven members of the Disarmament Commission to study this record before attempting a serious substantive discussion nof the quetion. Such a dicussion had been expected to be postponed until after the Geneva meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers opening Oct. 27.

Sobolev told the full commission that, as a result of Soviet disarmament proposals made last May 10, there was a possibility of reaching agreement on "all details of an acceptable system of disarmament."

"This did not take place," he said. "It did not take place as a result of the position of the U.S. representative (presidential aide Harold E. Stassen) in the subcommittee."

Sobolev said Stassen avoided with the reduction of armaments annd the prohibition of atomic weapons.

Sobolev did not refer to the major U.S. proposal which dominated the subcommittee's discussion—President Eisenhower's plan for an American-Russian exchange of military blueprints and "open sky" aerial inspection of each other's countries.

On Both German Unity, European Security Issues

Has Support Of President And Leaders Of Both Parties

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today held a strong hand of diplomatic cards to play at next week's Big Four showdown meeting at Geneva on key East-West problems.

Dulles, in a whirlwind finish to preparations for the conference, has lined up support of President Eisenhower and a group of congressional leaders of both parties for U.S. strategy on the twin problems of European security and German unity, disarmament and lowering of East - West barriers.

Additional support for Dulles' Geneva strategy came late Thursday from the secretary's own State Department. It suddenly made public an 88-page record of many of Mr. Eisenhower's and Dulles' statements at the earlier Summit Meeting at Geneva last July.

Strong Determination Shown

The document showed the strong determination of the United States to link European security and German unity together — a tussle the President won from Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin. It also brought out Mr. Eisenhower's flat pledge to Russia that "under no circumstances is the United States ever going to be a party to aggressive war — against any nation." This was coupled with the President's pledge that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is "purely defensive."

Dulles met Thursday with 14 key congressional leaders to acquaint them with U.S. strategy and to

Farm Prices For Coming Year May Decline But The Forward Look Is Optimistic

Lester L. Arnold, Purdue University agricultural economist, told farmers at the 4-H Community Center Thursday night at the annual Whitley county economic outlook meeting that Indiana farm prices are expected to decline a little further in the year ahead.

"But the decline in farm prices will be cushioned by stronger consumer demand and the government support program," Arnold declared.

The speaker was introduced by B. V. Widney, County Agricultural Agent.

He said farmers who improve their efficiency of operations can at least partly offset the price declines. "In the decade ahead the farm situation likely will continue to cause some farmers with inadequate resources to leave the farm and find employment in industry where their opportunities are better.

"However, it appears that farmers who have operations big enough to use up-to-date machinery and production practices, keep abreast of new technologies, and plan wisely can look forward with reasonable optimism," the Purdue economist said.

Discussing the overall economic situation, Arnold predicted that economic conditions in most sectors of our economy will be favorable during the coming year with

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: Luke 4:1-15.
Devotional Reading: Hebrews 4:12-16.

How to Win

Lesson for October 23, 1955

NOBODY can be tempted to do what he can't do. Nobody can be tempted to do what he doesn't want to do. Of course somebody can say to you, "Do this," but if you can't or don't want to do it, the words are only words in your ear, they are no temptation, and you can't be said to have "resisted" what did not appeal to you at all. Furthermore, nearly always temptation means the pull of desire, not for something evil in itself but only a good out of place, or a lesser good in place of a possible greater. If a child takes the money he was going to put into Sunday school and spends it for candy on Saturday night, that does not mean that candy is bad in itself, or that eating it is a sin. But the child is tempted to a lesser good when a greater good was possible.

Dr. Foreman

Questions About Temptation

The higher in the scale of life you go, the more this is true. Persons who live on a low level may easily be tempted to gross sins, because they don't have any strong desire for good, or to do good. Persons who live on a high level are much more likely to be tempted with good than with evil, for they habitually desire good. The temptation consists in seeing the lesser good so clearly that one forgets to look around and see the greater good. Now the temptations of Jesus were of this sort. There is no evidence that he ever felt an urge or even a slight inclination to do what is wrong in iteself. There is evidence that he was tempted to do some good things that were not the best things. Take Luke's story of the temptations in the wilderness. One was to turn stones into bread—surely no sin? In a hungry world, to produce more bread would be a good thing. Another temptation was to get control of the kingdoms of the world. Was that not what he came to do? Or the third temptation again,—to trust in the protecting care of God: who would call that a sin? Yet each of these, under the circumstances and conditions, was not the right thing for Jesus, because not the best thing; and so he knew all these for what they were—temptations of Satan. We can ask many questions about temptation: where it comes from, what kind of persons are tempted, how to recognize it, and so on. But the question most of us want to know is, How can I win?

How to Lose

There are two sure ways of losing the fight against temptation, whether in its lower or its higher forms. One is by sheer resistance, just saying No. If your temptation is liquor, for instance, it won't do you a particle of good to stand in front of a tavern door or to sit in a chair with a glass in your hand, just shutting your eyes and shaking your head and saying "No, I won't." Because, before long, you will. Mere stubbornness will go a long way; but not even Jesus tried to meet temptation with a simple empty No. Another way to lose your fight is to debate the question. In the vivid story of the first temptation (see Genesis 3) the serpent just gets Eve's mind to thinking about how fine that fruit was.

The Sword of Spirit

Every Bible reader knows how Jesus won his victory over temptations: by using the "sword of the Spirit," the Word of God. But there is a right and a wrong way to use a sword. There are two ways of using the Bible as a defense against Satan. One of these ways works, the other does not. It will not do simply to quote the Bible. The Bible is not a sort of magic wand which you just wave in Satan's face will make him go away. Just repeating Bible verses is not enough. The only Scripture which is any good in temptation's struggles is Scripture which you have first "hid in your heart," that is to say committed to memory, and what is more important, Scripture which has become part of you. It is not quite enough to say, "God says —." Take the next step: "God says—and I believe it." You've got to make God's word your own, not just with the top of your mind but down to the bottom of your heart. So believed, the Word becomes life invincible.

We citizens of Columbia City should feel a deep respect for the policeman on our force who, armed only with a flashlight, has the courage to stand in the middle of any street intersection when the rush is on to follow the firetruck. And we should feel a deep obligation resting upon ourselves to see that such madness is stopped.

Someone might say, "There ought to be a law—". But it would require a police force three times the size of ours - and all of them on duty at once - to enforce any law aimed at stopping the insane handling of vehicles, both automobiles and bicycles, which one sees at such a time of emergency.

Before some terrible tragedy occurs because of this "madness at the wheel" let us all unite in one big frown of public opinion so black and tremendous and ominous that the wrong will be put to right in time.

Chicago Police

orced, he said.

Chupnick was held for a lie test after police found copper wire and masking tape in his car. Tape of some sort was used to bind the victims' eyes and mouths, and Chupnick said he frequented a bowling alley where the boys were seen Sunday night.

The slain boys, Robert Peterson, 13, John Schuessler, 13, and his brother, Anton Jr., 11, last were seen alive Sunday night.

Detective Chief John T. O'Malley assigned two teams of women police officers to the neighborhood where the youngsters lived for door to door questioning of the neighbors.

O'Malley said the policewomen might prove better than policemen. at eliciting information from neighborhood women about the background of the case and the habits and behavior of the slain boys

Authorities attached far more significance to Rohlfes' statement than to the ramblings of a tough-talking, girl in blue jeans picked up while under the influence of narcotics at Brookville, Ind.

The girl, 19-year-old Gloria Vasquez, said she saw "something terrible" happen in Chicago Sunday night and that she was with "two fellows who dumped three boys" in the Robinson Woods ditch.

Brookville and Chicago sheriff's police planned to check her statement further. But they said she couldn't be trusted until the influence of narcotics had worn off.

Until Rohlfes came forward, police had worked on the assumption that Bobby Peterson and the Schuessler boys were strangled on Chicago's northwest side sometime between 9 p.m. and midnight Sunday and their battered bodies had been thrown in the ditch a short time later.

Rohlfes, a 47-year-old retired railroad man who now does odd jobs, said he held back his essential evidence because he wanted to protect a forest ranger who had let him sleep in the parking lot Monday night.

He changed his mind after authorities told Chicagoans they were not cooperating in the giant manhunt and issued an appeal for every possible scrap of evidence.

Police hoped that Rohlfes' evidence would prove to be the first big break in a case which has shocked all Chicago but yielded discouragingly few clues.

But two other developments spurred police hopes that the case is breaking.

A 16-year-old high school student Ralph Helm, said he saw the boys trying to hitch a ride in the rain Sunday at 9:10 p.m.

His testimony added 18 minutes to the time police know the boys were alive At 8:52 p.m. they had got off a bus, saying they were going to enter a nearby bowling alley.

Coroner's pathologist Jerry Kearns said tests showed all three boys underwent a brutal beating, possibly in a car, before they were strangled.

He concluded that the killers must have been one or more men of considerable strength and over 20 years of age. Previously, police have theorized that the killing was the work of a teen-aged gang or of one or more adult sex perverts.

Police also held Michael Chupick, 22, for a lie test after they found copper wire and masking tape in his car. Tape of some kind was used to bind the slain boys' eyes and mouths and Chupick said he frequented one of the bowling alleys where the boys were seen Sunday night

In another development, police investigated a boy's disappearance to see if it had any connection with the murders The boy, 10-year-old Charles Dahl, has not been seen since he left home for school on the North Side Wednesday

nto now the difficulties presented by Margaret's official position and the Church of England displeasure against remarriage by divorcees.

The "let-her-marry" campaign still gained force and today the Labor Party's official newspaper, the Daily Herald, published letters from churchmen sanctioning a MargaretTownsend match.

While official silence shrouded Margaret's intentions, Labor M.P. Marcus Lipton took the traditional parliamentary first move to get action out of the government. He introduced a question asking "Will the prime minister introduce legislation to repeal or amend the Royal Marriage Act of 1772?"

Opposition members customarily use this method of goading the government into action. However, the question must be phrased in a formal way that suggests its purpose is only to find something out.

Stars Of Several Sports Compete In Olympic Carnival Events At Madison Square Garden

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Wes Santee, razor - sharp while whipping archrival Fred Dwyer in his first indoor mile in seven m nths, said today cross - country running may help him regain the board record for the distance.

Santee climaxed the Olympic Sports Carnival at Madison Square Garden Thursday night by sprinting from behind in the last lap to beat Dwyer by 30 yards in the invitation mile. The time was a sparkling 4:05.2.

It was Santee's finest performance and fastest clocking in the Garden, where he won several times in slower times last winter. His best previous garden time was a 4:06.5 effort while he and Dwyer wrestled and tussled in Gunnar Nielsen's wake last Feb. 5. The Dane set a world indoor clocking of 4:03.6 in that race, bettering the 4:03.8 mark Santee had set in Boston the previous week.

"I think cross-country racing is going to help me indoors," Santee said. "I believe it's going to give me more endurance and make me sharper. If everything works out, I don't see why I shouldn't get down to Nielsen's time."

Santee's performance Thursday night was even more remarkable because he and the other milers had to jog about for nearly an hour past the scheduled start of the race while world skating champions Tenley Albright and Hayes Alan Jenkins did encores during the six-sport program.

Billy Tidwell of Emporia State was third and ex-Georgetown runner Joe Lapierre was fourth.

In the other track events, Pvt. Lang Stanley of the Army ran a half mile in 1:54.8 to defeat Lt. Lon Spurrier of the Air Force by two yards; and Dick Maiocco of New York defeated Lt. Jim Lea of the Air Force by two yards with a 50.7 clocking in the quarter-mile. Tennessee State, with Mae Faggs running the anchor leg, won the four-lap women's relay in 1:19.5.

The carnival, which attracted 10,300 fans, opened a nation- wide drive to raise one million dollars to send 500 of the country's top amateur athletes to the 1956 winter and summer Olympic games.

In the fencing action, Harold Goldsmith of New York defeated Albert Axelrod of New York in the foils match and George Worth of New York defeated Richard Dyer of Philadelphia in a saber contest. Ensign Pete Blair of the Navy decisioned Bill Oberly of Penn State in the free-style wrestling and Jim Peckham of Boston defeated Henry Hansen of New York in Greco - Roman wrestling.

Besides Miss Albright of Newton Center, Mass., and Jenkins of Colorado Springs, Colo., the Heiss trio —Carol, 15, Nancy,15 and Bruce 12 — also did some fancy figure skating. Dave Jenkins was the other ice performer.

Paul Anderson, the world's strongest man, featured the weight lifting by hoisting 380 pounds and pumping it up and down over his head. Tommy Kono of Sacramento, Calif., and Pete George of Akron, Ohio, who joined Anderson of Toccoa, Ga., in winning titles at the world championships last week in Germany, also demonstrated their lifting prowess.

National Hockey League Closing In On Montreal Canadiens

By UNITED PRESS

The National Hockey League began closing in on the Montreal Canadiens today.

The Boston Bruins, taking advantage of every opportunity and matching the rough - house Canadiens check for check, handed Montreal its first loss of the season, 3-2, Thursday night and moved to within two points of the league lead. Montreal had won its first four games, and gained a tie with the Chicago Black Hawks in its last start Sunday night.

The Detroit Red Wings, defending Stanley Cup champions, battled back to gain a 2-2 tie with Chicago in the only other game played Thursday night. Fleming, Garmaker Sign With All-Stars

NEW YORK (UP)—Ed Fleming, Niagara's all-time scoring leader, and Dick Garmaker, who averaged 24.2 points for Minnesota last season, have signed to play with the College All-Stars against the New York Knickerbockers in an exhibition basketball game in Madison Square Garden, Oct. 30.

Coaches Predict Eagles Have Thrown Off "Loser's Virus"

Tonight the Columbia City Eagles play their last conference football game, meeting Decatur on the Yellow Jacket gridiron, and the season will be all over next Wednesday when Warsaw plays at DeVol Field.

With the realization that high school football will soon be finished for several seniors on this year's squad—and also realizing that the won-lost record is not what they would like for it to be, the Eagle gridmen became more determined in the last practice sessions. That is the report coming from Coacnes Barnum and Duffield.

It is not too late for the team to make a success of the 1955 season. The team go off to a losing start, and thus far the boys have not been able to trow off the "loser's virus" which has constantly plagued them. In recent practices, Coaches Barnum and Duffield emphatically prescribed a win for the Eagles. A more "healthful" look has appeared on the faces of the players, and the coaches are so optimistic about it that they are predicting that the remainder of the 1955 season has definitely taken on a diffreent, good complexion. Every year dozens of high school teams start off slowely, then one minor ailment ceases to exist, a major change comes over the players. The feeling around DeVol Field during the last two days is that the "major change" has come over the Eagles. The question of whether or not that change has happened to the Columbia City team will be answered tonight.

Hank Greenberg Offers To Rescue Floundering Seals

By SCOTT BAILLIE
United Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Hank Greenberg, who saved many a ball game with his home runs, today offered to rescue the floundering San Francisco Seals and only formal approval by the PCL stood between the famous slugger and one of baseball's worst headaches.

After 72 hours of palaver, which saw one press conference postponed for a full day, Greenberg announced Thursday that he had offered to buy the debt-ridden Pacific Coast League club on a "clean deal or no deal" basis.

By that, the general manager of the Cleveland Indians said he would put $150,000 in the bank for operating capital and hope to pay off the Seals' $200,000 in back bills with the profits accerued from having a winning ball club. He pointed out that he would have access to the Cleveland farm system.

A Personal Venture

Greenberg — insisting, however, that this was a personal venture on his part and not a move by the Cleveland organization — said that if the deal went through he would hope to bring "major league baseball out here eventually."

League President Claire V. Goodwin said he would start to poll the eight club owners (directors) today by phone. Six are needed to approve a new owner but Goodwin said he would like to get an 8-0 vote for him.

Dark-haired Greenberg, who has made the switch from first base to high finance with amazing ease, characterized the Seals' financial plight as "unique."

Debts From Profits

"They lost $900,000 in the past seven years and now owe about $200,000," Greenberg said. "My proposition is to put $150,000 in the bank, take over the club then hope to make a profit so we can pay off the debts on a proportionate basis in the form of debentures, which are notes.

Greenberg said he preferred this to being obligated to pay everybody at once.

In the meantime, Joseph Cairnes —executive vice president of the Milwaukee Braves—left today with the words that his club still would be interested if Greenberg's bid fell through.

Greenberg indicated there would be a general house-cleaning if he came in control but declined to say if Manager Tommy Heath would be retained.

"I'll surprise you," is the way he put it.

Women Taking Over In Taxpaying Sphere

It may not be offered as proof that we are living in a matriarchial society as many news and magazine writers point out, but women have practically taken over in another job that formerly was almost exclusively male.

This is the job of paying the family's taxes in the spring and fall.

About four out of every five who visit the county treasurer's office as taxpayers are now women, Treasurer Foster W. Riddick and the deputies report. Before World War II the Reverse was true.

The men still are far in the lead, however, when it comes to figuring up federal and state tax returns, according to lawyers and tax accountants.

shore up any weak spots in bipartisan backing. The Secretary of State was reported pleased by the reception his views received from the lawmakers who met with him for nearly two hours.

Several Points Made

According to legislators who attended the meeting, Dulles made these points:

The Allies plan to offer Russia security guarantees based on a five-nation pact which could be expanded to many other nations on each side of the Iron Curtain The plan is designed to prod Russia into a German reunification program.

On disarmament, the United States will stand solidly behind Mr. Eisenhower's plan to build trust and confidence by exchanging military blueprints and aerial reconnaissance rights with Russia.

Dulles has high hopes that major accomplishments will be reached on the third and final Geneva problem — lowering of East - West barriers. There is no prospect of easing Western bars on strategic trade with the Iron Curtain countries at this time.

Life Is Almost Back To Normal In New Castle

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP)—Lifting of martial law meant life in New Castle was almost back to normal today—but not quite.

Governor Craig ended military rule Thursday because he felt tension in the Perfect Circle Corp. strike had subsided, but 150 National Guardsmen remained und r civil command.

Mayor Paul McCormack said road blocks would be removed and bars could re-open until 10 p.m. But he warned he will close them again if any threat of trouble developes.

Curfews will remain in force and there will be no Halloween masking or "trick or treat," McCormack said.

Farm Prices

a possible weakening toward the end of the year. Any business decline, which occurs in 1956 is not likely to be severe.

Cash receipts from U.S. farm products are expected to be about 3 per cent less than in 1955, with cash income of U.S. farmers five to seven per cent less. Net income of Indiana farmers will be down more than for U.S. farmers in general because of lower hog prices, the economist observed.

A slight downward trend in Indiana farm prices is expected to continue during the next year or two.

Prices of machinery and steel building materials are expected to be higher than average 1955 prices. Total farm production costs will be about the same next year as in 1955. Feed and grain prices will be somewhat lower while fertilizer prices should remain about the same.

Arnold forecasts a drop of $2 to $3 per hundred weight in hog prices from the $17.75 average Indianapolis price for the past year. Prospects indicate a local corn-hog ratio somewhat below the long time average—13.6 to 1.

Price of corn in Indiana during the year ahead should average between $1.15 and $1.25 per bushel. An abundance of oats, barley, and grain sorgum coupled with the probable release of CCC out-of-condition corn, will prevent a major rise in corn prices.

The soybean crop shortened by August and September drouth conditions, causing harvest-time prices to rise to the $2.15 to $2.25 level. Although the size of the crop is not yet known, further increases are in prospect but only about enough to cover storage and handling costs. Wheat is not expected to reach the loan level of $2.08 a bushel.

No significant changes in price levels for beef cattle are seen for the coming year. Profit margins for the cattle feeder will again be narrow despite lower feed costs.

For local dairymen, Lester said prices should remain near support levels in the year ahead.

Good news was forecast for poultrymen. Winter and spring egg production should net higher returns than the previous year. Turkey returns should also be more favorable.

No "let-up" is expected in most family living costs. But, in spite of higher processing and marketing charges, the cost of most family living items will be unchanged to up only slightly.

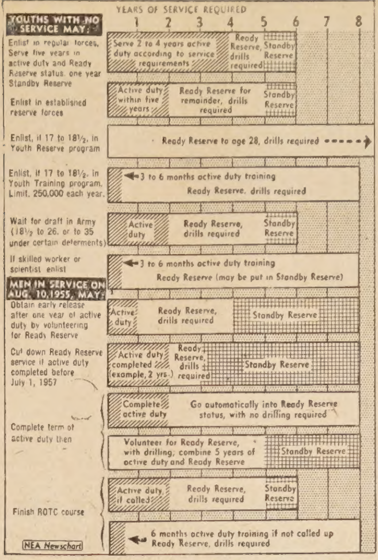
Dulles To Make Crucial 20-Hour Stay In Rome On Way To Geneva



HOW RESERVE ACT WORKS—The chart above summarizes, in simple terms, the working of the new Reserve Forces Act, effective October 1. The new act, which affects virtually every man of military age—17 to 36—requires at least five years of active duty and compulsory drilling in the reserves. There are two main categories of service—the Ready Reserve and the Standby Reserve. The Ready Reserve is an organized, trained and ready military force. This force, plus men on active duty, would be called up in any "police action" wars. Standby Reserve men would be called for active duty only after declaration of war or national emergency by Congress. Data from Nation's Business.

Saar Mobilizes Its Entire Police Force On An Emergency Footing

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

SAARBRUECKEN (UP) — The tense and explosive Saar territory mobilized its entire police force on an emergency footing today and began sealing its frontiers for Sunday's crucial referendum to decide the future of the coal and steel rich basin.

Saarlanders are to vote on a statute drawn up by France and West Germany which would "Europeanize" the Saar until an all-German peace treaty is signed.

Predictions were that a majority would vote "no." Such a rejection, it was feared, would cause a new flareup in French-German relations.

On the eve of the elections, Saar authorities with the approval of the Neutral supervisory commission, imposed a number of "precautionary" measures to guarantee against any possible disorders.

The main action is sealing of the frontiers of the 900-square-mile territory for 42 hours.

Police Leaves Cancelled

The Saar's tough French-trained 2,300-man police was fully mobilized with all leaves cancelled unntil next week. The sale of alcoholic beverages was barred from midnight tonight until 7 a.m. Monday.

Fernand Dehousse, Belgian head of the five nation neutral commission that will supervise the voting, told newsmen that the border-sealing measure was a "necessary but not alarming" precaution.

Noble Township Organizes For Wolf Lake School

The Noble Township School Building Corporation was organized at the Wolf Lake high school Thursday evening. Ninety interested patrons were present.

The holding company has been selling shares of stock at $10.00 each. Plans were set for a goal of $2,000 and by last evening $1,500 had been raised. The shares are repayable in 20 years and are non interest bearing.

Directors were elected as follows: Joseph Starkey, Roland Smith, H. O. Shaffer, Joseph Adair, Tom Targgart, Earl Ott and John Metzger.

The directors then elected these officers: Roland Smith, president; Joseph Starkey, vice-president; Joseph Adair, secretary; and Earl Ott, treasurer.

H. G. Kesling is the trustee. Advisory board members are Don Edwards, Carl Huntsman and Harold Seymoure.

The board of directors are working with the trustee and advisory board on all meetings to plan the new school addition.

The school gymnasium was destroyed by fire last January. This year six classes are meeting in the K. P. Hall, two blocks from the school. Physical education classes are meeting in the Wolf Lake Park. Basketball games will all be played away from home with practice at Albion and Wawaka.

The board of directors, the trustee and advisory board will meet next Tuesday to adopt by-laws. A representative of the A. K. Strauss Architect firm in Fort Wayne will be present to contract the planning of the school addition. Present plans call for building the gymnasium and eight class rooms on the east side of the Wolf Lake school. The gymnasium will face the street and the classrooms will be at the east side. The music department, the kitchen and cafeteria will be in the addition.

Hurled From Motorcycle; Is Seriously Hurt

Robert Burns, 29, Tri-Lakes, Found On North Main Street

Robert Burns, 29, Tri-Lakes, was injured about 2:05 a.m. Saturday, when he lost control of his motorcycle at the corner of North Main street and Brownwood avenue. He was rushed to the Whitley County Hospital by a J. A. DeMoney and Son ambulance Hospital authorities reported early this morning that he was suffering from shock, multiple contusions and abrasions of his head and neck, a fractured right clavicle and possible serious internal injuries.

Burns, an employe of the Fruehauf Trailer Company, Fort Wayne, was en route home at the time of the accident. He was found in the middle of the east lane of Main street near the Brownwood intersection by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bevington, also of Tri-Lakes. Mr. and Mrs. Bevington had just talked with him at a local restaurant prior to the accident. They summoned the ambulance and police, and accompanied him to the hospital.

The accident was investigated by officer John North of the city police department.

Burn's motorcycle, a German-made Maico, was not extensively damaged. Repairs to the vehicle have been estimated at between $40 and $50. Burns was semi-conscious when found.

Detective Unit Forms To Work On Slaying Case

Over 250 Men Begin Foot-By-Foot Search

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—A new 50-man detective unit formed today to work exclusively on the fiendish slaying of three Chicago schoolboys.

The unit was one of five law enforcement agencies, totaling more than 250 men, which began a foot-by-foot search of a 23-square mile area in an effort to find clues to the wanton murder of Robert Peterson, 13, John Schuessler, 13, and his brother, Anton, 11.

The nude, mutilated bodies of the three boys were found stacked in criss-cross fashion in a forest preserve ditch Tuesday.

Police planned to check every home car and vacant lot in the 160,000-population Jefferson Park district, where the boys apparently were slain, by Sunday night.

In other developments:

1. New evidence indicated the boys were last seen alive on the city's northwest side about 10:30 p.m. Sunday.

Mrs. Margaret Crimmins, 47, a waitress, told police she saw a well dressed man of about 50 in a new De Soto sedan pick up three boys at that time and drive in the general direction of the preserve.

Former Railroad Worker

2. Emphasis was placed on the information of Edward Rohlfes, 47, a former railroad worker, that he saw three men in a battered 1950 Ford approach a parking spot near the ditch two hours before the bodies were discovered.

3. Authorities said the story of a teen-age girl in Brookville, Ind., who said she "knew something" about the murder and then tried to commit suicide in her jail cell, was a "complete fabrication."

Thomas Brennan, chief of the sheriff's police here, and an aide returned to Chicago Friday night from Brookville after hearing the story of Gloria Vasquez, an admitted prostitute and dope addict with a criminal record.

Mrs. Crimmins' story, added to other reports, convinced detec-

Signs Multiply That Princess Will Say Yes To Townsend After Struggle With Conscience

LONDON (UP)—Signs multiplied today that Princess Margaret would say "yes" to Peter Townsend after a classic struggle with her conscience.

The pretty princess smiled gaily for photographers at 1:05 a.m. today after a six hour date with Townsend, and a London newspaper predicted an early announcement of their engagement.

It was her eighth date with the lean, 41-year-old airman for whom she has chased all over London and the "she will" faction among society gossips had a distinct edge over the "she won'ts."

There appeared little doubt the princess had not yet fully made up her mind — too much is at stake involving the British crown and the church of England.

"There is growing evidence in court circles that there will be an early announcement of Princess Margaret's engagement to Group Captain Peter Townsend," the News Chronicle said today.

No Final Decision

"But the Princess has not yet given her family a final decision, and until she does so the constitutional machinery cannot be set in motion."

The best guess was that the answer would come before Parliament convenes three days from now. Prime Minister Anthony Eden has been in communication with Queen Elizabeth and leaders of the Church of England in preparation for the decision one way or another.

The princess got a helping hand from a Conservative member of Parliament, Martin Lindsay, in her struggle against the church which refuses to countenance her marriage with the divorced Townsend.

"It was not so long ago in our history that the church encouraged us to burn witches," said Lindsay. "Future generations will regard the present attitude to innocent persons as no less inhuman—and unchristian."

Religious Questions Involved

The Archbishop of Canterbury saw Eden Friday and it was believed the constitutional and religious questions involved in a marriage between a member of the royal family and a divorced father of two children were discussed.

For the first time in more than a week, London's tabloid newspapers carried no mention of the princess on their front pages Both the Mirror and the Daily Sketch have been hinting in the past few days there might be no marriage.

Quick Action By Mother Saves Life Of Baby

Churubusco Woman Flags Down Motorist To Make Hospital Trip

Quick action by a Churubusco mother was credited today with saving the life of her three-year-old daughter after she discovered the child had swallowed poison.

Mrs. James Vanderford, 501 North Main street, Churubusco, grabbed her daughter and carried her to the street outside, flagging down the first motorist in sight, George A. Pollitt, about 4:45 p.m. He kindly rushed the mother with the child to a Churubusco physician's office where a "shot" was administered to the convulsed child. He recommended quick hospitalization and Mr. Pollitt drove Mrs. Vanderford and Sally to the Whitley County Hospital in Columbia City.

Her stomach was pumped immediately and by Saturday morning she had recovered sufficiently that she could be returned home.

The 3-year-old, while her mother was ironing in the dining room, climbed onto the counter in the kitchen, then to the windowsill and reached into a shelf 8 feet aboe the floor where several insecticide capsules were kept in a saucer for use in an electric fly killer. When Mrs. Vanderford saw Sally become sick she entered the kitchen and found what had happened and determined that the child had eaten about one-fourth of one capsule.

Not pausing, she dashed to the street with the baby, then in convulsions to enlist the first aid possible. On leaving the doctor's office in Churubusco, Mr Pollitt encountered a police car in Columbia City's downtown traffic on state road 205. This was driven by Paul Forrester. Explaining the emergency, Pollitt was escorted through traffic to the hospital by the policeman.

Mr. Vanderford, a salesman, returned home just after the incident and followed to the hospital. He remained with the baby over night until it was determined that she could be released to go home this morning.

Mr. Pollitt, resident north of Churubusco on state road 33, after leaving the mother and child at the hospital, returned to the Vanderford home to inform other children in the family that their sister was going to be all right. Gratitude for his acts sent Mr. Vanderford early today to thank Mr. Pollitt.

Russia Appears To Be Applying Pressure On West

By Calling For Long Drawn Out Disarmament Debate

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The Soviet Union appeared today to be applying pre-Geneva conference pressure on the West by calling for a long drawn out disarmament debate in the United Nations while making plans to blame the West if it fails.

The most logical interpretation observers could put on Friday's daylong performance by Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev in the UN disarmament Commission was that it was a "pre-Geneva" maneuver designed to build up pressure on the Western Powers.

Sobolev insisted that the 12-nation commision should immediately prepare a report on the record of the secret meetings of its subcommittee of the five major atomic powers. The record, 2,440 pages long, was published for the first time only three hours before the commission met.

Assembley Could Profit

The Russian, at wide variance with Western views, said he saw no reason why the United Nations should not debate disarmament at the same time as the Big Four foreign nministers are debating it at their Geneva meeting. The consensus was that the general assembly could profit from the Big Four's views.

Sobolev said that there "is a def-

4 Vehicles Damaged; No One Injured

No injuries resulted but four automobiles were damaged in two separate accidents investigated here Friday afternoon by the city police.

About 12:30 p.m. the 1954 Chevrolet coach of Lorin C. Brown, 53, Wilson Lake, receiveddamageestmated at $125 and the 1954 Ford coach owned by the Gerber Baby Foods Co. of Fremont, Mich., was damaged to the extent of $40 in a collision at Line and Spencer streets. The food company's vehicle was driven by Shearle Raymond Loughheed, 33, 1911 Berkeley drive, Fort Wayne. Brown was going west on Spencer street, told Police Chief Lee Gross that he stopped first for the Line street intersection and proceded, not seeing any approaching vehicle. When about three-fourths of the way across the intersection he saw the southbound car of Lougheed. The right rear and side of Brown's car were damaged while damage to the Fort Wayne salesman's car was confined to the left front and grille.

About an hour earlier on Ellsworth street east of the Washington sstreet intersection, the 1950 Studebaker sedan operated by Mrs. Grant Knight of 606 East Ellsworth street, was damaged to the extent of $15 when it was sideswiped by the 1953 Ford sedan operated by Mrs Willard Collier, a registered nurse, who resides at 210 Collins street. Mrs. Knight is employed as a clerk at a local drug store.

Mrs. Knight had made a left turn from Washington street and was eastbound on Ellsworth when Mrs. Collier, also eastbound, attempted to pass on the right side. Marion Oliver, city policeman who investigated the accident, estimated repairs to the Collier vehicle would amount to $50.

Mayor Proclaims Olympic Day In Columbia City

Jaycees Supporting 1955 Fund Drive

In recognition and in cooperation with the local and national Junior Chamber of Commerce project of raising funds for the 1955 Olympic Fund Drive, Mayor Thos. H. Hood has proclaimed this day, Saturday, October 22, as Olympic Day in Columbia City.

The National Junior Chamber of Commerce is conducting the Olympic Fund Drive, with the backing of Life magazine.

Ed Meyers, president of the Columbia City Junior Chamber of Commerce, announces that no direct solicitation will be made, but cannisters will be placed in prominent locations throughout the city where persons may make voluntary donations. The cannisters will be collected December 30.

Members of the local Jaycee Olympic Committee are: Jack Peabody, chairman; Willis Goble, Jim Johnston, Bob Fahl, Max Reed.

The Olympic committee is engaged in obtaining funds for the VII Winter Olympic Games, to be held in Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, January 26-February 5, 1956, and for the XVI Olympiad to be held in Melbourne, Australia, November 22 December 8, 1956.

As in the past, the United States Olympic Committee will receive no government financial support. As opposed to the Iron and Bamboo Curtain countries, this country depends entirely on the interest and appreciation of sports-loving individuals to send athletes to the contests. The costs of U.S. Olympic participation in 1956 will amount to approximately $1,000,000, and will send nearly 500 athletes to Cortina and Melbourne.

The local Olympic committee solicits the voluntary support of sports fans who are interested in the Olympic games.

Italian Cabinet Meets To Plan Foreign Strategy

Italy Expresses Hope For Stronger Voice In Policy Making

By ROBERT E. JACKSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

ROME (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was flying here today for a 20-hour visit Italy hoped would align this country more firmly alongside the West at such history - making events as the Geneva Big Four meetings.

Before leaving Washington Friday, Dulles indicated the United States was willing to go half way and perhaps a little more in seeking agreements with Russia to ease East - West tensions at the Foreign Ministers Conference starting in Geneva Thursday.

The fact he was stopping here for "consultations in advance" boosted the prestige of the Italian government which has expressed hope for a stronger voice in Western policy making. It also raised American prestige and countered a strong Communist propaganda offensive in Italy.

Dulles' plane was due in Rome at 6 p.m. (noon EDT).

Army Spokesmen Say Nation's Weapons For Deterring War To Stagger Imagination

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UP)—The Army's top spokesmen said today the nation's new weapons for deterring war will "stagger the imagination.'

America cannot, and is not relying on "phony' military strength to keep the peace, they told 500 top members of the Association of the United States Army at sessions at this huge infantry center.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, said that only "the obvious big stick" will hold back an aggressor.

Military power, he said, "cannot be phony . . . it cannot be a bluff."

Outlining Arm steps to expand America's deterrent strength, Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, research and devtlopment chief, said new guided missiles have "almost unbelievable possibilities" for attacking aircraft, tanks and other enemy targets.

"The potentialities of such missiles if or when equipped with nuclear warheads of various sizes stagger the imagination," Gavin said.

The two generals delivered major addresses climaxing a two-day meeting of the association, an organization dedicated to advancing Army interests. Members came here to witness a display of the "new army" firepower and progress in use of aviation to seize territory deep behind enemy lines.

The Army, Taylor said, is uniquely able to deal with big or little, atomic or conventional war.

In waging war with "measured destruction," he said, the Army is like a "well-equipped orchestra, able to strike the appropriate note or chord at the approximate time."

That was a clear statement of the growing Army line that it, in contrast with the massive atomic blows of the Air Force, can fight a war with a main eye on postwar political and economic conditions in defeated lands.

Gavin, a steadily rising star in the Army who recently took over the newly created research and development post, said that "no super weapon" can be counted on for victory.

The Indiana Sheriffs' association will hold its fall 1955 meeting at Richmond Oct. 23, 24 and 25, according to the invitation to the sessions received by Sheriff Galen O. Adair. The Whitley county sheriff plans to attend the sessions scheduled for Monday.

The Methodist Home, Franklin, Indiana

Indiana's new Methodist Home for the aged at Franklin, now half completed, would take nearly 750,000 workmen seven and one half years to construct in the days of Solomon according to Dr. Sumner L. Martin, executive secretary.

Dr. Martin based his figures on the Biblical report of the construction of Solomon's temple 30 centuries ago. It took 183,300 men seven and one half years to procure construction materials, transport them and construct the temple, which was only one fourth as large as the home. Dimensions of the temple were about 100 by 33 feet in contrast to the home which will have 18 times as much floor space or nearly one and one half acres.

Architect Alden Meranda estimated that in this day it would take 140 men 15 months to construct the home for the making of tools to mine the ore to the transportation of material and final construction. The home is expected to be completed in May of 1956, about 15 months after breaking ground.

Construction costs of the home are $809,628. If Solomon's workers were to build the home, their pay would be only $1.08 for their seven and one half years of labor.

Being used in construction of the home are 125 tons of reinforcing steel and 5,000 tons of concrete. The doors to be used in the building if laid end to end would make a three foot wide sidewalk two-thirds of a mile long. In contrast to the narrow slits used for windows in the temple, the home will use 4,100 square feet of window glass.

The furnished cost of the home, which includes a center section and east and west wings, will be about $1,000,000. Ultimate plans call for two additional wings which will bring total costs to around $3,000,000.

The building now under construction includes 94 resident rooms, solariums, recreation rooms, a chapel, library, beauty parlor, infirmary, laundry, dining rooms and administrative offices. It is located on 40 acres of land and will be of brick construction with stone trim.

The home is a project of the Indiana Conference of the Methodist church. Members of every Methodist church in southern Indiana have contributed to the building fund. The Conference will give annual financial support to the home to enable worthy individuals together with those who are able to pay all of their expenses to benefit from the home.

The home is a part of the Indiana Conference building program which has also started four new Methodist churches in needed communities

Nation's Youngsters Work For Christ

Across the country today thousands of teen-agers are observing "Work For Christ" Day in the Pilgrim Fellowship Youth Organization of Congregational Christian churches.

The "Work Day" idea was started five years ago and is growing rapidly.

The youngsters will wash windows, rake lawns, saw wood, scrub floors and polish cars, and perform many other tasks. The money they earn will go to missionary churches, schools and hospitals all over the world.

These boys and girls deserve a prayer of thank you.

What a fitting close to National Bible Week.

Observers Predict Landslide Victory For Premier Diem

SAIGON, Indochina (UP) — Observers today predicted a landslide victory for Premier Ngo Dinh Diem over absentee Chief of State Bao Dai when South Viet Nam chooses a new chief of state Sunday.

Some 3-million menn and women over the age of 18 are eligible to vote in the referendum. Many consider a vote for Diem is a vote against the Geneva truce which split the country and turned over the northern half to the Communists. Others are resentful at the years-long absence in France of Bao Dai.

Observers believe that Diem would win at least 85 per cent of the vote. The army threw its backing to Diem and a number of former opponents also have come out in his support.

Britain has indicated it will recognize the results of the plebiscite—if the referendum is fair. The United States, which has supported Diem, and France are expected to go along also.

Bao Dai "fired" Diem this week in an apparent attempt to forestall the showdown. But the Premier ignored his dismissal; his revolutionary congress "deposed" the absentee "emperor" last April.

Diem has promised to hold elections for a constituent assembly in the next few weeks if he wins.

RALEIGH, N.C. (UP)—The operator of a concession at the North Carolina State Fair which offers prizes for skill with a basketball had to close up Thursday night when several customers walked off with $200 in prizes.

The contestants were members of the North Carolina State University basketball team.

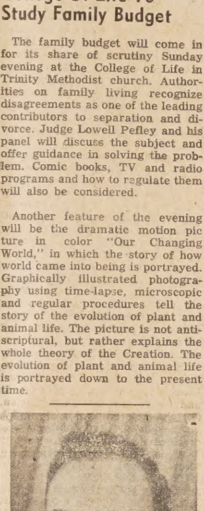
Trinity Methodist College Of Life To Study Family Budget

The family budget will come in for its share of scrutiny Sunday evening at the College of Life in Trinity Methodist church. Authorities on family living recognize disagreements as one of the leading contributors to separation and divorce. Judge Lowell Pefley and his panel will discuss the subject and offer guidance in solving the problem. Comic books, TV and radio programs and how to regulate them will also be considered.

Another feature of the evening will be the dramatic motion picture in color "Our Changing World," in which the story of how world came into being is portrayed. Graphically illustrated photography using time-lapse, microscopic and regular procedures tell the story of the evolution of plant and animal life. The picture is not anti-scriptural, but rather explains the whole theory of the Creation. The evolution of plant and animal life is portrayed down to the present time.



Rev. J. W. Pattee

The Rev. J. W. Pattee, missionary of the Church of the Nazarene to the Phillippine Islands, will speak at a rally at the local church Sunday evening at 7:30.

The Rev. Merle Bright, pastor of the church, reports that Rev. Pattee was formerly a missionary in China until the communists took control. He has made two trips around the world.

Preaching Mission To Start At EUB Church

A Preaching Mission is planned for the First Evangelical United Brethren Church, corner Market and Chauncey streets, October 23-30.

The pastor, the Rev. P. F. Young will speak in each service, using the general theme "The Kingdom of God.

Themes for the Sunday morning worship services at 9:30 will be "Things We Believe" and "Power Given."

Evening services Monday through Friday will be at 7:30. Themes selected by the pastor are: "The Romance of Faith, Shorn of Power, As a Man Thinketh; Redeeming our Mind, Soul and Body; The Kingdom is Here."

The Rev. H. R. Steele, pastor of the Washington Center EUB church will play the marimba and be in charge of a musical program each evening preceding the service.

Classes of the church school have been assigned evenings for which the members will be in charge of church pews and will endeavor to have them filled.

Heavy Taxes

SALEM, Ore. (UP) — Oregon's "heavy" state income taxes were blamed today for an unscheduled evacuation by Civil Defense employes of their basement offices.

The employes were moved out when a series of cracks appeared on the ceiling because of the weight of more than one-million state income tax forms piled on the first floor.

Stevenson And Harriman Woo Farm Vote Today

Two Almost-Certain Candidates For 1956 Presidential Nomination

WASHINGTON (UP) — Two almost-certain candidates for the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination wooed the critical farm vote today.

Adlai Stevenson demanded a return to 90 per cent of parity, the former level of price supports under Democratic administrations, to help solve falling farm prices.

He told a conference of Midwest Democrats at Des Moines, Iowa, Friday night that 90 per cent of parity "is all the more necessary at the present time when farmers' income is falling and we are moving further away from the goal of equality."

New York Gov. Averell Harriman, an expected rival to Stevenson for the nomination, will present his views on farm issues to the Des Moines conference tonight.

Democrats plan to make falling farm prices a major issue in 1956, putting most of the blame on the Administration's flexible price support program.

Price Supports Not Enough

In his Des Monies statement Stevenson also emphasized that price supports "do not by themselves constitute a complete farm program" and that Democrats must also "face the realities of surpluses and unbalanced production."

Another possible contender for the Democratic nomination, Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, cautioned Democrats last night to guard against over-optimism if President Eisenhower decides not to seek re-election next year. Kefauver, speaking in Erie, Pa., warned that Democrats face a bitter election battle with "desperate" Republicans.

In Stonewall, Tex., two top-ranking Democrats — Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, and Missouri Sen. Stuart Symington — met in a "pure social visit" that couldn't help but include talk about politics and the maneuvering for presidential nominations.

In the Republican camp the name of Vice President Richard M. Nixon figured prominently.

Would Support Nixon n

In New York, California Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight said he would support Nixon as the GOP's presidential candidate if the Republican convention nominates him. Knight's forces and those of Nixon have feuded bitterly in California.

Nixon was also discussed by Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga) in a copyrighted interview published by the Atlanta Constitution. The newspaper quoted George as saying Mr. Eisenhower would be "badly defeated" if he ran for re-election with Nixon again as his running mate.

Attempts Made To Reunite Mother And Abandoned Baby

BOSTON (UP)—Sentimental police and charitable organizations teamed up today in attempts to reunite an unidentified mother with her abandoned polio-stricken baby boy by offering her aid and a promise not to prosecute.

"We are not arrest-minded.... the police would like to help the mother," said Police Sgt. Joseph D. McGillivary who heads the search for the admitted poverty-stricken widow, mother of an 18-day old tot reported recovering today from polio at Boston City Hospital.

Hard bitten and obviously-moved policemen combed the low-rental Roxbury section where the child was found in a paperbag on a doorstep Oct. 6 — the day after he was born. He was stricken with polio four days ago with his arm partially paralyzed.

Dr. John F. Conlon of City Hospital said the baby "possibly" may be suffering, too, from pneumonia in the upper left lobe of one lung.

Boston newspapers circulated an open letter to "dear mother of baby X" from Augustine H. Parker Jr., president of United Community Services, offering "the facilities of all red feather agencies will go into immediate action to help you.

His appeal came only hours after the woman wrote hospital authorities identifying herself as a poverty-stricken widow who abandoned her infant so that he "might" have life instead of poverty and someone who could "aford (sic) to give him at least a shirt and a diaper."

WORKDAY AT PARK — The Columbia City set aside a workday last week for clearing off some of the brush and undergrowth at the Morsches park area. Maintaining this city park area, which is located at the eastern edge of the city on State road 205, has been a Jaycee project.

A few years ago, several hundred pine trees were planted on the grounds by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Since that time, attempts have been made to keep the weeds down, but it is a big job.

In the above photo, a group of Jaycees are knocking down the tall weeds which are making a tough job for the small pine trees to survive. A thorn tree in the foreground is also being disposed of. The workers with shovels are loosening the ground around the young pine trees.

Tractors with weed cutters were loaned by local implement dealers to speed up the job.

Ike Fought, Won Important Battle Against Russia At Last Summer's Summit Meeting

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower fought and won at last summer's summit meeting a battle against Russian efforts to set up a European security pact ahead of German reunification.

A new State Department record of the four-power session showed that Mr. Eisenhower told Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin bluntly that the chief source of Europe's insecurity is the division of Germany. Thus, he said, the problem of European security and German reunification are "inseparable."

The Eisenhower-Bulganin squabble was revealed clearly in an 88-page record of the July meeting of U.S., British, French and Russian heads of state at Geneva. The record, which was not complete because some of the other powers refused to agree to full publication, was made public just a week before the Big Four foreign ministers meeting in Geneva.

President Wins Point

Publication of even the partial record was expected to touch off new international controversies. None of the other three nations involved was anxious to have the record published.

The State Department record showed that the Eisenhower-Bulganin controversy developed July 20, the third day of the meeting, when Russia proposed a general European treaty on collective security.

Mr. Eisenhower countered by saying Russia seemed to believe "the organization of some new and overall pact, deferring for the moment the thought of reunifying Germany, would contribute to security."

"We believe," he said, "that the division of Germany itself contributes to the insecurity of Europe and that seems to us to be the principal point of difference between what he (Bulganin) has just said to the conference and what we believe."

The President won his point. The final declaration of the conference placed European security and German unification together as the first item of business to be discussed at the coming foreign ministers meeting.

Won't Start War

The State Department record also showed that Mr. Eisenhower took special pains to assure the Soviet Union that the United States will never start a war or even participate in an aggressive war.

Turning to his old World War II friend, Soviet Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov, Mr. Eisenhower said: "... I can assure you that under no circumstances is the United States ever going to be a party to aggressive war against any nation"

He also took pains to pledge that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which Russia has consistently tried to have disbanded, "is purely defensive"

In the same statement, the President recalled his former friendship with Zhukov and said the marshal knew that "I have never uttered a single word that I did not believe to be the truth."

Senator, Publisher He Challenged To Duel Have Scuffle

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UP) —A senator and the publisher he challenged to a duel scuffled briefly when they met unexpectedly at the opening of an art exhibition at the museum of art Thursday night.

Police stepped in quickly to separate Sen. Juracy Magalhaes and Paulo Bittencourt, publisher of the Correio da Manha and president of the Inter-American Press Assn.

The short-lived flurry took place before a glittering gathering of socialities and art-lovers.

Magalhaes claimed he succeeded in landing a punch. Bittencourt refused to comment on the incident.

The senator had challenged Bittencourt to "armed duel" because of a Correio da Manha editorial which offended his honor. The editorial described Magalhaes as a "low-level demagogue, irresponsible and turncoat."

Bittencourt rejected the challenge as "ridiculous."

Report On Number Of Polio Cases

WASHINGTON (UP) — The government reported Thursday that polio struck nearly 50 per cent fewer persons in the nation last week than in the same period a year ago.

The Department of Health Education and Welfare said 884 cases were reported for the week ending last Saturday as compared with 1,647 cases in the same week in 1954. A total of 1,037 cases were reported the week before last.

Diphtheria cases still were on the rise, though, with 489 cases reported last week, the department said.

The agent explained that he had to shoot a rattlesnake that crawled into his hiding place.

School Bus Drivers Are Invited To Safety Conference

Lafayette,—As an aid in developing an adequate school bus safety program, the first School Bus Drivers' Conference will be held at Purdue University next Thursday. Invitations to participate have been extended to 6,700 school bus drivers and 1,109 township trustees. Since the conference is scheduled during the annual State Teachers Association meetings when schools will be closed, several hundred persons are expected to attend.

The session will open at 9 a.m. in Smith Hall on the Purdue campus. R. E. Michael, director of extended services, Ball State Teachers College, will speak on problems and progress in school bus operation. Wes Dane, of the State Office of Traffic Safety, will discuss the duties and responsibilities of drivers.This will be followed by a demonstration on first aid under the direction of Prof. Homer Allen, of Purdue

Arthur Skidmore, chief of driver examiners, Indiana Bureau of Motor Vehicles, will explain qualifications required to get a license. Sgt. Charles Harbison and Trooper Charles Allenduff, of the Indiana State Police, are to speak on the new specifications for school busses. At a noon luncheon, Dr. Harriet O'Shea, of the Purdue psychology department, will present tips on discipline and running a happy, orderly bus. Her topic is "Why Kids Do What They Do."

Out side demonstrations will be held during the afternoon under the direction of Neff Dykes, director of safety and personnel for Indiana Trailways, and W. L. Scott, truck service manager for the Chrysler Corporation. These demonstrations will include reaction and braking distance at various speeds; alertness, skill and caution in maneuvering; checking bus specifications; and maintenance inspection.

D. A. Weaver of Purdue's Public Safety Institute, who is in charge of the program explains that Indiana has been criticized in the traffic inventory conducted by the National Safety Council for failure to provide adequate training for school bus drivers. State law provides what type of vehicle is legal, what safety equipment is required, and what maintenance and performance standards must be matched.

The program including the luncheon is being furnished through the courtesy of a group of school bus manufacturers; however, advance registration is necessary before October 24.

cabinet meeting today to plan Italian strategy before Dulles' arrival. In addition to seeking a bigger voice in international affairs, Italy is concerned over a number of other important matters:

1. Italian admission to the United Nations which the Soviets have tied to simultaneous entry of the Eastern Europe satellites.

2. The 10-year-plan for developing Southern Italy and wiping out unemployment, one of the chief breeders of Communism.

3. Help in reviving Italy's prewar influence in Middle East affairs.

The United States in turn will want guarantees that Italian leaders will fight off the wave of neutralism infecting Europe since last July's "Summit" conference.

Informed sources said Italy gave one such guarantee Friday night in rejecting a proposal by left-wing Socialist leader Pietro Nenni that Italy grant recognition to Peiping "in the spirit of Geneva."

Meeting In Paris

From Rome Dulles flies to Paris for a meeting with British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan, French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay and other North Atlantic Treaty leaders.

The Quai d'Orsay announced in Paris the Big Three foreign ministers will meet at the Foreign Office Monday afternoon (10:30 a.m. EDT) and will be joined three hours later by West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano.

In a statement issued just before taking off for Rome Dulles reaffirmed that "real conciliation and some giving on each side" will be necessary if the conference is to produce results.

Dulles said he was going to Geneva with the backing of President Eisenhower, Congressional leaders, and, "I believe of our people."

He said he would seek specific agreements on German unity, European security and reducing East - West barriers.

And underscoring his pledge to enter into the talks with Russia in a spirit of conciliation, Dulles said "the Western Powers, including the Federal Republic of Germany, are willing to meet every legitimate Russian concern for security."

He appealed to Saarlanders and residents of the neighboring countries to maintain calm during the voting. He warned that the ministers council of the Western European Union, which will meet in November to decide whether the referendum was held properly, would be guided to a large extent by the attitude of the Saar population during the campaign's closing stages.

Violence At Meetings

Saar Premier Johannes Hoffmann, leader of the supporters for internationalization, whose meetings earlier in the campaign erupted into violence and rioting, addressed another six rallies in industrial and mining towns Friday night

At Dillingen, a grimy town with huge blast furnaces, a crowd of about 3,000 opponents of the statute attempted to force its way into the square ouside the hall where Hoffmann spoke. A force of several hundred blue-uniformed police armed with clubs moved in to hold them back.

Leaders of the three main pro-German opposition parties scheduled a joint mass rally at the Wartburg, the largest hall in Saarbruecken tonight.

The voting will be supervised by 1,005 neutral observers from Belgium, Britain, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands. The five nations and France and West Germany comprise the Western European Union.

TRENTON, N.J. (UP) — The thief who looted a Trenton tavern of $150 Friday probably knows by now that he got some well marked money.

All of the bills were given tavern owner Albert Angeloni, 32, by well-wishers when he opened his bar and are inscribed by such sentiments as "good luck, Al" and "best wishes, Al."

evaluate the President's condition and map out the program under which he will live for the next few weeks. White is tentatively scheduled to return two weeks from today.

White was in Denver Oct. 9 for a consultation and he said the President should be able to leave Fitzsimons Army Hospital about the second week in November.

It might have been possible to fly him out earlier, but he insists on walking to the plane. So, it is necessary for him to start walking in the next two weeks to get out on schedule.

When White was last in Denver, he also said that by the end of the fourth week after the President's heart attack, he may be "sitting up all day, out of bed"

Mr. Eisenhower was out of bed —lifted carefully into an easy chair or a wheelchair by hospital corpsmen—for a total of 110 minutes Friday.

Complication Cleared Up

Correspondents were curious about the statement of Dr. Eugene Lepeschkin, the University of Vermont cardiologist, who said the President's electro - cardiograms showed a "complication," which now is cleared up.

Lepeschkin, who has worked closely with White, said the President's progress now is normal. Hagerty said the correspondents would have to take up this question with White. White will hold a news conference by 2 p.m. (5 p.m., EDT) today.

The President had a relatively busy day Friday, conferring with Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., on an ambitious legislative and administrative program for the Justice Department in 1956.

The President also approved the 36th report on lend-lease operations. It showed that nations which this country supplied with lend-lease during World War II paid a total of 49-million dollars on the debt in 1954.

The foregoing figure of 11,813 on the Lafayette campus is a gain of 1,252 students over the same time last year, and the off-campus centers are expected to show proportionate gains, Associate Registrar N. M. Parkhurst stated.

A breakdown of the figures announced today show 10,138 undergraduate and 1,675 graduate students here, of whom 9,741 are men and 2,072 are women

Young Likens Craig To Caesar

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —State School Supt. Wilbur Young erected a verbal roadblock today to Governor Craig's suggestion that traffic safety be a required course for all Indiana school children.

Young likened Craig to Caesar and accused him of blunders, despite the fact both are Republicans.

Craig made his proposal to the State Police Board Thursday. He said the public is so apathetic to traffic safety and civil defense that both should be made compulsory studies in grade and high schools

The governor said he would ask the State Board of Education to establish compulsory courses—pedestrian instruction in the grade schools, traffic laws in junior high, and driver training in high school.

At present, high school pupils must take one semester of "health and safety" while driver training is voluntary.

Young said compulsory driver training is "undesirable and ineffective." He said Indiana schools approach safety and self-preservation on the highways as "natural attributes and instinctive reactions instead of compulsory indoctrination."

"There is no room for Caesarism in any branch of the American government," Young said.

"Those genuinely interested in traffic safety are getting rather dismayed in seeing the shopworn rabbit of accident prevention propaganda being jerked in and out of the executive hat every time there is a necessity for diverting the public's attention from the latest executive blunders and mistakes."

Russia

inite possibility of agreement on the basic questions of disarmament" and charged that Harold E. Stassen, President Eisenhower's principal aide on disarmament questions, had cast "general doubt" on the possibility of an accord in the five-nation subcommittee.

U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., retorted that the Americans want a "real debate" on disarmament here in the United Nations but would not stand for any "stampeding" of the UN membership by the Russians.

Performance Thought Odd

The Friday performance was long, and in the opinion of many delegates, odd. It seemed to add up to these probabilities:

1. Russia wants to put the West, by blaming it for the lack of agreement in the secret arms talks, in a bad propaganda light. This probably is to offset the propaganda disadvantage the Soviet Union is likely to suffer if, as is expected, tion.

2. The Russians are not anticipating any real progress on disarmament in the Big Four meeting and want it on the record that the West refused to debate arms reduction here at this time.

3. The Kremlin is pointing toward a major propaganda effort when the Assembly gets around to its disarmament debate, now likely late in November, and Sobolev has laid the groundwork for a phony charge that the West is responsible if arms talks break down.

Plans Go Ahead For Stockyard Strike In Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) — Plans went ahead today for a strike at the Indianapolis Stockyards at midnight Sunday with "unanimous" backing by members of a union local.

Clayton Sayles, field representative for the CIO United Packinghouse Union, said members voted unanimously Friday night against acceptance of a company wage offer.

The stockyards, one of the world's largest hog markets, was closed Friday noon in preparation for the strike, but Sayles said it was "possible" members would change their minds at the night-time meeting.

Bridge, Deutsch Score On Long Runs, But C.C. Loses

The accurate right arm Quarterback Tony Kelley gave the Decatur Yellow Jackets their first football win in eight games last night at Worthman Field, where the Columbia City Eagles were beaten 18-12.

In going down to their eighth defeat of the season, the Eagle lineman showed more spark than in any previous game, but the backs could not stop the passing of Kelley.

Decatur's Kelley passed for two of the Yellow Jacket touchdowns and two nice gains by the airways helped set up the other score.

Columbia City's two touchdowns were scored in rapid succession in action that took place immediately before halftime and immediately following the intermission.

Bridge Scores

Ross had skirted his left end from four yards out for the first Decatur score, and when the Yellow Jackets kicked off to the Eagles, 30 seconds remained in the first half. Decatur attempted an onside kick, which almost worked. The first Eagle lineman who touched the ball fumbled it, a Decatur player pounced on the pigskin only to have it squirt from his grasp, another Columbia City player tried picking up the ball only to drop it and stumble. This frantic diving at the ball was ended when Roger Bridge, Eagle center, grabbed the ball and ran 45 yards for a touchdown. The half ended moments later with the score 6-6.

Decatur opened the second half by kicking off to the Eagles. The kick was long, and Deutsch was stopped on the C.C. 8-yard line. On the first play, Deutsch took a Yant's hand off on a reverse play and raced, untouched, 92 yards for the second Columbia City score, The try for the extra point failed, and the Eagles led 12-6.

After that it was Kelley's passing which constantly threatened. The Yellow Jackets evened up the count at 12-12 on a 54-yard touchdown pass from Kelley to Hutker in the third quarter, and in the closing minutes of the game, Kelley found Strickler open in the end zone and hit him with a pass from the 15-yard line The first down for the series of plays that resulted in the score was set up on a Kelley to Murphy pass which was good for nearly 20 yards.

Linemen Stiffen

The Columbia City line showed more resistance against Decatur than it has against any other team this season Eagle linemen held Decatur to six first downs rushing, while three Yellow Jacket first downs were made on passes and two on penalties. Columbia City chalked up all eight of its first downs on rushing plays.

Decatur attempted 13 passes and completed seven, while the Eagles attempted five, completed none and had two intercepted, spelling the difference in the game. Decatur's ground game, based on the single wing offense, centered its impact over the Eagle left tackle spot The Yellow Jacket quarterback directed 13 plays over the Eagle left tackle, which netted 62 yards, more yardage gained on the ground than in the other 29 plays.

Sparking the Eagle defensive linemen were Jay Smith, tackle, who turned in stalwart performance, and Roger Bridge, who apparently became inspired after making his 45-yard touchdown run. Barry Brennan was back in uniform last night for the Eagles, after a layoff of several weeks due to a leg injury.

Few Eagle fans attended the Decatur game to see two of Columbia City's most spectacular touchdown runs of the season, as well as the brilliant passing by Decatur.

The 1955 grid season ends Wednesday evening, when Warsaw will traditionally drop the curtain. The game will be played at DeVol Field, with the Halloween Queen to be crowned during halftime ceremonies

Former Ohio State Football Player Hilinski Killed

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UP) — Former Ohio State football player Dick Hilinski was killed Friday night when the car in which he was riding swerved to avoid another car and crashed in an open field near here.

Police said Hilsinki was riding in a car driven by Sylvester J. Blake. Blake, who was treated for head injuries, told police an oncoming car crossed over the center line of the road and he lost control of his car when he swerved to avoid the other car.

Hilinski, who lived in Euclid, Ohio, was a member of Ohio State's 1955 Rose Bowl team.

Logart Wins Over Contender Gil Turner

NEW YORK (UP)-Isaac Logart, Cuba's new threat to the welterweight crown, will get another television fight in Madison Square Garden on Dec. 2 as a reward for his close but impressive victory over middleweight contender Gil Turner there Friday night.

An outstanding welterweight—Ramon Fuentes, Virgil Akins or Don Jordan—will be the December opponent unless the TV sponsors demand a return match.

Logart, 22, and ranked ninth among welter contenders, won a unanimous 10-round decision over Turner of Philadelphia, 10th ranking middleweight, before 2,500 in their nationally televised and broadcast fight. It was Isaac's first Garden main event.

Turner, 25, out-weighed Logart by 5¾ pounds. Gil registered 152¾; Logart, 147. It was Turner's heaviest poundage in six months; but Manager Georgia Katz said he needed that weight for strength, and he would not permit a return fight if the Logart camp demanded that Gil pare down.

GREENWOOD LAKE, N.Y. (UP) —Sugar Ray Robinson declared today that he would seek to "score a quick knockout over a weakened" Carl (Bobo) Olson in their middleweight title bout on Nov. 4.

Robinson insisted the middle weight champion "would be weak from making the 160-pound weight limit."

Chico Signs With Caracas Club

CARACAS, Venezuela (UP) — Chico Carrasquel, the Chicago White Sox' brilliant defensive short stop, will begin playing for Caracas in the Venezuelan League immediately — but as an outfielder.

Indiana State Parks In Full Fall Colors

Full fall colors are expected in the Indiana State Parks and Hoosier woodlands in Central Indiana by this week-end; and in those in the extreme southern part of the state by the weekend of October 29.

Harley G. Hook, Director of the Indiana Department of Conservation and Kenneth R. Cougill, Director of the Division of Parks, Lands and Waters urge everyone to take advantage of the Hoosier State's most beautiful park season.

According to these conservation officials, the fall season in the parks are the most enjoyable and are extremely advantageous.

The experienced conservationists offer several suggestions to make your visit more enjoyable. Don't forget sweaters and light jackets. October and November is the time for steaks and weiners, cooked or roasted over an open charcoal or wood fire. 'For a special outing, try a breakfast of ham and eggs cooked on an out-door furnace and served out-doors on a crisp fall morning. A skillet of oldfashioned country fried potatoes will add to any meal in the open.

Be sure to take along some color film, if you are a camera fan, also a good nature book and some fishing tackle.

New Albany Latest Giant-Killers Of Season's Topsy-Turvy Indiana High School Football

By KURT FREUDENTHAL
United Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) — New Albany's Southern Conference champions, down but not out following a clean sweep last year, were the latest giant-killers of a topsy-turvy Indiana High School football season today, with Evansville Central the victim.

Beaten four times this fall, the Bulldogs shaded Central's fourth-ranking Bears, 21-19, Friday night in a king-size upset that gave idle Boonville another boost toward the SIAC flag.

Top-ranking East Chicago Roosevelt and Kokomo and Fort Wayne North, also members of the United Press "Big 10," won easily and Plymouth celebrated its first perfect season and capture of the undisputed Central Conference crown. Other ranking powers had the night off.

Roosevelt's Rough Riders made it six in a row, blasting Whiting, 34-0, to clinch a tie for the West NIHSC title and avenge their only 1954 setback. The winners amassed 351 yards rushing and held Whiting to a mere 31 yards.

Kokomo, ranked seventh statewide, toyed with Frankfort, 39-0, to keep a clean slate in the North Central Conference race with three wins. However, Kokomo end Bill Coburn wound up in the hospital with a broken right leg.

North Side, the No. 9 club, took the Fort Wayne city championship, blanking Catholic, 18-0.

Evansville Central, rated fourth in the latest U.P. Coaches Poll and conqueror of city foe Reitz last week, matched New Albany in touchdowns, but Don Schnell kicked three extra points to spell the difference and send the Pocket city crew down to its first loss in six games.

For New Albany, Jerry Daily passes to George Everbach for two touchdowns and plunged for the third. Roger (Red) Garrett scored twice for the Bears and passed 68 yards to Larry Gates for the third marker.

Plymouth shaded Huntington, 7-0, for its eighth straight triumph and took sole possession of the CIC pennant when Hartford City stopped Elwood, 26-20.

Plymouth took the opening kickoff and marked 76 yards, Roy Grant scoring on a 12-yard end run. The Rockies then staved off seven Viking assaults, including a stout stand on their one-yard line in the second period. With 90 seconds to go Huntington's Art Musselman scooped up a blocked kick and dashed into Plymouth's end zone but a clipping penalty nullified the play.

Elwood, which won six straight after an opening-game defeat, lost any chance to tie Plymouth for CIC honors at Hartford City when Bob Reid fired a six-yard touchdown pass to Jack Ely in the final period.

Also upstate, Dolan Bozeman scored all four TDs, including a 103-yard kickoff return, to lead East Chicago Washington to a 25-20 win over Hammond. LaPorte ripped South Bend Central, 34-21; Goshen shaded Elkhart, 13-6, and Michigan City broke a six-game losing streak at the expense of Washington-Clay, 13-7.

Fullback Layden Rieke scored twice in the final two minutes to give Auburn the nod over Warsaw, 30-26.

Muncie Central, co-champ last year, captured its first NCC game, trouncing New Castle, 45-19. Curtis Childress scored four tallies, including runs of 63 and 69 yards, and Jim Barnes got the other three, from 25 yards out or better. Logansport trimmed Lafayette, 26-7.

South Central Conference champion Seymour romped over Shelbyville, 39-0, for its eighth straight victory, Bode Hill collecting 21 points. Southport's John Alvord passed for four touchdowns in a 33-7 conquest over Columbus.

George Ball Of Muncie Dies

MUNCIE, Ind. (UP)—George A. Ball, 92, one of five brothers who made the Mason jar a standard for home preservation of foods, died today in his home.

Ball was chairman of the board for the last seven years and former president of the Ball Brothers Co., Inc., which he and his brothers founded in 1882, when he was 20 years old.

Ball was born near Greensburg, Ohio. He was educated in public schools at Canandaigua, N.Y. The brothers launched their glass fruit jar manufacturing business on a small scale at Buffalo, N.Y., and moved it to Muncie in 1887 after fire destroyed their plant.

In 1944, Ball became president of the firm. After three years, he relinquished the presidency to his nephew, Edmund F. Ball, and became chairman of the board.

Despite his years—he would have been 93 on Nov. 5—Ball rarely missed a day at his office until his fatal illness during the past few weeks. He was the last of the five founders of the firm.

Invitation

RICHMOND, Calif. (UP)—A local plumbers union taking note Friday of goodwill tours of the United States by Russian farmers, architects, journalists and musicians, issued its own invitation "in keeping with the spirit of Geneva."

The union invited Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin to send four Soviet plumbers to California and observe the art of American pipe and plunger specialists.

No Traffic Tickets

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP) —Motorists gleefully double parked and sneaked through red lights in Oklahoma City Friday.

The police department ran out of traffic tickets.

Insult To Injury

BILLINGS, Mont. (UP) — Pet shop owner Dave Drum said it was bad enough that a raccoon named Rupert broke out of his cage and polished off a $36 meal of one parakeet, two canaries, a white rat and a dozen foot-long alligators.

But what really peeved Drum was the fact that Rupert ate the meal while wearing a muzzle.

Good Deed Policy Is One-Way Affair

SAN BENITO, Tex. (UP)—San Benito Boy Scouts found out Friday that their good deed policy apparently is a one-way affair. Some 690 persons carried home seat cushions they rented from the Scouts at a football game.

Army-Navy Game Tickets Sold Out

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UP)—It's official — the Army-Navy football game at Philadelphia next Nov. 26 is sold out.

Army and Navy athletic officials reported it is the earliest sellout since the 1950 classic.

Living Costs Near Record High Level

WASHINGTON (UP) — Higher prices for food and clothing and higher household costs and services shot the cost of living up last month to the highest level in a year.

The rise also sent the cost of living to within ½ of 1 per cent of the record high level set in October, 1953, the government reported today.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said that its index of consumer prices rose .3 of 1 per cent between Mid - August and Mid - September to 114.9 per cent of average 1947-49 prices.

This was .2 of 1 per cent higher than September, 1954, the highest level since August, 1954. It was the first month since July, 1954, that the index has been higher than the corresponding month of the previous year. The peak—set in October, 1953—was 115.4 per cent of the 1947-49 average.

She pointed out that the index has moved within a range of 1 per cent since November. 1953.

She saw "no evidence yet" of price increases at the consumer level due to the 1955 round of wage increases in basic industries.

Miss Venezuela Is Miss World

LONDON (UP)—Shapely Susana Djuim of Venezuela carried off the "Miss World" title Thursday night in a beauty contest almost devoid of the usual tantrums marking Britain's annual cheesecake derby.

The only tears came from the winner, a 19-year-old who shapes up at 34-21-34, and from France's Gisele Thierry, a 21-year-old Paris mannequin who sobbed "Eet ees ridiculous. She ees not ze winner. Eet was unfair."

Miss Thierry, pre-contest favorite among the field of 21, placed sixth, Many contestants sympathized with her, and said she should have placed higher than sixth. But most of them agreed with the judges in picking the Latin American.

One of those was Margaret Anne Haywood, Arkansas' traveling ambassador of beauty who took second honors and "thought I did pretty good" to do so.

AUTUMN BEAUTY

There is nothing quite so jocund
As a roadside flower's nod;
Or lonelier than autumn hills
Wearing Golden Rod.

There is nothing quite so plaintive
As a Bob White's evening call;
Or nothing dressed so gaily
As plaid leaves in early fall.

There is nothing quite so dainty
As soft puple thistle down;
And nothin quite so priceless
As a grass blades jeweled crown.

There is nothing quite so certain
As Autumn's silent stride;
And nothing quite so God like
As a faith that's justified.

Mildred Perl Van Horn

WHEN AUTUMN COMES

When autumn comes to us each year,
With trees all gold and red
When little shrubs hug mother earth
And fruit and leaves are shed-
It's then the earth and air change moods
And softly say His name.
Our spirits stand up straight and tall
In autumn's lovely flame.

Mildred Perl Van Horn

MY WORLD

Today it seems that you must wear
A cloak of early morning dew,
That flowers of justice, mercy too,
May be refreshed and bloom again
On the barren hill-sides of a world
Laid waste by sin and greed and war.

Margaret O. Painter

STROLLING

I went into the garden at dawn of day,
And I saw a beautiful sight;
The rising sun was a big red ball
Flooding the world with light;
The loveliest red-gold colors
Were arched like a crimson sea.
Both of his eyes were wide open,
And I saw Him smile at me!

I went into the garden at the close of day,
The sun was swinging low;
He covered his head with flying clouds
As he went to sleep where sun sets go
With night clothes on of rose and blue—
But I saw him peek through the clouds you see,
With eyes half closed and a circled mouth,
He threw a good-night kiss to me!

Margaret O. Painter

THE DRIVER DIDN'T STOP

He stood a little towhead, scarcely eight,
Beside the shallow hole so crudely dug.
He gave the furry limpness one last hug.
His childish heart had not yet learned to hate
The things that brought him sorrow, That would wait
Until the loss of this beloved pug
In lonely days ahead, would come to tug
At heartstrings taut with hunger. But the fate
Of Pug, deceased, possessed his thoughts just now.
He held in tender arms, his aching heart,
And bending laid into the grave a part
Of him. Then raised a troubled youthful brow
And fighting to hold back the gush of tears,
Displayed a manliness beyond his years.

LATE OCTOBER RAIN

Tapping with ghostly fingers,
Upon my window pane,
A withered twig reminds me
That summer's gone again,
And I listened to the steady drip
Of the chill October rain.

Over the sound of the raindrops
I hear the voice of the wind
Suffering through the treetops
While painted and moccasined
Spirits of Indian Summer,
Wild and undisciplined,
Dance to the Great White Spirit.

And now and then, like a dart
From the bow of a ghostly warrior
Stabbing at my heart,
The sharp sweet pain of the seasons
Advancing through happy years
Drives me into the night, where the raindrops
Mingle with my tears.

PINE TREE BLOSSOMS

I have seen the snow white blossoms
Which bloom on tall pine trees,
Stand every chilly winter month
Defying winter's freeze.

A pine may use it's reaching arms
To hold the presents gay
Of every little girl and boy
Upon glad Christmas Day.

In summer time with mercury high
The pine tree will not fade
And now the selfsame stretching arms
Give pleasant, cooking shade.

The pine has no closed season,
In spreading joy to all.
It's greening branches has appeal
From fall around to fall.

Gilkey Gets Into Proving Grounds

MADISON, Ind. (UP)—Authorities were eager today to hear how David Gilkey, 30, Cincinnati, managed to get into the Jefferson Proving Grounds near here and live in the midst of exploding shells since Oct. 1.

Gilkey was captured Thursday and slated for a hearing today onn charges of breaking and entering.

One mysetery was how he got into the strongly-fenced and tightly-guarded reservation, and another was hoe he escaped death from test firing. The grounds are used daily to test weapons from hand grenades to bombs.

Gilkey had been living in an out building on one of the old farms and apparently eating nuts and fruit from abandoned orchards. He was caught in the headlight glare of a patrol car and was taken after a rough fight.

Guards had sought some one on the grounds ever since a suitcase with money, clothing and religious literature was found.

Gilkey's neighbors in Cincinnati said he had planned to enter a seminary after disposing of his contracting business.

Trucking Firms To Curb Runaway Truck Accidents

WASHINGTON (UP)—The trucking industry, responding quickly to a government demand for action, moved today to curb runaway truck accidents caused by brake failures.

The American Trucking Association announced it will ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve a two-brake system for huge tractor-trailer trucks. It provides that in event of failure of the brakes on one section of a tractor-trailer, brakes on the other would continue to operate.

Runaway truck accidents have killed 10 persons and injured four others in recent weeks. Four persons were injured Thursday when a steel-laden truck careened down a hill at Kittanning, Pa., after its brakes failed, smashing 10 autos.

The day before, five persons were killed in a similar accident near Cumberland, Md., and on Oct. 4, five were killed in the same manner at West Newton, Pa.

Unemployment Law Meeting Slated In Fort Wayne

Small employers of Columbia City and surrounding communities who will become subject to the state unemployment compensation program in 1956 will have an opportunity at an open meeting at Fort Wayne, October 26, to receive first-hand instructions on their duties and rights under the program, David Walter Jr., president of the Columbia City Chamber of Commerce announced today.

Employers soon to be covered by unemployment compensation, for whose benefit the meeting had been arranged, are those that have four to seven employes. The meeting will be held in the Fort Wayne Chamber of Commerce Building, starting at 8 p.m.

Sponsored jointly by the Columbia City, and Fort Wayne and the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Indiana Employment Security Division, the meeting will be one of a series of similar regional sessions and will have as its principal discussion leader Claude Loesch, Supervisor of the Planning and Methods Section of the Employment Security Division. Jack E. Reich, executive vice-president of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce, will be the other speaker on the two-member panel of unemployment compensation experts

"The importance to affected small employers of the information that will be available at this meeting cannot be overemphasized," Reich said. "They will be subject at the outset to the payment of a payroll tax of 2.7 per cent to the state and .3 of 1 per cent to the federal government, but through their own efforts in complying with the law and in stabilizing their employment they may qualify eventually for reductions in the state tax rate to as low as 1 of 1 per cent. The information available at the meeting will be particularly valuable in pointing to the ways by which the tax cuts may be earned.

"While the program has been planned especially for employers of four to seven persons, larger employers already subject to unemployment compensation also are invited to the meeting. Similarly, tax accountants, lawyers and other interested persons are invited," Walter said.

Private, non-agricultural employers of eight or more persons, with certain minor exceptions, have been covered by unemployment compensation in Indiana since 1936. Action of the 1955 Indiana Legislature in extending the program to employers of four or more persons was necessitated by earlier action by the national Congress in extending the federal unemployment tax to such employers.

At the meeting in Fort Wayne, the State Chamber representative will explain the background of the unemployment compensation legislation and describe the operation of the experience rating plan under which tax rate reductions may be earned. Then the representative of the Indiana Employment Security Division will describe, with numerous illustrative charts, the following major phases of the unemployment insurance program: (1) Procedures and requirements in connection with the determination as to whether an individual employer is subject to the program; (2) tax and wage reporting requirements and duties, and (3) rules and duties in connection with the payment of benefits to unemployed workers.

Chop Leaves With Rotary Mower For Turf Cover

Hoosier homeowners can make extra use of rotary mowers to chop leaves on lawns this fall, Dr. W. H. Daniel, Purdue University turf grass specialist, has reported.

Experiments have shown that very large amounts of leaves can be incorporated into the turf cover, after being chopped by a rotary mower, without damage, if adequate nitrogen fertilizer is ap plied. This nitrogen fertilizer not only aids decomposition but hastens turf growth.

Most rotary mowers have screen attachments which aid in chopping leaves. In most cases a screen can be obtained from the dealer if such an attachment did not come with the mower. The extra work of removing the leaves from the lawn is, thus, reduced. However, Daniel says the homeowner should make certain the mower blades are sharp before the leaf chopping begins.

"If leaves are thick or wet, they should be scattered and permitted to dry before chopping. The mower can then do a better and easier job," Daniel advises.

Late Autumn Is Ideal Time To Test Fertility Of Fields

Hoosier farmers were advised by Purdue University agronomists that late autumn is an ideal time to check on soil fertility levels and determine fertilizer needs for next year's crop.

Accurate soil samples can be taken with ease by the landowner with tools already at hand. A soil sample is a representative part of a field which is used in chemical testing.

Soil tests determine what is needed to supply next season's crops with mineral plant foods required for optimum growth. Purdue specialists believe they have some of the best equipment available to make these tests.

Purdue's soil laboratory tests samples for acidity (pH), lime requirements, available phosphate, and available potash. Results are reported to farmers and are used to recommend the proper kind of fertilizer for a particular crop as well as the amount of lime needed.

Cost Is Nominal

Tests at Purdue are available to all Hoosier farmers at a cost of 50 cents per sample. This service charge covers cost of testing, reporting, and making recommendations If the soil is tested once each round of rotation, or every 4 years as suggested by agronomists, the cost is 1½ cents per acre a year

Thousands of Indiana farmers agree that Purdue soil tests have proved invaluable in the more profitable use of fertilizer and lime in their soil improvement programs.

After the needs of the soil are determined, farmers should buy fertilizer on the basis of the available plant food it contains. Intelligent buying of fertilizer consists of seeing that the fertilizer is labeled and then buying on the basis of the label. Any other basis is "blind buying." The label should be carefully read and farmers should avoid buying fertilizer in which the analysis is not definitely stated.

Indiana's fertilizer law is designed to protect farmers in the state by giving exact information in writing as to the plant food contents of commercial fertilizer, according to A. S. Carter, assistant state seed commissioner.

After plant nutrients needed are determined from soil tests, the selection of grain varieties is paramount. It is unusual, in spite of occasional reports to the contrary, that a new variety has not been tested at Purdue. All varieties recommended at Purdue can be certified and registered and can usually be purchased at reasonable prices.

Green Township Man Fined As An Alcoholic

Max Gross, 28, resident of Green township, Noble county, in circuit court late Thursday was declared an habitual drunkard and fined $5 and costs totaling $23.80 when he pleaded guilty to charges of public intoxication and disturbing the peace.

The offenses resulted in his arrest by Max M. Miller, Churubusco policeman, on Oct. 19. He was charged with being drunk and disorderly in the neighborhood of the Pastime Club, Churubusco, by threatening, quarreling and fighting.

In finding that Gross, a married man with three children, is an habitual drunkard, the court has made it illegal for anyone to sell, furnish or provide him with any alcoholic beverages.

A six-month penal farm sentence was suspended by the court for two years, conditioned upon Gross' good behavior. He was granted until Nov. 5 to pay his fine and court costs. The fine and sentence was predicated on the public intoxica tion charge; the charge of disturbing the peace was continued indefinitely by the court.

The charges against Gross were drawn up by Prosecutor Edward J. Meyers.

Non-Citizens Draw Veterans Pensions From Uncle Sam

WASHINGTON (UP) — Non-citizens all over the world are drawing monthly veterans pension checks from Uncle Sam, and Rep. Olin E. Teague (D-Tex) said today he may move to cut some of them off.

Teague, chairman of the House Veterans Committee, said he learned on a recent trip to Europe that in Italy alone the Veterans Administration delivers 6,000 checks each month, averaging about $70, most of them for old age and disability not due to military service.

"I have serious doubts about paying veterans pensions to people who have given up their citizenship and gone to live in Italy," Teague told reporters. Some of the recipients, he pointed out, never were Americans. All served at one time—most of them in World War II, he said—in the American military.

Teague said U.S. veterans rolls in all Europe now total about 50,000, including of course many Americans working or studying abroad.

The Veterans Administration said it delivered 152,949 checks outside the United States in August.

The VA said it has no record as to how many of the foreign recipients are Americans. The biggest single bloc of checks however goes to the Philippines, whose veterans of military duty with the American forces by law are given special consideration.

Faure's Peace Plans Appear To Be Foundering

On The Memory Of Exiled Sultan

RABAT, Morocco (UP)—Premier Edgar Faure's peace plans for Morocco appeared today to be foundering on the memory of exiled Sultan Sidi Mohammed ben Youssef.

The powerful Istiqlal (Independence) Party which demands the return of Ben Youssef announced it would not take part in the new government planned by Faure.

The Istiqlal Party announced a boycott of Faure's four-man throne council, formed to replace Ben Youssef and the less popular Sultan Sidi Mohammed ben Moulay Arafa who also was ousted by France.

The immediate effect was that Premier-designate Si Fatmi ben Slimane balked at forming a Moroccan n government which would not have the support of the Istiqlal.

The Istiqlal decision was announced Friday night only a few hours after police opened fire on a 300-strong mob of Ben Youssef supporters on the outskirts of Rabat, killing three and wounding four.

The Istiqlal challenge to the four-man throne council was coupled with a number of conditions under which it said it would join the proposed government.

First, it demanded that the government be invested with a "high legitimate authority" such as Ben Youssef, or a councnil of Oulemas (doctors of Koranic law) who would draw up a proclamation making no reference to Ben Arafa.

Second, it demanded that the government set up a negotiating body charged with working out new relations between France and the North African protectorate.

The Istiqlal also asked that the French government proclaim its respect for Moroccan sovereignty and declare its willingness to lead the protectorate along the road to independence.

Duck Season Opens

The hunting season on migratory waterfowl opened today. It remains open until Dec. 30. Shooting is limited to one-half hour before sunrise and one-half hour before sunset.

Bag limit is one woodduck and one hooded mergauser. The season is open on ducks, geese, brant and coot. There is no open season on mourning doves or swans in Indiana. Bow-and-arrow hunting or use of shotguns no larger than 10-gauge is specified by conservation regulations. All hunters must posses federal stamps on their licenses. These are obtainable at post offices.

The MacArthur Controversy Is In New Spin; General's Luck With Recent Presidents Bad

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The MacArthur controversy is in a new spin, recalling that the general's luck with recent presidents has been bad. It has not much improved even though an old - line Army buddy is in the White House now.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur knew the White House parlors for long years before he was even aware there was a dog house on the premises. At age 26 and only three years out of West Point, MacArthur began in 1906 a brief tour of duty as aide to President Theodore Roosevelt. By 1913 he was a youthful member of the Army General Staff.

President Woodrow Wilson promoted MacArthur rapidly in World War I. He was the Army's youngest major general. The Harding administration's favor was indicated when MacArthur was named superintendent of the United States Military Academy in 1919. Thats a blue ribbon job which often leads to the top.

Discovered Ike

It led to the top for MacArthur who was named chief of staff by President Herbert Hoover. He was reappointed to the post by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was in that job that MacArthur discovered a bright young officer familiarly known as Ike.

The brilliance of MacArthur's mind and military career persuaded FDR to put the entire Southwest Pacific under MacArthur's command in World War II. Thereafter the charm was broken. This weeks Defense Department publication of the so-called MacArthur papers is a minor incident in the storm which has swirled about the general in his latter years.

The papers were published in response to pressure and controversy. It is Democratic Party doctrine that MacArthur was responsible, along with the American chiefs of staff, for the Yalta arrangements which obtained the promise that the Soviet Union would come into the war against Japan. Democrats contend FDR at Yalta merely took military advice.

There is no record of any recent defense by President Eisenhower of his former military boss nor any evidence that the Defense Department was in MacArthur's corner in this public controversy.

Two Presidential Visits

The breach between Mr. Eisenhower and MacArthur seems to be complete if unacknowledged. The record shows that Mr. Eisenhower has seen MacArthur only twice since entering politics as a Republican.

MacArthur has confided to some persons that he felt that Mr. Eisenhower lacked the decisive mind necessary to high executive office. And MacArthur was a Taft man in the 1952 preconvention campaign.

Mr. Hoover was the last president who loved MacArthur for long. FDR had his troubles trying to keep MacArthur happy on short Pacific rations while the great U.S. war machine was created for Europe.

Mr. Truman fired MacArthur from his post as supreme commander in Japan.

The White House door has long been closed.

Visited Hobby Shop

Store owners in the Jefferson Park area told police that the boys visited a hobby shop and linileum and tile store early Sunday evening.

Police also noted that the hobby shop is near a tavern frequented by homosexuals and are investigating the theory that someone from the tavern might have picked up the boys.

Authorities were inclined to give the most credence to Rohlfes' story. Now an odd-job man, Rohlfes said he slept in his parked pickup truck in the forest preserve Monday night within 100 feet of the spot in the ditch where the bodies were found.

He said he left in the morning and returned later and parked briefly near the ditch with his daughter, who backed up his story, and her child.

As he left the forest, Rohlfes said, the battered car with three bare-headed men in it approached the ditch.

Four Test Pilots Die In Crashes Of U. S. Navy's Demon Jet Fighter

WASHINGTON (UP)—Four test pilots died in 11 crashes of the Navy's controversial Demon jet fighter, House members were told today. The planes later were grounded.

Earl J. Morgan, staff investigator for a government operations subcommittee on Navy plane buying, said the Navy blamed six of the crashes on engine failure and three on failure of the plane itself Two could not be attributed to either cause alone, he said.

The subcommittee which opened hearings today, wants to know why the Navy continued to accept the planes after finding them unsuitable for flight. The Navy first learned of the plane's troubles after taking delivery of the first models in December, 1953. But it continued to accept them until June of this year.

Morgan said three of the pilots killed in testing the new plane were employes of the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., builders of the jet. The fourth was a Navy pilot. He said 7 of the 11 crashes were listed by the Navy as major and the other four as of a "lesser degree" of seriousness.

He said McDonnell test pilots believed the J40 engines built for the planes by Westinghouse Electric Corp. were "unreliable and under-powered" for the weight of the plane. He said he was told by McDonnell's chief test pilot, Robert C. Little, that if the plane had not finally been grounded McDonnell pilots would have refused to make further flights in it.

All told the Navy bought 168 of the J40 engines, in a number of varying forms.

Explosion Ruins Interior Of Lake Theater, Warsaw

Hours After Crowd Leaves Building

WARSAW, Ind. (UP)—An explosion destroyed the interior of the Lake Theater early Sunday, hours after a capacity crowd of 1,000 movie patrons left the building.

No one was injured in the blast that rocked a four-block section of downtown Warsaw. Nick Mallers, theater owner, estimated the damage at up to $150,000.

Firemen said the explosion was caused by failure of controls on a hot water heating system.

A 44-foot hole was blasted in the roof by a flying chunk of metal. Iron rear doors were blown into a nearby yard and windows and partitions in front were hurled across the street.

Although the downtown section was covered by a film of oil from the blast, there was no fire.

The explosion also cracked the brick wall of an adjacent automobile sales building.

The film scheduled for showing to a matinee audience Sunday was "The Left Hand of God."

Men In Halloween Outfits Rob Woman

WINAMAC, Ind. (UP)—Two men wearing Halloween masks and costumes robbed a farmwife of $75, locked her in the bathroom and apparently set fire to the house near Francesville.

Mrs. Robert Honeic escaped the fire by crawling out through a bathroom window Saturday night, shortly after the men forced their way into her home while her husband was away.

Authorities believed the robbers were attracted by reports of the sale of the Honeic farm and believed the couple kept the sale money hidden in the house.

"Investment In America" Gift To Wittenberg

College Receives $1,500,000 From Board Member

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio — A $1,500,000 gift was given to Wittenberg College Saturday as an "investment in America."

Mr. and Mrs. Harold O. Thomas of Canton, Ohio, are the donors. The gift was designated for capital purposes.

"Our gift is an investment in America," declared Mr. Thomas, retired manufacturer and inventor, "because America in the future will be no stronger than our Christian colleges and universities. As a member of Wittenberg's board, I know that the college's program is built on vision and Christian dedication. Mrs. Thomas and I hope that our gift will help Wittenberg give even greater sevice to youth and will encourage other people to give as they are able."

The Rev. G. L. Kleespie, Columbia City, is one of the 12 Indiana members of the Wittenberg Board of Directors which will make the final decision on use of the gift.

Dr. Clarence C. Stoughton, Wittenberg's president, said today that he will recommend to the board of directors that $1,000,000 be used to increase the college's endowment fund to $4,000,000. It is expected that the remaining $500,000 will be used for a building project to be determined later.

Fast Growing Population Of United States Spurts To An Unprecedented 162,409,000

WASHINGTON (UP) — The rapidly growing population of the United States spurted another 7 per cent between 1950 and 1954 to an unprecedented 162,409,000.

The Census Bureau reported Sunday that all but seven states shared in the increase. These states were Maine, Vermont, West Virginia, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Gains by other states ranged from 1.1 per cent for Kentucky to 31 per cent for Nevada.

The Census Bureau said the nation's population rose from 150,697,361 on April 1, 1950, to about 162,409,000 on July 1, 1954.

As in earlier years the Census Bureau estimates showed a mounting population shift toward the Far West.

Alaska led all states and territories in the rate of increase. After adjustments for the heav yinflux of seasonal labor, it showed an amazing 62 per cent rise for the four years. As of July 1, 1954, the population of Alaska stood at an estimated 208,000.

On the average, the U.S. population increased 1.6 per cent a year during the four-year period.

Robert W. Burgess, Census Bureau director, said in a television interview that some experts are predicting a total U.S. population of 228,000,000 by 1975.

He also said that an agriculture census shows a decline in the number of farms and farmers from the wartime peak.

The seven states showing decreases for the 1950-1954 period lost citizens mostly because of migrations to other areas of the country. The Pacific Coast, particularly California, appeared to be the chief destination of the migrants.

Car Slips Off Jack Pinning Man Underneath

Gerald Wolfe, 26, of Fort Wayne, spent an agonizing ten minutes pinned under his father's car Saturday afternoon in the garage at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wolfe, 205 Collinwood avenue.

His left hip was dislocated, it was determined when he was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, Fort Wayne, in the Hollingsworth ambulance.

The Fort Wayne man who is an employe of the Indiana-Michigan Electric Company' service department, had come to Columbia City Saturday to put a new clutch in his father's Plymouth automobile He had pulled out the drive shaft and nearly completed his work when the jacked-up car rolled and pinned him underneath. He had blocked up the car, using old tire rims under the front wheels and blocking the rear wheels with cement blocks.

His wife was with his mother in the Wolfe home and did not hear his cries for help for eight or ten minutes. When they discovered his plight Mrs. Herbert Wolfe jacked up the front end of the automobile with a bumper jack to relieve him. However, he still could not move though a rope was thrown to him.

Neighbors tried to aid and calls were placed for the ambulance and to the police and fire departments to locate Mr Wolfe's father, a fire truck driver.

When the father arrived, shortly after 2:15 p.m., along with Paul Forrester, policeman, and the ambulance driver, Wolfe was removed from under the car. He was taken to the Fort Wayne hospital where the extend of his injuries was determined.

Driver Injured When Car And Truck Collide

Fort Wayne Man Pinned In Car For Half-Hour

Richard Gevers, 22, of 1018 Hugh street, Fort Wayne, was injured about 3:45 a.m. today on U.S. 30 three miles east of Columbia City when his 1955 Roadmaster Buick convertible crashed almost head-on with a semi-trailer

He was pinned in his car for about 30 minutes until freed by ambulance attendants and brought to the Whitley County Hospital where his injuries were determined to be a fractured left hip and abrasions about the face. Gevers is employed at the General Electric Co., Fort Wayne.

His new car was a complete loss as the result of the crash damage. Gevers, dazed and in shock, at first reported that his brother was a passenger in his car After extensive searching by a number of persons, it was reported from Fort Wayne that the brother was in Chicago .

He was removed from the wrecked car and brought to the local hospital in the Hollingsworth ambulance. State Policeman Wayne Reese investigated the accident.

The investigating officer when called from his home nearby to the accident scene near the Ronald Mossburg home, found that Gevers had apparently fallen asleep while eastbound on the highway while returning home from a visit to Chicago. He struck the tractor of a semi tractor-trailer unit which was operated by Gilbert F. Fenstermaker, 44, of Homerville, Ohio. The left front portion of the tractor bore the impact of Gevers' Buick. Damage to the tractor was appraised at $1,000.

Fenstermaker told Trooper Reese that he was westbound and saw the headlights of the approaching car. When he saw that it had crossed into the north traffic lane he blinked his tractor lights and blew his horn. Another truck operator whom Gevers had passed just prior to the accident, did likewise when he realized that the driver had fallen asleep. Fenstermaker, seeing that the approaching car was not changing direction and an accident was imminent, pulled half onto the berm.

Use of a log chain to pull the crushed Buick away from the tractor unit was necessary. A passing truck who halted due to the temporarily blocked highway, pulled the car and tractor apart to free Gevers.

Senators Return From Europe On Regular Plane

Say They Will Ask For Explanation

By JOHN W. FINNEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Two senators returned from Europe to day aboard a regularly-scheduled military air transport, and said tartly the Defense Department will have to explain statements that a special plush plane had been sent at their request to pick them up.

The senators—Democrats John L. McClellan of Arkansas and John Stennis of Mississippi — insisted they never had requested a special plane be sent to Europe for them at a cost of $10,000.

"I shall certainly expect them (the Department of Defense) to make an explanation," McClellan said.

"If there was any intent to embarrass me," he added. "I positively refuse to be embarrassed."

Stennis said "a serious mistake has been made" and "I am going to call on the Department of Defense for a statement of facts."

Special Plane Returns

The senators landed aboard a four-engine military air transport from Germany. The trip, a regularly scheduled MATS plane, is called "The Blue Plate Special" within the Air Force. The plane carried a load of 44 passengers including the senators and military personnel.

About an hour earlier the special plane which had been sent empty to Madrid to pick up the two senators returned with a load of 19 military personnel, including 4 military families, taken on at

President Sees Top Economic Advisers Today

To Get Briefing On National Economy

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower called his top economic advisers to his hospital bedside today to get a quick briefing on the national economy and perhaps an educated viewpoint of the fluctuating stock market.

Aside from the official work at hand, Mr. Eisenhower was making what his doctors called strides toward recovery from his heart attack. He stood up for the first time Sunday since he was stricken.

The standing was on a pair of bathroom scales at the side of his bed and he discovered that he had lost four pounds since his coronary thrombosis Sept. 24. He now weighs 172 1-4 pounds.

But the President wasn't able to have his daily outing on the eighth floor sun terrace at Fitzsimons Army Hospital, because the season's first snow fell.

Two Economic Consultants

His economic consultants were Dr. Gabriel Hauge, his chief assistant on economic matters, and Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

These two men, under normal circumstances, see Mr. Eisenhower in Washington every Monday. They have not talked with him since some time before his illness and naturally had an accumulation of problems to take up with him today.

It could not be determined exactly what Hauge and Burns would tell the President, but, within limits prescribed by Mr. Eisenhower's doctors, they were prepared to say that despite stock market fluctuations in recent weeks, the national economy presents a rosy picture.

The President also plans a brief conference today with Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., a member of his White House staff, and U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations. Lodge will see him after the economic advisers.

Mr. Eisenhower, it was dis-

For Forthcoming Geneva Talks With Russia

Under Shadow Of Saar Crisis

BBy WILBUR G. LANDREY
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS (UP) — The Big Three foreign ministers, under the shadow of crisis in the Saar and the Middle East, reached "complete agreement" today on much of their strategy for the forthcoming Geneva talks with Russia.

French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay announced the "complete agreement" on proposals for German unity and European security when he emerged from a meeting with U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan.

This pronouncement of renewed Western unity came in the light of these related diplomatic developments:

1. In a referendum Sunday, the Saarlanders rejected a proposed statute to "Europeanize" their tiny state which lies between France and Germany.

2. The result, a major defeat for French foreign policy, threatened to revive Franco-German animosity and renew old hatreds.

3. The government of Saar Premier Johannes Hoffmann resigned in the face of the defeat of the referendum which it had supported.

4. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French Premier Edgar Faure vowed in an exchange of telegrams to save the friendship between their two countries despite any temporary setback.

Two Senate Farm Leaders Say Price Supports Can Be Restored, But Only For Top Quality

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UP) — Two Senate farm leaders agreed today that high farm price supports can be restored, but only for top quality crops.

Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D-La) of the Senate Agriculture Committee and Sen. Milton R. Young (R-ND), second-ranking Republican member of the committee, took identical stands as the committee met here today to open a cross-country series of 18 hearings on the politically-hot farm support issue.

They suggested a program under which government props for high-quality storable crops could "flex" from 90 to perhaps 95 per cent of the "fair income" parity level, with supports for lower grade crops fixed much lower—below 75 per cent of parity.

Both senators predicted President Eisenhower would sign such a farm bill.

Young said it "would get the Republicans off the hook" in the 1956 battle for farm votes. Democratic Party leaders have seized on recent declines in farm prices as a prime issue for the 1956 campaign.

A "quality" support plan "would go a long way to stabilize farm income," which has dropped 11 per cent since 1952, according to Agriculture Department records, Young said.

"Unless we take action immediately we will be in serious trouble," he added.

Ellender said he expected many farmer witnesses at the hearing to urge a return to the rigid price prop system in effect for more than a decade until last January.

Under this plan, which was replaced by the Eisenhower administration flexible support program, the government guaranteed 90 per cent of partiy supports for virtually all varieties of wheat, cotton, rice, peanuts, and corn.

The House last summer approved a bill restoring the old 90 per cent plan, but Ellender told newsmen Sunday night "I doubt we could put it through the Senate and if we could my guess is the President would veto it."

Young said most members of the agriculture committee agree with Ellender's proposal of high supports for quality products only.

Approval Grows For United Nations

Today, as the United Nations celebrates its tenth anniversary, the number of persons expressing dissatisfaction with that organization is smaller than at any point in its history.

The Gallup Poll reports 80 per cent of the voters who were surveyed think the United Nations is doing a good job, 10 per cent answered "poor job" and 10 per cent expressed no opinion.

In June 1951, the Poll showed 54 per cent expressing satisfaction, 36 per cent dissatisfaction and 10 per cent expressing no opinion.

Wonder if that is the same 10 per cent who still haven't made up their minds?

Time To Protect Perennial Flowers

LAFAYETTE: — A Purdue University horticulturist, C. E. Hoxsie, has advised Hoosiers that it's time to protect pernnial flowers against winter damage.

Hoxsie warns that a mulch should be applied soon after the first frost. Among the most important perennials requiring a mulch in Indiana are chrysanthemum, delphinium, phlox, tulips, and roses.

All dead leaves and debris should be removed from the garden before the flower bed is covered with mulch. Hoxsie says the mulch for delphinium, phlox, and chrysanthemum should be from three to four inches deep. Unless the bed is newly established, tulips will not need a covering If newly established, the tulips should have a mulch three to four inches deep.

Roses will require a deeper mulch, preferably about eight inches. Rose bushes should be covered with a burlap sack packed with straw to afford protection from cold winter winds.

Peat moss is one of the best mulching materials but wheat or oats straw is adequate. Straw is cheaper and, in most cases, more readily available.

Leaves make a poor mulch because of their tendency to pack and choke the young sprouts, according to Hoxsie. Straw readily sheds water and can easily be removed from the bed next spring without harming the young shoots.

Backstairs At The White House

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP)—Backstairs at the temporary White House:

Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall: send ear muffs and long underwear. It started snowing in Denver Sunday. As the thermometer started down into the 20s, there was a quick and ready market for anti-freeze for the fleet of cars assigned to the White House staff.

Only man who enjoyed the snow fall at the temporary White House Sunday was Sherman Adams, the assistant to the President and former governor of New Hampshire.

He said the snow made him feel at home.

Favorite guessing game at Lowry Air Force Base where the White House offices are located is the exact date of the President's return to the East. The more educated guessers say Nov. 8. might be Nov. 9 or 10, and then only back to Washington for a day or two to break the trip.

Then to Gettysburg.

If the snowy weather in Denver continues, it might possibly speed up the President's departure.

While the snow fell here Sunday, the White House reporters, being obverse fellows, messaged Gettysburg on the weather. The report came back via Western Union that the thermometer outside the President's farm read 60.

During the afternoon, however, came another report: It was sleeting in Gettysburg.

If it keeps on snowing in Denver and sleeting in Gettysburg, it could lead to a revival of that old rumor about the President recuperating in Florida.

Jury Hearing Damage Suit For $25,000

Trial of a $25,000 damage suit against the Nickle Plate railroad was opened today in circuit court here, 26 persons reporting for possible jury service.

The suit, brought by Charles E. Hammond, Huntington county, came to the Whitley circuit court on a change of venue last April. In addition to $25,000 damages for personal injuries, the plaintiff asks $200 for loss of personal property allegedly resulting when an eastbound freight train hit his car where the rail line crosses state road No. 3.

The suit is the outgrowth of an accident which happened July 14, 1952 at about 3 p.m. According to the complaint, Hammond states he was traveling north on state road 3 in his 1949 Kaiser sedan, carefully approaching an unprotected rail crossing obscured to the west by thick vegetation, when he heard a train whistle from a locomotive only 120 feet away. He relates that he applied his brakes and hit a crossing sign but the car turned over on the railroad track and was hurled to the north side of the track with the defendant inside, when hit by the train.

Hammond charges negligence on the part of the railroad for insufficient warning of the train's approach to the busy state road 3 crossing. He seeks $25,000 for personal injuries which he charges cost him $5,000 in loss of earnings, $1,000 for medical and hospital bills.

John W. Whiteleather of Columbia City, Leas & Hines and Bowers, Feightner & Palmer, Fort Wayne, represent Hammond. Gates & Gates of this city, Spencer & Spencer and Harker & Irwin of Huntington are the attorneys for the railroad.

Quake Shakes 100-Mile Area In California

Causes 1 Death, Widespread Damage

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) —Householders and merchants began sweeping up the debris today from an earthquake that shook the San Francisco Bay area for 100 miles around, causing one death and widespread but relatively minor damage.

The worst of the two-wave quake lasted about two minutes, but it registered on seismographs for an additional 15 minutes or s.o

Seismologist Perry Byerly of the University of California said it measured 4.5 on the Richter Scale of 10, but seismographs in Southern California recorded it at 5.5.

The disastrous quake that destroyed San Francisco in 1906 measured 8.25 and the temblor that leveled Tehachapi in Southern California three years ago measured 7.5.

In Wrong Place

Byerly said Sunday night's quake was "not very big, but in the wrong place." He said it was apparently caused by a slip in the Hayward Fault along the eastern shore of San Francisco Bay.

Only last week, Byerly predicted that California was about due for a "big one" although he said the San Andreas Fault would be to blame if it takes place.

The quake apparently caused two gas main explosions in Oakland. One of them set off a fire in a house that took the life of Mrs. Ora Bell, 85. Mrs. Ruthene Aldinger, 49, jumped from a second floor window and two others escaped.

The other explosion blew a room from a house.

Supreme Court To Act On Appeal Of Puerto Ricans

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Supreme Court was scheduled to act today on the appeal of 12 Puerto Rican nationalists sentenced to prison for plotting against the U.S. government.

They were sentenced in New York Federal Court to six years imprisonment for plotting to overthrow the U.S. government in Puerto Rico. Four of the defendants also were convicted in a separate trial for shooting up the House of Representatives March 1, 1954. Five congressmen were wounded.

At its third business session of the term, the high tribunal also was slated to accept or reject cases involving:

1. The government's liability for a 1949 air crash here that killed 55 persons.
2. A challenge to the Kansas censorship law brought by producers of the movie, "The Moon Is Blue."
3. The government's effort to prosecute the International Longshoremen's Association (Ind.) for contempt of court for calling a 1954 dock strike in New York.

closed Sunday night, sent a letter to Vice President Richard M. Nixon underscoring Mr. Eisenhower's confidence in Secretary of State John Foster Dulles at the forthcoming Big Four foreign ministers' meeting in Geneva.

Face Delicate Situation

Apparently, the President felt that more plaudits for Dulles were warranted in the face of an admittedly delicate situation in Geneva.

The letter to Nixon was written last week and read to the meeting of the cabinet at the White House Friday.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, the famous Boston heart specialist and consultant on the President's case, estimated in Denver late Saturday that Mr. Eisenhower would return to Washington in the second week of November.

Present planning calls for the President to fly back to Washington about Nov. 8, but possibly as late as Nov. 12. His doctors feel it advisable for him to break his trip in Washington and spend several days at the White House before going to his farm at Gettysburg, Pa.

Laundry People Observe Certified Washable Week

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — A lot of laundry people were so busy observing "Certified Washable Week" they didn't have time to wash and iron a shirt.

The "certified" part has something to do with the American Institute of Laundering, which is in Joliet, Ill. According to Albert Johnson, of the institute, his outfit tests all kinds of things for their washability. Industry is interested.

Well, I've had some experience with a lot of the laundries which have washed, dried and ironed my duds around a good many acres of the earth.

Once back in the mid 30s I was doing a trick in Milwaukee. I had a few white shirts but what I wanted most was to keep up with the style. The style was to wear solid colors. Emerald green, dark brown and solid black.

Black was for me and I plunked down a fin and got a dime back. It was a three or four-day shirt, really. Didn't show the dirt. Then I lugged my laundry down to the hotel desk.

When I picked up the packet the bill said: "Nine dress shirts (white) 25 cents each. One work shirt (black), 15 cents."

The pride and joy, for which I had saved all those weeks working over a hot typewriter, turned out to be a dapple-gray. Dipped in straight lye-water, no doubt.

A certified seal, I suppose, would have given me cause for claim. I howled all right, but my voice of appeal went into the sub-zero Wisconsin winter air.

Anyhow, my friend Albert Johnson, says that his testing mill does a lot to keep the laundry people out of trouble. First, the quality of a fabric is tested. Also the fastness of the color, the thread and the trimmings; exposure to the light of the sun, and how much a shirt or a skirt will shrink.

If a product fails, the institute's experts hold a meeting of minds with the manufacturer before he gets his neck out that will get the laundries in a mess.

Pope May Have View Of Olympics

ROME (UP) —Pope Pius XII may be able to watch some of the events of the 1960 Olympics from the window of his summer residence. Italy's national Olympic committee is considering a suggestion to turn Lake Albano, 16 miles outside of Rome, into a mammoth "water stadium" for the Olympic Games. The lake is visible from the windows of the Pope's summer home, Castelgandolfo.

Managers Asks Change In Scoring System

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y. (UP) — George Gainford and Ernie Bracca, Sugar Ray Robinson's co-managers, will ask the Illinois State Athletic Commission to waive the 10-point must scoring system in favor of round-by-round scoring for Robinson's middleweight title bout with champion Carl (Bobo) Olson at the Chicago Stadium, Nov. 4.

"Then he downed his other beer," the bartender said, "said it was lousy and ran out the back door."

Knitted Clothes Look Their Best This Fall

BY GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK —(NEA)— If you feel like it, you can have a whole knitted wardrobe this fall. You could begin with suits, dresses and coats, go on to knitted blouses and bulky sweaters, include separate skirts and wind up with knitted fashions for late day wear.

For knitted fashions have made great progress in recent seasons. They hold their shape, they travel and they're equally good for local or foreign scenes.

They're worn the year around and they look their prettiest this fall in tweedy mixtures of black and coral, black and mink brown, charcoal and gold.

We show (left) Rosanna's knitted coat and dress in the new narrow silhouette. Dress is a sleek one-piece sheath in solid color worn with tunic-length coat in tweedy mixture of black and mink brown.

Costume suit (right) from this same designer has three pieces and is color-coordinated. Tweedy boxy jacket goes over bright cap-sleeve top. Skirt is slim and ribbed.

Clues Fizzle Out In Search For Stranglers Of Chicago Boys; Lie Detector Tests Given

CHICAGO (UP) — Lie tests were scheduled for two men today, but most clues fizzled out in the hunt for the sadistic stranglers of three young boys.

The latest persons to match their testimony against police lie detectors were a man picked up in Tennessee with scratches on his arms and shoulders and a sailor wanted in connection with reports of forest perserve sex orgies.

Police have already given scores of lie detector tests and questioned an estimated 100,000 persons in a grim manhunt for the killers of Robert Peterson, 13, John Schuessler, 13, and his 11-year-old brother, Anton.

The boys, out for an evening of fun, were probably murdered after fighting furiously for their lives a week ago Sunday night. Their nude, mutilated bodies were found stacked in a forest preserve ditch Tuesday.

One of the tests was to be given to Jack McKinney, 27, a former Chicagoan who was picked up at Tazewell, Tenn., and brought to Chicago late Sunday.

Authorities said McKinney had been here at the time of the slaying. There were scratches on his arms and shoulders and stains which could be blood on his shirt, they said.

Another lie test was ordered for Richard Ronayne, a 17-year-old sailor stationed at nearby Great Lakes Naval Training Center.

Police said Ronayne turned himself in after he learned he was being sought in connection with reports of a teen-aged "sex gang" which held orgies in Robinson Woods, where the murdered boys were found.

Two other youths, named as alleged members of the "sex gang," were cleared by lie tests Tuesday.

Police had hoped a roundup of gang members would produce results after Raymond Lar on, 20, told them he was kidnaped and forced to participate in a sex party at Robinson Woods a year ago.

Police have theorized the boys could have been killed by sex perverts, by a gang of sadists who enjoy inflicting pain, or by a teenaged gang.

But they lacked solid evidence to back up any of the theories.

Federal Mediators To Discuss Big Stockyard Strike

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Federal mediators scheduled a negotiating session today in an Indianapolis stockyards strike, while the Producers Marketing Association made other livestock facilities available to Hoosier farmers.

The walkout by CIO Packinghouse Workers against the Belt Railroad and Stock Yards Co. began at midnight Sunday over a wage dispute. However, the yards had been closed since Friday noon in order to clear the pens in preparation for the strike.

Meanwhile, the PMA said livestock will be received from farmers at 10 branches—Terre Haute, Centerville, Amboy, Columbus, Columbia City, Lafayette, Logansport, Mentone, Montpelier and Seymour.

Increased marketing activity also is expected at the Evansville, Cincinnati, Chicago and Louisville yards. Kingan, Inc., meat packers, said it has set up buying stations at Indianapolis, Crawfordsville, Bunker Hill, Warsaw, Monon, Rensselaer and Effner.

Arthur C. Ingles of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation service called a meeting at his office between union and management representatives for 2 p.m. today.

Both the company and the union agreed on a 14-cent hourly wage increase, but the firm sought to deduct 3 cents for a medical insurance program. The union rejected the company medical deduction plan.

Craig Says We Must Prepare To Do Sensible Thing

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Governor Craig said today if Hoosiers must choose between higher taxes and federal aid to education, they should "be prepared to do the sensible and realistic thing" and pay more taxes.

Craig spoke at the opening session of the Indiana White House Conference on Education.

He said federal aid not only means more taxes but also threatens federal control "over what our children are taught."

The governor cautioned opponents of federal aid to remember they are obliged to support proposals for new forms of state and local financial support for schools.

Craig said today's educational problems may be serious but they will "seem trifling" when compared with those of the next decade as the "World War II babies come of marriage age."

The conference was called for 700 persons in what educational leaders said was the biggest "grass roots" drive in Indiana history toward better education.

Voters Show Approval For Premier Diem

As They Sweep Out "Emperor" Bao Dai

SAIGON, Indochina (UP)—South Viet Nam Premier Ngo Dinh Diem polled 99 per cent of the votes in Saigon and its suburbs in the referendum that swept out "emperor" Bao Dai, the government reported today.

Partial results from the provinces also showed a landslide victory for Diem but full figures were not yet available.

The voting Sunday was on whether the U.S.-backed premier should replace the absentee "emperor" as chief of state. Bao Dai has not been in Indochina in years although he was chosen originally by France in hopes he could rally the Communist-threatened nation.

Diem was expetted to be installed as new chief of state in a ceremony Wednesday noon. At the same time the Republic of South Viet Nam is to be officially proclaimed with a cannonade of 23 guns here in Saigon.

An information office estimated that Diem would poll as many as 5 per cent of the five million votes cast throughout the country. Final official returns are expected Tuesday night.

In the voting, voters dropped either green-tinted pictures of the former emperor of Annam into the ballot bor or a pink tinted picture of Diem. In most Saigon polling places the ground was littered with Bao Dai posters.

Officials said of the 593,354 ballots cast in Saigon, Bao Dai received only 5,031 votes.

Green is considered an unlucky color in Indochina and red a lucky color.

Observers agreed the voting was free. The voters clipped the picture of their choice in private and sealed it in an opaque envelope before dropping it in the ballot box.

Big Three

5. Israeli Premier and Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett arrived in Paris to confer with the foreign ministers and with his key ambassadors from Washington, Moscow, London, Paris and Rome about mounting Middle East tension.

6. Italian officials and the pro-government press hailed a week-end visit to Rome by Dulles as insuring a more important position for Italy in the Western alliance. Dulles was reported to have promised to consult Italy on major issues, continue the fight for Italian admission to the United Nations, but to have declined to raise Italy and Germany to the same status as Britain and France in western councils.

Though it loomed largely in the background, the ministers did not tackle the thorny Saar issue this morning.

They may bring it up this afternoon when the German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano joins the group.

Senators

Frankfort, Germany.

The Air Force set off a storm of controversy last week when it disclosed it was sending two 66-passenger planes on special flights to bring Stennis, McClellan, Sen. Dennis Chavez (D-NM) and their wives home from Europe. The three senators, members of the Senate Appropriations Committee, had been inspecting U.S. defense aid efforts in Europe.

Cost of the special flights was estimated at $20,000.

The senators quickly told newsmen that the expensive flights were not their ideas. Stennis and McClellan made it clear they wanted no part of them.

Sen. and Mrs. Chavez are not scheduled to leave Paris until Nov. 3, and the Air Force expects to line up a pay load both ways so their plane will not be dispatched for their special use.

The Air Force, anxious to calm the angry senators, issued a "clarifying" statement Saturday that a mixup on arrangements — and not senatorial requests — was the real reason it ordered the special flights. The Air Force explained that it knew the senators had to leave for the United States on Oct. 23 and Nov. 3 and that it failed to get regular planes in the area.

When the senators couldn't change their departure dates, the Air Force said, it then was forced to hurry special equipment over to Europe from this country.

Fort Wayne Man Held In Shotgun Death Of Woman

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UP)—Arthur David Murray, 33, Fort Wayne, was held under $25,000 bond today in connection with the shotgun death of a woman companion.

Authorities said Murray admitted he and the victim, Mrs. Emma Mae Johnson, 21, Fort Wayne, argued after visiting taverns Friday night. Murray said they struggled for a shotgun at the woman's home and the gun fired, according to police.

Michigan Facing Perils Ahead In Contrast To Rosy Prospects For Maryland, Oklahoma

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer

Michigan, its hold on the No. 1 national ranking among college football teams shaken by a narrow-squak victory over Minnesota, found today that a schedule fraught with peril lies just ahead—in contrast to the rosy prospects facing Maryland and Oklahoma.

The Wolverines were glad to settle for a 14-13 decision over Minnesota, thanks to an extra - point conversion by Jimmy Van Pelt.

But now they must face Iowa's revenge-bent Hawkeyes next Saturday, a team knocked out of the Big Ten running by Michigan last year and anxious to pay that back with interest. If the Wolverines survive this threat, they must still hurdle Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio State to achieve an unbeaten season.

Not so for Maryland, the nation's No. 2 team, or for third - ranked Oklahoma.

Not only did both of these mighty elevens win impressively on Saturday — Maryland showing no mercy in a 34-13 victory over Syracuse and Oklahoma showing dazzling power in coming from behind to crush Colorado, 56-21 — but their remaining schedules hold no terrors to compare with Michigan's. Both teams now are favored to go the rest of the way unbeaten.

Duke Record Marred

The only team among the nation's "top ten" to lose this weekend was seventh-ranked Duke. The Blue Devils were jolted into seven fumbles as they bowed to Pittsburgh, 26-7—Pitt's revenge for that famous 1938 defeat pinned on a Pitt powerhouse by a Duke team led by Eric Tipton.

Among the other major upset victims of the weekend were Yale, whipped 7-0 by Colgate on Frank Nardulli's fourth - period touchdown; Wisconsin, beaten, 26-16, by Ohio State; and Boston College, a 13-point favorite forced to settle for a 13-13 tie against Marquette on Friday night.

Yale, Colorado, Duke, Boston College, and San Jose State (which lost to College of the Pacific, 14-7) were knocked from the list of major unbeaten teams. Left are only six teams — Maryland, Oklahoma, Michigan, West Virginia, Holy Cross, and Navy.

Navy must risk that record this week against Notre Dame, a team that rebounded from its loss to Michigan State to beat Purdue impressively, 22-7.

Among other leading individual stars this weekend were:

In Duke's Backfield

John Paluck, Pitt's 220 - pound end who played in Duke's backfield all day to disrupt Blue Devil plays and also set up a touchdown with a brilliant pass catch; Roy Fondren of Texas, who gained 145 yards in 11 carries, including a 50 - yard touchdown sweep, to lead a 32-14 win over Rice; Don McIlhenny of SMU, who scored four touchdowns in a 33-14 victory over Kansas; Bill Beagle of Dartmouth, the nation's leading passer, who tossed one TD pass and ran for another score in 14-0 win over Harvard; Jack Pardee of Texas A&M, who scored two touchdowns and ground out 81 yards rushing in 19-7 win over Baylor; Earl Morrall of Michigan State, who passed to two touchdowns in 21-7 win over Illinois; soph Gene Newton of Tulane, who ran 49 yards for one touchdown and eight for another in 14-0 win over Georgia; Bobby Moss of West Virginia, who ran to two touchdowns in 21-7 victory over Penn State; Jack Stephans of Holy Cross, who passed for one TD and ran for another in 20-12 win over Boston University; Bill Tarr, who carried the ball 27 times with an average gain of 4.3 yards to lead underdog Stanford to a 7-7 tie of Washington; and Jon Arnett of Southern California, who ran to three touchdowns in a 33-6 victory over California.

Robinson Seeks To Beat Old Adage With Fury Of Fists

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y. (UP) —There is a saying in the fight world that "they never come back" but a trim, sleek Sugar Ray Robinson promised today to beat that adage with the old-time fury of his fists.

Once rated pound for pound as one of the greatest fighters in ring history, Robinson hung them up for two years. Now, with six tune-up bouts behind him, he'll attempt to win back the middleweight crown from Bobo Olson at Chicago Nov. 4.

Apparently as fit as ever, the dancing dynamiter ignores the three to one odds against him by hinting broadly that he'll smash Olson into oblivion.

"I can't promise I'll knock him out but I'll be trying," Robinson says with obvious determination. "But now I know I can go the distance, so I'm confident of victory either way."

Went All The Way

That, he'll tell you, is why five of his tuneup bouts went all the way to his decision.

"I had to see if I could go 10 rounds," he explains. "I know I can, and even go 15, and my reflexes and my punch are as good as ever."

There were those who told Robinson to hang them up when, after winning from Joe Rindone in January, he lost his second bout to Tiger Jones.

After that, though, Robinson won from Johnny Lombardo, scored a three-round technical knockout over Ted Olla and since has dusted off Garth Panter and, in a surprising win at San Francisco, won from rugged Rocky Castellani.

"I wasn't shooting for knockouts in those bouts," he insists. "I was testing myself. Now I'm satisfied that I'm ready."

Will Have No Excuse

If he isn't, and makes a poor fight, it will be added testimony to support the contention that "they never come back." And Robinson will have no excuse.

Robinson believes that Olson, who scaled 170 for his recent kayo by Archie Moore, is having weight-making troubles to get down to the 160-pound limit.

"I'm not underestimating Olson," he says, "because he's a fighter who really keeps busy. But he's not a knockout puncher."

Sugar Ray has had 136 winning bouts and lost only four. Of his victories, 88 were by knockouts.

Satisfied that his legs are all right, he is concentrating on the heavy bag. That's the one Joe Lou is always called the "knockout sharpener." Sugar Ray obviously plans to go for the whole ball of wax.

Cleveland Browns Win 41-10 Over Green Bay Packers

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press Sports Writer

Paul Brown and Otto Graham today credited savage play by the Cleveland Browns' defensive line with the 41-10 victory over the Green Bay Packers that affected the leadership in both divisions of the National Football League.

The key triumph Sunday at Cleveland enabled the champion Browns to remain tied with the surprising Pittsburgh Steelers for the Eastern Division lead. It also helped the Los Angeles Rams take undisputed first place in the Western Division. The Browns, Steelers and Rams have 4-1 records.

Los Angeles, Green Bay and the Baltimore Colts started the day tied for the Western lead. The Rams whipped the Detroit Lions, 24-13, and took the undisputed lead when Green Bay lost and the Washington Redskins upset Baltimore, 14-13. Green Bay and Baltimore now are second in the West with 3-2 marks.

Pittsburgh The Underdog

Pittsburg was an underdog for the fifth straight time but edged the New York Giants, 19-17. In the other games, the Chicago Bears upset the San Francisco Forty-Niners, 34-23, and the Chicago Cardinals tied the Philadelphia Eagles, 24-24.

Coach Brown and quarterback Graham praised their team's defensive line after it shackled Packer passer Tobin Rote before 51,842 Cleveland fans celebrating the champions' 10th anniversary in professional football.

Al Carmichael ran a second quarter kickoff 100 yards for the longest scoring run of the season and Fred Cone kicked a 27 -yard field goal for the Packer points.

Touchdowns by Graham, Fred Morrison and Maurice Basset plus 33 and 34 yard field goals by Lou Groza erased Green Bay's first and second quarter leads and gave Cleveland a 27-10 margin. George Ratterman replaced Graham in the last three minutes and threw TD passes to Dub Jones and Pete Brewster to make it a rout.

Two TD Passes

Norm Van Brocklin's 47 - yard pass to Elroy Hirsch and rookie Ron Waller's 21-yard run gave the Rams two fourth quarter TDs and Detroit its fifth defeat before 68,790 Los Angeles fans. Coach Sid Gillman said he was pleased with his Rams because their first string backfield of Dan Towler, Tank Younger and Skeet Quinlan is "still just a rumor" because of injuries.

A crowd of 27,365 New Yorkers saw Lynn Chandnois score the winning TD for the Steelers on a five-yard end run. Quarterback Ed Brown scored twice and threw a scoring pass to Bill McColl to lead the Bears to victory before 58,201 Forty-Niner rooters.

Quarterback Eddie Lebaron scored both Redskins TDs to ruin the day for 51,387 — Baltimore's largest pro football crowd. Billy Mann's scoring heavy to Don Stonesifer in the final minutes enabled the Cardinals to tie the Eagles before 24,620 Chicago spectators.

Reds And Bisons Just Behind Cleveland

By UNITED PRESS

The Providence Reds and Buffalo Bisons, by virtue of resounding victories Sunday, were poised only one point back of the Cleveland Barons today in the American Hockey League race

The Reds, paced by Jimmy Bartlett and Zellio Toppazzini, who each scored a pair of goals, downed the Springfield Indians, 5-0, while the Bisons, led by Charlie Blair, who had two goals and one assist, defeated the Hershey Bears, 7-3. There were no other games scheduled.

Providence and Buffalo are deadlocked for second with identical 3-3-1 records and seven points, while the Barons have won four of six starts and have eight points. Pittsburgh and Springfield are tied for the next spot, each with six points, while Hershey is in the cellar, six points back of the first-place Barons

Jane Withers Weds

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Actress Jane Withers and Kenneth Errair, one of the singing Four Freshmen, were married Sunday on an 85-foot yacht anchored off Newport Beach.

The former child star divorced her first husband, Texas oilman William Paul Moss Jr. in July, 1954. She has three children. It was the first marriage for Errair, of Detroit, Mich.

Plymouth Coach Is Resigning

PLYMOUTH, Ind. (UP) —Art Thomas, coach of the Plymouth High School football team which last week became the first Indiana school to finish a season unbeaten, announced today his resignation after 14 years at the school.

Thomas said he made the decision because "20 years of football is enough for any man." He will remain as a physical education instructor and assistant coach.

Last Friday, Thomas' Plymouth Rockies closed out their season by edging Huntington 7-0 for their eighth straight victory and the Central Conference championship.

In his 14 years at Plymouth, Thomas had a record of 77 wins, 29 losses and 2 ties.

Hungarian Star Puts Two World Records In Book

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UP) — Sandor Iharos of Hungary, now the most brilliant distance runner in the world, put two new world records in the book today—for 5,000 meters and three miles—to give him a grand total of five records.

Ignoring the fact that the Budapest track was "heavy" because of rain on Saturday, Iharos highlighted the Hungarian National Track Championships Sunday with a brilliant race in which he posted a 13:40.6 clocking for 5,000 meters and 13:14.2 for three miles.

In addition, the Hungarian ace owns the world records for 1,500 meters, 3,000 meters, and two miles.

In Sunday's race, Iharos eclipsed the 5,000 meter record of 13:46.8, set by Vladimir Kucs of Russia on Sept. 18 at Belgrade, and the three-mile record of 13:23.2 held by Chris Chataway of Great Britain. In each case, Iharos was reclaiming a record he had previously held.

In London, Chataway commented, "Iharos must start as the hot favorite for the Olympic 1,500 meters or 5,000 meters, whichever he chooses to run. He is certainly a great athlete—the most outstanding since Czechoslovakia's Emil Zatopek was at his best."

Lightburn Favored 13-5 Over Algerian

NEW YORK (UP) — Ludwig Lightburn, a panther-like young lightweight from British Honduras, is favored at 13-5 to beat tough Hoacine Khalfi of Algeria tonight in their TV 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena.

Lightburn, 21, is favored because of his speed, power and stamina; but some who saw Khalfi upset featherweight champion Sandy Saddler in his only previous St. Nick's appearance figure he may register another surprise.

Lightburn's 34-6-0 record includes 13 kayoes. Khalfi's 41-10-5 list also includes 13 kayoes. Neither has been stopped.

New York Rangers Defeat Black Hawks

Far from satisfied even though the New York Rangers are off to one of their finest starts in National Hockey League history, Coach Phil Watson indicated he will send goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley to the minors and bring another netminder up in his place

The Rangers registered their fourth victory and moved into a tie for second place by beating the Chicago Black Hawks, 5-4, Sunday night in the only league game scheduled but Watson was far from pleased with Worsley's performance even though he made 33 saves

"We just can't give up four or five goals a game and expect to win," Watson said. "We'll probably give Worlsey a rest."

It was expected that Worsley would be sent to Providence of the American Hockey League and that Johnny Bower, now playing goal for Providence, would be called up to New York.

Little Wally Hergesheimer's second goal of the game at 12:40 of the final period proved to be the winning marker after Ron Murphy tied the score earlier in the session. Danny Lewicki and Dave Creichton also scored for the Rangers while ex-Ranger Nick Mickoski netted a pair of goals for Chicago. Jack McIntyre and Tony Leswick accounted for the Hawks' other two goals.

Clark Griffith Makes Improvement During The Night

WASHINGTON (UP) — Clark Griffith, 85-year-old owner of the Washington baseball club, rallied today from a massive stomach hemorrhage, and doctors said his chances of survival are "somewhat brighter."

Hospital officials who had despaired of Griffith's chances Sunday night were cautiously optimistic after the famed "old fox" made "some improvement" during the night.

Griffith, co-founder of the American League and baseball's oldest active executive, has retained consciousness and has had some sedative during the critical period of his illness since Saturday night.

Hi physician, Dr. George Resta, had said Sunday night that Griffith was "very low" and that his chances were "just fair."

This morning, however, Resta reported that "the outlook is somewhat brighter" after Griffith experienced "some improvement during the night."

Griffith, baseball's "good will" ambassador and one of the games shrewdest graders, entered Georgetown Hospital last Wednesday for treatment of neuritis. He suffered the stomach hemorrhage Saturday night.

The baseball career of the "old fax" covered 69 yards as a player, manager and owner. He was the personal friend of every president since 1912 when he started the custom of having the chief executive throw out the ceremonial "first ball" of the season.

Established Mound Record

Griffith broke into professional baseball at Bloomington, Ill., at the age of 17 and went on to establish a pitching record that ranks him among the top 12 hurlers of all time.

In 17 full seasons of major league pitching, starting in 1891, he won 237 games and lost 149. He hit his peak in 1885 when he introduced the "screwball" to pitching.

Griffith was pitching for the old Chicago Nationals when a group of insurgents left to form the American League. He was one of the leaders and joined the New York Highlanders — now the Yankees—as manager.

In 1921, he purchased the Washington club of the American League — known as the Nationals. As president of the Nats, he displayed the same craftiness that had distinguished him as a pitcher.

A soft-spoken man with twinkling eyes, Griffith probably developed and sold more baseball talent for more money than anyone else —with the possible exception of Connie Mack of th eold Philadelphia Athletics and Branch Rickey. He also served at the helm of one baseball club longer than any man except Mack.

Won Three Pennants

With Griffith at the helm, the Nationals won American League pennants in 1924, 1925 and 1933. The club defeated the New York Giants for the world championship in 1924.

He had no children of his own. But he adopted seven orphaned children of relatives and treated them as his own.

Calvin Griffith, one of the adopted children, is executive vice president of the Nats, and is his father's heir apparent as head of the club. The Griffith family owns 51 per cent of the club.

Griffith's "biggest deal" was when he sold his son-in-law, Joe Cronin, to the Boston Red Sox in 1934 for $250,000 cash and one player.

Benson Says He Has No Authority To Launch Program

WASHINGTON (UP) — Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson told a Republican congressman Sunday that he does not have authority to launch an emergency program of price controls on items farmers must buy.

Rep. Phil Weaver (R-Neb) asked Benson last week to put the emergency program into effect.

After receiving Benson's reply, Weaver said he will consult Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. about the legal question. If necessary, Weaver said he will introduce legislation "to put a helpful farm program into effect."

Weaver said farmers are caught in a squeeze caused by dropping farm prices and higher prices of things they must buy. He suggested that prices on essential items for farming be pegged "at a previous date when the parity rate was reasonably favorable to farmers."

In a telegram replying to Weaver's request, Benson said "the first action of the administration was to abolish controls, an action which was widely applauded." The telegram was made public by Weaver.

Benson said Weaver's proposal "would require their (controls) revival and the restoration of an agency patterned after OPA. Such an action is not within my authority and would not be within the province of the Department of Agriculture"

Prepare Lawn Now For Winter

LAFAYETTE: — Purdue University's turf grass specialist, Dr. W. H. Daniel, today listed advice for Hoosier homeowners to follow in the preparation of their lawns for winter.

Daniel reported that many lawnowners have observed dead areas in their lawns even though the neighbors' yards may appear vigorous with bluegrass growth after the recent rains.

The hot humid period from early July through late August caused the most disease in turf grass ever recorded in the Midwest, Daniel said. Some homeowners have already applied a good nitrogen fertilizer to encourage new regrowth where grass died. However, grass can still respond in deeper color, added vigor, and increased density if nitrogen is applied anytime during the fall.

If available, a pelleted fertilizer can be easily spread by hand to dry turf without watering. Most turf fertilizers have specific recommendations on the container for application to lawns.

A reseeding of the thin spots with a mixed lawn grass seed will help make the lawn more uniform. Daniel suggests to spread the seed lightly over the thin area and use a rake to get the seed into contact with the moist soil. Grass loosened by the rake should be left to serve as a mulch.

Excess crabgrass should be removed before winter. Daniel says a quick easy removal process is to clip the grass with the lawnmower blade set as low as possible. The cut grass then should be swept with a flexible broom and cut again. This removes the dead grass and crabgrass and at the same time provides room for fall growth of the good bluegrass.

With the late fall in Indiana this year, Indiana homeowners will be wise to mow their lawns at regular heights as long as the grass continues to grow. "This will make leaf removal easier and reduce the grass matting and dying over the winter," Daniel concludes.

Lombardo's Tempo VII Wins Governor's Cup

MADISON, Ind. (UP) — Guy Lombardo's Tempo VII won the governor's trophy in the Madison Regatta Sunday crossing the finish line two feet ahead of Gale V. Danny Foster of Detroit drove Tempo VII in the windup in the $50,000 Gold Cup program for the season.

EVANSVILLE (UP)—A coroner's report today listed the rifle death of Maurice Gatewood, Jr., 23, as accidental.

Gatewood was shot Friday night when his brother, David, 18, mistook him for a prowler as the older brother tried to enter his own home.

There Are Other Diseases Which Are Greater Killers, Cripplers Of Children Than Polio

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — This disease is a far greater killer of children than polio.

This one is a worse crippler. These leave vastly more Americans permanently disabled.

With polio they belong to a malignant group of eight disease categories which specialize not merely in killing but also in crippling or disabling.

The malignant eight are heart disease, cancer, mental illness, neurological and sensory disorders, arthritis and rheumatism, diabetes, tuberculosis, and poliomyelitis.

To push research in the cause and cure of these and all other diseases, a check disclosed today, the United States is spending a little more than 200 million dollars a year through government and private agencies.

Because polio is primarily a scourge of children, it has received far more public attention than the others.

Here from government and private reports, are some facts about the malignant eight:

Heart Disease: No. 1 cause of death in America, kills around 800,000 a year. Is the leading cause of death of children. Currently afflicts perhaps 16 million persons. Cost: Nearly 700,000 man-hours of work or 2¼ billion dollars a year in production. The American Heart Assn. in 1949-53 spent 6½ million dollars on heart research. Greatest lesson learned in recent years: Something can be done about heart disease.

Cancer: No. 2 cause of death (close to 230,000 a year). Each year doctors hear of some 530,000 new cases. Of the present population, about 5,000,000 will get cancer and about 25,000,000 will die of it. Countrywide annual budget for cancer research: Upwards of 15 million dollars. Annual productivity loss due to cancer: 12 billion dollars. Item of hope: Half of all cancers could be cured if detected early enough.

Mental Illness: Half of the country's 1,450,000 hospital beds are occupied by mental patients. Some 2,000,000 americans are mentally subnormal. The American Psychiatric Assn. says the $6,000,000 a year spent on mental illness research should be increased to $13,000,000 or even $30,000,00. While the population was growing 14 per cent since 1939 the number of mental patients was increasing 17 per cent. Annual costs of mental patients in public institutions: $1,100,000,000. Item of cheer: Progress is being made as indicated by fact 60 per cent of schizophnenia cases admitted to state hospitals are released in one year.

Neurological and Sensory Disorders: These include more than 200 separate maladies such as cerebral palsy, epilepsy, multiple sclerosis, muscular dystrophy, paraplegia, blindness, deafness, and cerebral vascular disease (stroke). More than 20,000,000 victims in the United States. Half of them suffer from "gravely disabling conditions." No. 3 among causes of death (about 165,000 a year). The primary cause of permanent crippling. For most of these diseases no cure, no prevention, and no treatment other than palliative are known. Research on this group of diseases over the last decade has averaged about 2 million dollars a year. The National Institute of Neurological Diseases thinks the figure should be at least 18 million dollars a year.

Arthritis and Rheumatic Diseases: No. 1 crippler among chronic diseases as distinguished from other causes. Afflicts some 11,000,000 perons, more than 1,000,000 of whom are permanently disabled. Causes of most maladies in this category unknown. More prevalent than cancer, heart disease, tuberculosis, and diabetes combined. More than 320,000 made unemployable each year. Cost to nation: more than $700,000,000 a year. Research expenditures: Grew in five years from $45,000 annually to $1,100,000 but still only 10 cents per patient. Advances: Impressive in past five years, particularly in field of hormone treatments.

Diabetes: More than 2,000,000 afflicted; 60,000 new cases a year. This disease, which can cause blindness, is controllable to some extent by insulin and diet. The great need: More research. The economic loss: Nearly 19,500,000 man-hours a year.

Tuberculosis: Deaths reduce 59 per cent 1940 to 1952. But still No. 7 among causes of death. Some 25,000 TB patients die each year, among them 1,200 children under 15. At least 1,200,000 current cases. Production loss: $500,000,000 a year. Loss in future production caused by deaths: $1,000,000. Cash outlays by federal and other agencies: $620,000,000 a year.

Poliomyelitis: Leading cause of death of children among communicable diseases. Preeminently a crippler, however. 1938-52 case total: 302,677; deaths: 20,916. Once crippled, no cure. Of all cases 50 per cent recover completely, 30 per cent have no disabling aftereffects, 14 per cent are severely paralyzed, and 6 per cent may die. Expenditures on reesearch (as distinguished from larger amounts for care and treatment): About 20 million dollars a year. Cost in lost production, blighted lives, and parental anguish: Incalculable.

These are the great disablers. The hope of science is to make polio, at least, as rare as once-dreaded smallpox has become.

State To Assume Control Of Frances Slocum Cemetery

The State Department of Conservation will assume control and upkeep of the Bondy or Frances Slocum cemetery, where Frances Slocum of early Indian hisotry fame is buried. The cemetery is located in Miami county near the Mississinewa river, a short distance off the Frances Slocum trail, which parallels the river between Peru and Marion. Efforts to have the state assume responsibility for the cemetery because of its historical importance were made by Howard E. Sundheimer, the Wabash County Historical Society, and other individuals in Wabash and county area. Clarence Godfroy, chief of the Miami descendants in this area, also aided in the effort.

The half acre tract was set aside in the will of Jane Bondy February 15, 1877. However it had been used as a burial site by the Indians prior to then. Frances Slocum the "White Indian of the Miamis" who was stolen as a small child from her home in Pennsylvania, and adopted into the Indian tribe, lived in the vicinity of the cemetery site, and when she died was buried in the cemteery. A monument to her memory was erected in 1900, and thousands have visited the cemetery because of its historical significance.

Balance Sheet Of Good And Bad News For The Week

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

The Week's Good and Bad News on the International Balance Sheet:

The Good

1. Spectacled, mild - mannered Premier Edgar Faure won a notable victory in the French National Assembly. He swung right wing deputies to his side after a hard fight and was given a 308 - 254 vote of confidence. The vote came on Faure's plan for increased home rule in Algeria. But it really was a personal victory over the turbulent assembly, which sets up premiers only to knock them down. Faure's victory strengthens France in world affairs and strengthens the West in its relations with the East. Now Faure is considering the advisability of calling an early parliamentary election.

2. The Iranian Senate voted 38 to 4 for ratification of the decision of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi and Premier Hussein Ala to join the Turkish - Iraqi-Pakistan-British defense alliance. Ala handed the Soviet ambassador in Tehran a memorandum rejecting the Russian complaint that the treaty is aggressive.

3. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said that he and President Eisenhower share "measured hope" that the Big Four foreign ministers conference which opens in Geneva, Switzerland, next Thursday may prove successful. Dulles spoke after talking to the President in Denver. He said he hoped for concrete progress toward German unification.

The Bad

1. Russia's meddling in the Palestine situation, marked by its arranging for Communist Czechoslovakia to sell arms to Egypt, continued to worry Western governments. Dulles announced at a press conference in Washington that he expects to talk over the situation with Soviet Foreign Minister Wyacheslav M. Molotov at the Geneva conference. Some factions in Israel talked of a "preventive war" against Egypt. It was reported that Syria and Saudi Arabia, fellow members with Egypt of the Arab bloc, were negotiating secretly for Czechoslovak weapons.

2. There was growing fear in Western Europe that people of the Saar coal region might reject, in a referendum to be held Sunday, a proposal that they accept "Europeanized" status pending the conclusion of a final German peace treaty. A former German Nazi storm trooper is leading the fight for rejection. French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay gave Saarlanders an earnest warning that rejection of the proposed Saar statute will make the area a continued cause of discord between France and Western Germany.

3. Negotiations between United States and Chinese Communist envoys in Geneva for the release of American civilians held by the Reds continued to drag. The negotiations now have been adjourned until next Thursday when the Big Four conference starts. The Reds are trying to broaden the scope of the negotiations. They want to put them in the hands of Secretary Dulles and Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai. They hope to force the United States to relax its trade embargo and to prepare the way for some kind of recognition of the Peiping regime.

Mercury Falls Nearly 40 Degrees

Brisk winds blew the season's coldest weather into Indiana today with chilly rain as the mercury fell nearly 40 degrees from summer time readings.

After reaching highs ranging from 75 at Fort Wayne to 82 at Evansville, temperatures dropped steadily to the low 40s throughout the state before dawn. That was a fall of 35 to 40 degrees in scarcely 12 hours.

Strong winds stripped many brightcolored leaves from the new autumn foliage and threatened to shorten the length of the brilliant display in Hoosier woodlands.

High temperatures today were expected to range from 45 to 50, making it the coldest day of the season.

Lows tonight will range from 30 to 38 with some frost and highs Tuesday will run from 50 to 55.

The rain which came early today after generally fair weather for Sunday sightseers ranging from .16 of an inch at Evansville to .52 of an inch at Fort Wayne by dawn. Showers were expected to end today. Tuesday will be fair and cool and Wednesday will be partly cloudy and warmer.

Wintry Weather Sweeps Midsection Of United States

By UNITED PRESS

The first wintry weather of the season swept across the nation's midsection today, complete with zero temperatures and 4-inch snowfalls.

The huge mass of cold Canadian air drove from the Dakotas deep into the Texas Panhandle. Indian summer weather gave way to below freezing temperatures almost in a twinkling over vast areas.

At Fraser, Colo., the first zero reading of the season was registered early this morning. Leadville, Colo., had 4 inches of snow, Denver almost 3, and International Falls, Minn., 1.

More snow fell in parts of Wyoming, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin. A hard freeze was predicted for areas in Iowa, Kansas, and Nebraska, and it was below freezing from the western Plains to the Texas Panhandle and eastward to the upper Mississippi and central Missouri valleys.

The cold struck with dramatic suddenness, knocking 13 degrees off the mercury in one hour at Dallas, Tex. At Chicago, the temperature zoomed to a balmy 78 late Sunday, only to skid almost 40 degrees to 40 by early today.

Saar Rejects French Plan By Vote Of 2-1

In Effect Amounts To Support For Giving Saar To Germany Again

SAARBRUCKEN (UP — A rabble-rousing former Nazi storm trooper proclaimed "victory for Germany" today in a landslide conquest at the polls reminiscent of the plebiscite that won the Saar for Hitler 20 years ago.

The Saar, by a vote of more than 2 to 1, rejected a French plan to give this coal and iron-rich territory a "European" statute. And in effect the outcome amounted to support for handing the Saar to Germany once again.

The result also was a blow to the European unity policy the United States has pushed in Europe since World War II.

The vote spelled a new crisis in the long-smouldering dispute between France and Germany over the territory snuggled between their borders. There was open dismay in Paris. In Bonn, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer—who had supported the statute—called an emergency cabinet meeting.

The referendum was a dramatic triumph for the pro-Germans led by Dr. Heinrich Schneider, a former Nazi officer who whipped German nationalism to a white hot pitch. It was such a bitter defeat for pro-French Premier Johannes Hoffmann that he resigned soon after midnight today when the results became known.

It was an immense turnout—96.72 of the Saar's 662,849 registered voters went to the polls.

The result was 423,434 votes of 67.71 per cent against the French and West German approved statute to Europeanize the Saar, and 201,973 or 32.29 per cent for the statute.

The vote does not change the status of the Saar but it was a resounding slap in the face for France which has run the 900-square - mile industrial territory since 1945 and bound its economy tightly to that of France.

It also was a stinging defeat for Adenauer who gave his backing to the defeated statute which would have put the Saar under the administration of the Western European Union nations pending the writing of a final German treaty.

Contined from page one

He said it would win the backing even of senators who have supported the administration's flexible plan.

More than 75 per cent of the farmers in the Minnesota-Dakota area which the committee will tour this week are opposed to the administration program, Young said. A recent Gallup poll showed 56 per cent of all Midwestern farmers dissatisfied with the administration's farm record.

For Farmers Only

Ellender said the committee wanted to hear "from the farmers themselves" during the tour. "Under no circumstances will the hearings be used as a springboard to foster the plans of any organized farm group," he said.

Edwin Christianson, president of the Minnesota Farmers Union, said in a prepared statement that 94 per cent of Minnesota's dairy farmers favored a "Brannan plan" type of support for their product.

Under this plan, Christianson said, milk and other dairy products would be sold for whatever they would bring. The difference between actual market prices and a support level of 90 to 100 per cent of the "fair income" parity level would be made up by government payments.

Following today's session here, the committee was scheduled to go to Worthington, Minn. Other hearings include Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 26; Brookings, S.D., Oct. 27; Minot, N.D., Oct. 28; and Chicago, Nov. 21.

Christmas Shopping Rush Is Expected To Set Record In '55

By ALFRED LEECH
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—The Christmas shopping rush, expected to set another record this year, should be a joy to retailers in general and jewelers in particular.

A study shows that jewelers do 31 per cent of their annual business during the Christmas season. Menconstitute 84 per cent of the jeweler's customers during the holiday buying spree.

The study of Christmas shopping trends was made by Standard Factors Corp. which does about 70 million dollars annually in financing instalment and charge account business for retailers.

Theodore H. Silbert, Standard Factors president, predicts that Christmas retail sales and total retail sales for the year will set new records.

Expect $5,000,000,000 Increase

Sales for the entire year, he said, will total about 175 billion dollars, about 5 billion more than last year.

Men's clothing stores do better than women's specialty shops during the Christmas rush, the survey showed. The men's stores do 26 per cent of their yearly total during the Chritmas season while the women's shops do 22 per cent.

Silbert said this is because the women invade the men's shops to buy Christmas ties and shirt, while the men buy many of their presents for women at the jewelry stores.

Department stores do 23 per cent of their annual business during the holiday season, Silbert said, while furniture, radio-TV and appliance dealers do 21 per cent.

More for the House

Silbert said Christmas spending on furniture and appliances has been on the upsurge during the last 10 years because of the housing boom. More people are buying "something for the house" than ever before, he said.

Nor is this the only shift in consumer Christmas spending. Time was when the holiday season was a dull period for automobile dealer, Silbert said, but now people flock to see and order the new models.

Hardware stores, too, have stepped up their Christmas sales, largely because of the "do it yourself" trend.

Silbert's survey disclosed another interesting fact. Women spend less on Christmas gifts for men than the men spend on women.

Flight Engineers Picket Air Line Offices In 27 Cities

CHICAGO (UP) — About 500 flight engineers picketed United Air Lines offices in 27 U.S. cities today, including New York and Chicago.

The AFL International Flight Engineers Assn. called the strike Sunday after 11th-hour negotiations broke down over a job security demand.

Air line officials said service was proceeding normally in general. But they admitted several flights were delayed and that one was canceled because of personnel dislocation.

United President W.A. Patterson said the strike came about over an "unreasonable" demand by the engineers that they be guaranteed assignments on any new type of aircraft put in service by the company.

The dispute arose over United's new requirement that all flight engineers also be qualified pilots.

The union contends that the main requirement of men hired as flight engineers should be the holding of an engine and air frame maintenance certificate. Most other major air lines other than United have agreed to this.

Starch the corners of men's handkerchiefs so they will look neater when tucked in a jacket pocket.

NATO Throws Support Behind Big Three Package Peace Plan

"SEEING-EYE" CAT—Meet "Specks," year-old cat who is the "seeing eye" for "Blackie," blind, seven-year-old cocker spaniel. They are shown with their mistress, Gloria Bloodworth, of Gainesville, Ga. She says the cat sensed Blackie's oncoming blindness before the family figured out why the dog seemed so bewildered at times. Within six months Blackie was completely blind. By that time, Specks had taken over. She guides him carefully across the street to a bird bath, halting him for traffic and then nudging him on. She waits patiently until the cocker finishes drinking and starts him on the return trek. He trots closely behind the cat, who periodically turns back to give him a reassuring brush under his nose. She also guides him around the Bloodworth home to keep him from bumping into furniture and helps him up and down stairs. EXCLUSIVE NEA PHOTO.

Temporary White House Refuses To Discuss Any Political Questions

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Wreitr

DENVER (UP)—The temporary White House maintained a firm refusal today to discuss any political questions or to admit that President Eisenhower has been informed on any political developments since his heart attack on Sept. 24.

Some of the President's top aides have reported that he is fully informed and up to date on foreign affairs, economic developments, since his heart attack on Sept. 24.

Some of the President's top aides have reported that he is fully informed and up to date on foreign affairs, economic developments, and domestic issues such as the farm question.

But Mr. Eisenhower's White House staff persists in refusing to say what — if any — political discussions Mr. Eienhower might have held with anyone since he was admitted to Fitzsimons Army Hospital.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, the principal White House spokesman, told newsmen that the President has not read a newspaper since he was stricken. But, Hagerty said, regular conferences with presidential assistant Sherman Adams and other aides have kept the President informed on major issues.

Mr. Eisenhower scheduled a bedside conference today with Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay. This latest in the President's series of hospital talks with high government officials comes as Democrats steadily increase their crit-

Issue Reminder Of Bloodmobile Visit Here On Thursday

A last-minute reminder is issued to all residents in Whitley county today about the visit here Thursday of the American Red Cross bloodmobile.

The bloodmobile unit will be at the American Legion Post 98 from 10:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. Thursday and hopes to receive 100 pints or more of urgently needed blood from local people. This will be third visit to this county this year by the Red Cross unit.

Local co-chairmen, Stanley Mullendore and Carl Arntson, state that there is no charge at the hospitals for the use of the blood. The only charge that is made is the cost of administering the blood to patients.

There has also been some question why the bloodmobile unit requires so many donors at a time from Whitley county. Mullendore states that in other counties of equal size to Whitley county they do not require so many donors at a time but they are required to donate oftener. Whitley county is required to donate blood only as it is used here in Whitley County

They would also like to remind the donors that they are not to eat any fatty foods just prior to giving blood. If a person is to give blood in the morning they may eat toast and coffee for their breakfast but should not use butter nor cream.

They would also like to remind the people of Whitley county that if they have not been contacted by the various chairmans or co-chairmans to donate blood at a designated time and they desire to do so, they may come at any time between the designated time and they will be able to give their pint of blood.

The local co-chairmen are very grateful for the interest the people of the county have shown in responding to the many calls given for blood donors.

To Practice

The choir of Trinity Methodist church will practice Thursday evening at 7:30 at the church.

Finds Wheels, Tires Missing From New Car

Car Had Been Set On Cement Blocks

Mrs. Freda Shirey, R 5, Warsaw, found the wheels and white sidewall tires missing from her new Oldsmobile and the car setting up on cement blocks when she was ready to start home at 1 o'clock this morning. She started the engine and when the car would not shift into reverse got out to investigate. Mrs. Shirey is employed in the assembly department of Columbia Products, Division of the Weatherhead Company. She works the 4 p.m. to 1 a.m. shift.

Police were called and could find no trace of the tires in the vicinity. The cement blocks might have been carried about 300 feet from a pile at the plant. The spare tire was locked in the car trunk.

Mrs. Shirey's son, Junior Shirey, came for his mother and his car had a flat tire just before he got to the American Legion Home drive on his way to Columbia City about 4 o'clock this morning.

Detective Blain Schang, of the Indiana State Police Force, is investigating.

U. N. Officials Hope For Control Of Atomic Energy

Want To Form International Agency

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—United Nations officials expressed firm hope today that unanimous agreement could be reached on formation of an international agency to control peaceful uses of atomic energy.

The United Nations' 60-nation main Political Committee resumed debate on plans to constitute such an agency.

Committee Chairman Sir Leslie Knox Munro of New Zealand cancelled Monday's meeting to give delegations an opportunity for full consultation in efforts to reach agreement on a resolution

The General Assembly's special political committee moves forward this morning with its annual debate on South African racial segregation, confronted by the second walkout of this session.

South Africa's W. C. Du Plessis led his four-member delegation from the committee room Monday after announcing that his government would take no part in the debate.

But it was a "limited" walkout. Du Plessis reserved his country's right to vote in the committee's final determination of the issue. The walkout was not regarded as nearly as serious as the French boycott of the assembly over debate of its Algerian problems.

In the main political committee, the United States, with strong Western support, pushed for adoption of a resolution calling for an international conference to set up an atomic control agency

Chief objection to the American proposal was that it provided that negoitations for creating the agency should be carried on outside the United Nations.

The United States and the other sponsoring powers later agreed to hold an international conference at which all countries seeking membership in the agency could express their views.

Trick Or Treat Event On Monday Night, October 31

To Greet Small Fry From 6 p.m. To 9 p.m.

Columbia City Mayor Thomas H Hood today issued a proclamation setting aside Monday, October 31, as "trick or treat" night.

The move by Mayor Hood received the whole-hearted backing of David Walter Jr, president of the Columbia City Chamber of Commerce

The proclamation is aimed at allowing the youth of Columbia City to enjoy the celebration of the traditional Halloween season and at the same time restrict the celebrators from over-emphasizing the annual event, Mayor Hood said.

Also set aside in the proclamation were the hours of 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. for the trick or treat time.

Columbia City's Mayor also suggested that residents turn on their porch lights between 6 and 9 p.m. on the appointed night for the trick or treaters.

"Actually, it's as much fun for the adults to meet the costumed children as it is for the children to be going from home to home," Mayor Hood said.

He suggested that residents be prepared to meet the children with candy, fruit, gum or cookies.

Chamber President Walter added his support to the proclamation. "This idea of one night for trick or treat has proven successful in other communities in making Halloween an enjoyable time for everyone," Walter said.

Proclamation

WHEREAS, the traditions of an American Halloween give joy and fun to the youth of Columbia City;

AND WHEREAS, adults can share in providing this joy and fun to the youth of Columbia City;

AND WHEREAS, it is traditional for the youth to "trick or treat" during the Halloween season instead of causing uncalled for damage;

AND WHEREAS, one night could be set aside for "trick or treat" so that youths would not be on the streets after dark more than one evening and would restrict their activities to that one evening;

Therefore, be it proclaimed that Monday, October 31, 1955, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. is "Trick or Treat" night in Columbia City, giving the youth the opportunity to have their joy and fun under the guidance of adults of the city.

First Cold Wave Of Fall Season Slams Into East

Winds, Rains Kill At Least 6 Persons; Plane Crash Kills 2

BBy UNITED PRESS

The first cold wave of fall slammed into the East today with cyclonic winds and rains which killed at least six persons.

Farther west, two Air Force officers were killed when their jet plane crashed during a blinding snow storm on Michigan's Upper Peninsula. The smashup brought the weather-caused death total to eight.

The big cold front had swept across the nation's midsection, bringing the first killing frost of the season to the Midwest, before it roared over the Applachian Mountains Monday night.

A squall line formed, stirring up gale force winds which ranged from 60 to 88 m.p.h. across New York state, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, and Pennsylvania.

A Secaucus, N.J., woman was killed when the wind hurled her down concrete steps. Falling trees killed men in Lawnside, N.J., and Madison County, N.Y. In upstate New York, three persons were killed in car crashes on rain-

Community Chest Campaign Goal Near The Halfway Mark

The Community Chest campaign for 1955-56 was a few dollars over 45 per cent of the goal, according to a report made today by Chest President Clarence Gall.

Officially recorded in the Community Chest of Whitley County office was $8980.63, the report said.

Returns from throughout the county are coming in faster every day, the Community Chest president added.

The major jump in the Chest figure, from 38 per cent reported late last week to 45 per cent, was made from reports at South Whitley and Churubusco. South Whitley, with William Striggle as chairman, reported more than $700 and Churubusco, with Mrs. J. L. Isay as chairman, more than $900. Neither community, however, has completed its campaign.

"It is encouraging to have the Red Feather thermometers in the county climb steadily toward the top," Gall said.

"The big job of making the goal is still ahead," Gall added. He urged residents throughout the county to think again about the tremendous job carried out by the nine agencies of the Chest and again pointed out that the Community Chest annually places all drives into one "big" campaign.

Reports also are coming into the Chest office from the various township divisions. The drive results are being added to the campaign figures as they come in. Complete reports on each division will be made later

"Much credit is due those persons who are giving their time willingly in this campaign. More than 500 persons are now at work in completing the campaign. Give them your full support," Gall said.

West To Present This Plan Before Soviet At Geneva

Secretary Dulles Presents Plan

PARIS (UP)—The NATO alliance threw its full support today behind the Big Three package plan for peace at the forthcoming Geneva conference with the Soviet Union.

The foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and France outlined the planned Western strategy to the members of the NATO council in two secret meetings.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles presented the plan for German reunification and European security. British Foreign Secretary Antoine Pinay made proposals for more East-West contacts.

The details of these proposals were drawn up by a committee of experts in recent months and were indorsed by the Big Three ministers Monday.

The smaller members of the NATO alliance spoke their minds about the plans and asked for more details. This brought about two sessions today instead of one, and forced the Big Three foreign ministers to scrap plans for talks

Government Launches Pork And Lard Buying Venture To Give Boost ToSagging Hog Prices

By GAYLORD P. GODWIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government has launched a pork and lard buying venture to give a psychological boost to sagging hog prices and a political lift to Midwestern hog raisers. The pork will be used for school lunches and welfare programs.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benon announced late Monday the government will begin buying "as soon as practicable." about 85 million dollars worth of dressed pork and lard to "assist farmers in adjusting their production to market demand."

Administration political strategists hope the action will quiet farmer discontent in the generally Republican Midwest as well as bolster the corn hog market. Farmers say they are in a terrific cost-price squeeze, with receipts out of proportion to what they have to pay for the things they buy.

From Customs Receipts

Funds for the new program will come from customs receipts which can be devoted to price props for the hog industry. The money will buy, roughly, about 170-million pounds of processed pork and about 30 - million pounds of lard. The program will extend through Aug. 1956.

The amount of pork and money involved is small compared with the value of the pork industry. The pork amounts only to about one week's slaughter of federally - inspected hog meat. The money is peanuts compared with annual gross income of about four billion dollars for live hogs.

It is doubtful if the pork buying program in itself will have much effect on raising prices at live hog markets. The small amount of money and the amount of pork to be bought probably couldn't do it.

But an Agriculture Department official said the farmers and politicians "will be happier if something is going on" — if they have

Joy Says Free World Should Have Fought To Victory

WASHINGTON (U) — Adm. G. Turner Joy, chief United Nations truce negotiator in Korea, believes the free world could have and, should have, fought on to final victory in Korea.

He said military victory in Korea "was not impossible, nor even unusually difficult." But the armistice which was negotiated, he said, "profited Red China enormously in prestige and influence throughout Asia."

Joy, now retired, spent 11 months as chief U.N. negotiator during the truce talks. But he sharply criticizes the truce terms and conduct of the Korean War in a forthcoming book entitled, "How Communists Negotiate."

Extracts from the copyrighted book are included in the current issue of U. S. News & World Report, a weekly news magazine published here.

Joy said it was "the considered judgment of senior military commanders" in Korea that "elimination of the artificial restraints imposed on United States forces, coupled with imposition of an effective blockade of Red China, probably would have resulted in military victory in less time than was expended on truce talks" and with fewer casualties.

When Red Chinese forces swept across the Yalu River in November, 1951, he said, the U.N. should have retaliated with an all-out attack on the China mainland. He said Western military leaders were convinced that Russia would not enter the war.

Hog Belt Leaders Generally Applaud Pork Buying Plan

WASHINGTON (UP) — Leaders in the nation's hog belt generally applauded the administration's new pork buying program today but some said it is too little and too late.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson announced the program late Monday in an effrot to give sagging hog prices a boost and to give midwestern hog raisers a political lift.

Under the program, the government will "as soon as practicable" begin buying about 85 million dollars worth of dressed pork and lard to "assist farmers in adjusting their production to market demand."

Farmers sent the biggest run of hogs to market in 10 months on the heels of the announcement. The heavy shipments caused opening prices to slump about 50 cents per hundred pounds at major midwestern markets today.

E. Howard Hill, president of the Iowa Farm BBureau Federation, said "I'm glad they're moving on it. This is a good move." But Fred Stover, president of the Iowa Farmers Union, called the action "entirely too little and too late."

Jake Moore, newly elected chairman of the 13-state midwest Democratic farm conference, said "I'm glad to see Secretary Benson responded so quicly in taking action that could have been taken by his department many months ago."

Republican members of the Senate Agriculture Committee, in Minnesota on a grass-roots survey of farm opinion, were reported relieved at Benson' sannouncement.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-SD) predicted the program will "stop the slide and start prices upward."

Diem's Victory Bad News For Lots Of People

Premier Ngo Dinh Diem's victory over Emperor Bao Dai in the Viet Nam referendum in Indochina was bad news for a lot of people.

First, it was a severe defeat for communism. But paradoxically it also was a defeat for the "Western imperialism" of which the Communists complain.

The chief mourner, of course, is Bao Dai himself. He lost one of the softest jobs in the world when his people voted so overwhelmingly to fire him and make Diem chief of state.

Fellow mourners are shadowy Ho Chi Minh, president of the Communist state of North Viet Nam, and Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai of Red China.

But the referendum also was a defeat for France. It seems to foretell the end of any real French influence in Indochina.

In that sense, it was a defeat for "imperialism" and "colonialism." It also emphasizes a sharp divergence in policy in Southeast Asia between France and the United States.

France does not like Diem. He is too independent. It made him premier, most reluctantly, at the insistence of the United States.

From the moment Diem took office, France backed Bao Dai against him at every opportunity.

The real significance of Diem's victory, however, is the setback communism has received.

Diem has made himself the head man of a strong government in South Viet Nam. He refuses to have any truck with the North Viet Nam Communists.

Diem is like old Syngman Rhee of Korea, a hard man to get along with. But he shares with Rhee an implacable hatred of communism, and a hatred of communism is just what is needed in Southeast Asia.

Self-Portrait

Lesson for October 30, 1955

THERE are people who don't care how they look to other people; they have no particular long-range plans or pattern of life, they live (as they might say) by ear. We call such persons extraverts; they never stop, so to speak, long enough to look into a mirror. There is an opposite kind of person who is painfully interested in himself. He is forever looking into a mirror, as it were. He makes the most careful and detailed plans and is quite upset when a detail goes wrong. We call such persons introverts. In between these types is a more balanced sort of person. If one could "type" Jesus of Nazareth he would be the balanced sort, by all means. He was self-conscious enough to know and care what he was doing, but not in the least self-centered.

Dr. Foreman

Action Portrait

Jesus once had the opportunity, which to some young people is a rather frightening thrill, of speaking to a crowded audience in his own home town. He knew what was in nearly everybody's mind: "Give an account of yourself. Who do you think you are and what do you think you are doing?" To them he was just a home-town boy; but they had heard of strange things he had said and done, and they wanted to hear him talk. So he had the opportunity on a Sabbath Day of speaking in the synagogue. As he read the Scripture for the day, from Isaiah 61, Jesus stopped in the middle of a sentence, and sitting down (as teachers did in those days) he said, "Today this Scripture has been fulfilled . . ." In other words, as Americans would put it. This is it. This is my plan of life. This prophecy, hundreds of years old, describes what I am and what I am doing. In short, Jesus took this prophecy to himself, as a self-portrait. It is more like a motion picture than a still picture; it expresses what he was, in terms of what he did.

For Others

That, by the way, is typical of the Bible way of describing people. Adjectives like "good," "merciful," "truthful," always have verbs behind them. Adjectives describe actions. A man does not have one kind of character and another kind of action. His actions are his character,—not his external actions alone, but together with the motives and intentions which are a true part of every act. Now Jesus describes himself and his plan for life not only in terms of action, but of action in relation to other persons. John Wesley says somewhere that when Christianity ceases to be social it is not any longer Christian. The idea that any one can become a higher type of Christian by retiring permanently from the world, devoted exclusively to prayer and contemplation, is a notion not derived from Jesus. For him, the meaning of life is in contact with other persons. But note the sort of person Jesus mentions: the poor, the captives, the blind, the bruised . . . the very people so many of us avoid. Most people jump at the chance to get their pictures taken with famous people. Jesus' self-portrait was a picture of him with obscure people, people in trouble. What would happen in a community if every church member became more interested in doing something for people than in "doing" people?

For All Others

What really enraged those churchgoers of Nazareth was not that Jesus was dedicated to helping others. That was fine, they were all in favor of it. The thing that raised them to murder-heat was that he drew no lines. He was for helping one and all, yes even Gentiles. What Jews of that day thought of Gentiles is expressed in a passage from a popular book written about the same time as the New Testament: "For our sakes you (God) made this first-born world. But as for the rest of the nations which are sprung from Adam, you have said they are nothing and are like spittle." (II Esdras 6:56). So when Jesus made it clear that he (like Elijah and Elisha before him) would draw no race or national lines, that he intended to carry God's love to the last and least of men, these race-proud Nazarenes threatened to lynch him.

Indiana May Have 1,000 Traffic Deaths Before Thanksgiving

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Indiana looks like a dead cinch to come up with its 1,000 traffic fatality of 1955 just before Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

Last year, the 1,000th death was recorded—of all times—on "National Safe-Driving Day," a 24-hour period decreed by President Eisenhower to make Americans safety conscious. That day fell on Dec. 15.

Bct a heavy toll during the last eight weeks has made it more or less likely the 1,000th death of the calendar year will come about three weeks earlier than in 1954.

Dec. 1 "Safety Day"

It could happen on a safe-driving day again. Governor Craig has designated Dec. 1 as "Indiana Safe-Driving Day," and if people are a little more careful than they have been in September and October it is just possible the 1,000th death will be delayed a few days past Thanksgiving.

What has happened during the past two months just shouldn't happen to a state whose officials appear to be as safety conscious as Indiana's.

At the end of August, Hoosier motorists and pedestrians had done reasonably well. True, 694 persons were killed up to Sept. 1. But that was only four above the figure for the same date in 1954, a year in which the traffic toll was cut 200 below the last preceding year.

September Death Spree

However, in September, death went on a spree that continued through October and raised the toll to around 900 with a full week of the month remaining. The toll through Oct. 16 was 875 lives lost, compared with 815 for the corresponding date in 1954, a gain of about seven per cent.

The way things have been going, the 1955 toll will range somewhere between 1,150 and 1,200 as compared with 1,077 in 1954.

Governor Craig himself said recently he feared the toll would reach 1,200 unless the trend were curbed. Should it exceed 1,200, the toll would run very close to the 1952 and 1953 marks of 1,277 and 1,276, respectively.

For the Dec. 1. "Safe-Driving Day," Craig has appointed all Indiana mayors and all Indiana sheriffs leaders in their areas of the movement to reduce accidents.

Issue Bench Warrants For Arrest Of 4 From Allen County

WASHINGTON (UP) —Bench warrants were issued today for the arrest of four Allen County, Ind., persons charged with making illegal sales of stimulant drugs to truck drivers.

Among 42 individuals charged in 22 criminal actions filed in six states were Leon Poyser, Helen Brillhart, Dolores Kenney and Carol E. Arnoldy, all of the Black & White Motel, 3 miles north of Fort Wayne, Ind.

The action was announced by Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr., following a year-long undercover inquiry by investigators of the Food and Drug Administration.

The four were charged with violating the law by selling the stimulant drugs without a prescription.

Eden May Disclose Whether Princess Gives Heart, Hand

By DANIEL F. GILMOEW
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Anthony Eden may disclose today whether Princess Margaret has given her heart and hand to Peter Townsend.

A respected newspaper reported the princess has said yes and is already planning "how and when their marriage can take place."

The answer may come when Eden goes before the House of Commons.

Laborite Marcus Lipton has asked Eden "whether he will introduce legislation to repeal or amend the Royal Marriage Act of 1772." This is the law that requires Margaret to give one year's notice to Parliamentn before marrying without the consent of Queen Elizabeth II.

Former Mate Lives

Elizabeth, as head of the church and defender of the faith, cannot give her consent because Townsend is a divorced man. The 41-year-old group captain was the "innocent" party to the divorce but the Church of England frowns upon the remarriage of a divorced person while his former mate lives.

Eden does not have to answer the question poised by Lipton. He could simply say "not at this time"—and leave the Riddle unanswered. Or he could avoid any answer by citing the parliamentary tradition of non - interferennce in private affairs of the royal family.

But, if the princess is to marry the divorced commoner in the face of the opposition of some elements in government and the established Church of England, Parliament will have to pass special laws.

The 25-year-old princess and the pilot had two dates Monday following Margaret's weekend conference with her sister, the Queen, and lent weight to belief that she may have made her decision to marry Townsend.

Left In Hurry

Margaret and Townsend spent six hours at a friend's home in London Monday night—until after midnight. Margaret was sober-faced and seemingly in a hurry when she left for Clarence House, where she had met with Townsend for 90 minutes Monday afternoon.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, which already had reported the princess and pilot would marry said today they are now going ahead with the arrangements for the wedding.

Renew Efforts To End Week-Old Strike At Westinghouse

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Company and union negotiators renew efforts today to end the week-old strike of CIO Electrical workers against 30 Westinghouse Electric Corp., plants. Both sides were under an injunction restraining them from violence.

Two telephoned bomb threats received by Judge Henry X. O'Brien, who issued the injunction fizzled Monday night.

Judge O'Brien said he received two anonymous telephone calls warning his home would be bombed before midnight Monday as a result of the injunction forbidding mass picketing at plants in East Pittsburgh and Homewood, Pa. The double-edged ruling also ordered Westinghouse to post a $10,000 bond to assure it would not provoke "violence or intimidation."

O'Brien dismissed the calls as "the work of a prank or some crackpot," but city detectives and deputy sheriffs maintained a vigil at the jurist's residence throughout the night. The mysterious caller, however, failed to make good on his threat.

Negotiators for the company and the CIO meet again today in an effort to reach a settlement of wages, length of contract and time-study issue. The dispute touched off a nationwide walkout of 44,000 electrical workers at the 30 company plants at midnight Sunday, Oct. 16.

Union spokesmen said James B. Carey, IUE international president, was returning from Washington to sit in on today's talks.

Westinghouse has been carrying on simultaneous wage discussion with four union but the IUE so far is the only group which has gone out on strike as a result of apparently stalemated negotiations.

The firm asked the injunction last Friday, alleging mass picketing at the East Pittsburgh and Homewood works prevented non-striking supervisory, clerical and maintenance personnel from entering the plants. The company said a skeleton force was necessary to prevent damage to valuable machinery.

Elks Club Rooms Take Wierd Setting For Delt Halloween Affair

The Elks club room was transformed into an eerie graveyard setting last night for the scene of a Halloween frolic at which the members of the Tri Kappa Sorority were guests of Beta Upsilon Chapter of Delta Theta Tau Sorority. The first and second alumnae chapters of Delta Theta Tau were also guests of the active chapter.

A mural of witches riding broom sticks and ghosts floating through the sky covered the north wall of the room. Skeleton mobiles hung from the light fixtures. Spiderwebs covering tombstones, and black cats and bats flying conspicuously about the room added to the atmosphere of Halloween.

The Tri Kappas, who arrived in a group all dressed as ghosts, were greeted by an icy handshake of the Delta witch. A grand march began the festivities, after which the guests unmasked to prove their true identity. Balloons in six colors were released from the ceiling and by choosing their balloons the girls divided themselves into teams for the evening. Bubble gum was given to members of the teams winning the various contests.

The guests were then seated at a long table on either side of the room and a program of skits, pantomines and humorous readings was presented.

At the ringing of the big dinner bell, members of the committee entered carrying Jack-o-lanterns laden with spears of doughnuts. Hot spiced cider was served by the Delta witch from her old iron kettle.

The door prize, a broom and dust pan, was awarded to Mrs. Ellis Jumont. Decorator pillows in gay fall colors were presented as costume prizes to Mrs. Jack Kaufman, Mrs. Margaret Burnham, Mrs. Roy Duncan, Mrs. Garland Mullendore, Mrs. Otto Lehmberg and Mrs. Omer Stafford.

Members of the committee for the party were Mrs. Allan Rush, Mrs. Dean Lemmon, Mrs. Paul Morsches Jr., Mrs. Douglas Clapp, Mrs. Roger Plew, Mrs. Willis Goble, Mrs. Garland Stickler, Mrs. Charles Lowe, Mrs. Martin Nelson, and Miss Donna Myers.

Glass Fiber Curtains Require Gentle Care

LAFAYETTE - Glass fiber, used for curtains and draperies, is different from natural and chemical fibers and will give good service if handled properly.

As the name indicates it is made of spun glass fibers and then woven into cloth. A beautiful and durable fabric results.

For satisfactory service and to avoid breakage, glass fiber fabrics should be protected like any fine fabric advises Miss Vanis Deeter, extension home furnishings specialist at Purdue Uiversity. Hand wash the glass fiber curtains or draperies in hot suds using your favorite detergent. Do not wash with clothing and do not rub. Squeeze gently as you do your hose or a better method - soak clean rather than rub. Dirt comes out easily but it is much better to wash them frequently rather than letting them become over soiled.

Rinse twice and be careful not to snag these curtains. Agitator washing machines are not recommended for glass fiber curtains, and bleaching, starching, stretching, or ironing also are not advisable.

Roll the curtains in a towel or absorb excess moisture, Hang the damp curtains at the window, straighten the sides and bottom hems and they will be smooth and dry in a very short time.

Glass fiber curtains do not shrink, stretch, or sag during the laundering. To get reasonable amount of wear from them avoid letting curtains or draperies flap against furniture or window sill.

What's New In Washington

By HAMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — What's new in Washington:

Sinclair Weeks, the secretary of commerce, is the walkingest member of Ike's cabinet. He lives in the old Georgetown area of Washington, a good three miles from his office, and generally walks it, at least one way. The other day he was to do a TV show on safety. The studio people were pacing and waiting. Weeks showed up about two minutes before the show was to go on. "It was quite a walk," the secretary said. It was, at that. Four miles, timed just right.

Somebody started a rumor that the government has a bunch of surplus jeeps—all carted and ready to sell for $25 apiece. There's nothing to it, folks. The Army surplus division is getting tired of writing letters to people from all over the country. The come-on to the rumor was that the Army would buy the jeeps back for 350 within five years, "in case of emergency." That's a lie, too. Fact is, the only Army jeeps for sale are those that can't be economically repaired—and then only to the highest bidder.

The Pentagon reports that Pfc. Francis I. Steinberg, of Staten Island, N.Y., was unpacking some wet-cell batteries when he found a little note saying "good luck."

The hand writing looked familiar, so he took it back to his barracks and compared the note to his girl friend's handwriting. It matched. She happens to work in a plant about 10 blocks from his house back home. The girl, Pat Stern, owned up to the note and said she put a "good luck" note in all of the packages she sent to the 32nd Infantry, 7th Division.

Give new flavor to the usual acaroni and cheese casserole by dding a generous amount of opped chives to the cheese sauce.

To prevent cake fillings from soaking into the cake, sprinkle the layers with powdered sugar before frosting.

Designing World Discovers Children

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—A child shortly will be able to toddle up to a girl companion in the nursery, arch tiny eyebrows and ask, "Whose rompers are those?"

"Claire McCardell did these," the companion can say, modestly, removing her thumb briefly from her mouth.

The designing world has "discovered" children.

By the age of three a gril can wear snow suits by Olge Cassini and sports clothes by Brigance. Until this winter, Mama had a corner on these labels.

"How come?" we asked each of the three newcomers in the children's clothes field.

Their answers varied from an easy going, "They asked me to do it," from Miss McCardell to a stinging criticism of clothes habits currently popular with the younger generation from Thomas Brigance.

Consistent Award Winner

Brigance, a consistent award winner for his adult fashions, said emphatically that he had been eager to design little girls' clothes for several years. He will do fashions for girls from three years old through early teens for Touraine Co., Inc., beginning with a summer collection to be previewed next January.

"Those are the formative years" he said. "It is in those years that we are now forming a lack of feminine taste and color sense.

"In the first place," the designer said, settling back with the air of a man who has wanted to get this off his chest for some time, "I want to take little girls out of dungarees and ugly pullover shirts.

"The whole psychology of women in this country is that they must be competitive with men. But at least when a girl is little we should not encourage her to compete with boys in the way she dresses. I want to put her in gay pants and feminine shirts." (He also will design skirts and dresses.)

Family As Models

Cassini said he was prepared for his entry into the kiddies' field by designing he had done for his own two young daughters. When he got the offer from the snow suit manufacturer, he simply used his own family as models.

"Anyway, this is the age of the designer," Cassini added. "People want good design in everything. I am ready to do little girls' dresses if I get the right opportunity."

To end on a light-hearted note, there are those "Baby McCardells" for girls up to 18 months old. The complete line of 12 outfits for Fawn, Inc., won't be completed for a few weeks, but Miss McCardell is having a wonderful time experimenting with tab collars, dolman sleeves and contrasting stitching.

"I even have a strapless pink party dress," she laughed. "But they tell me I'll hav eto put straps on it."

Behind The Looking Glass

HOLLAND, Iowa (UP) — Mrs. Tom Dreesman decided Monday to get rid of a mirror she bought at an auction 20 years ago and is $1,148 richer today for her decision.

She began tearing up the mirror and found $1,148 in currency, dating back from 1882 to 1915, behind the glass.

Cold Temperatures Blow Into Indiana

By UNITED PRESS

Sub-freezing temperatures blew into Indiana today on the heels of the season's first snow flurries.

The mercury skidded to a low of 28 at Lafayette and 29 at South Bend, Fort Wayne and Indianapolis.

But it won't last long, mild weather is on the way back.

The wintry blast was part of a cold air invasion across the nation which caused zero temperatures and four-inch snowfalls in the West.

At Fort Wayne, temperatures plummeted 31 degrees in less than 15 hours. Goshen, Fort Wayne and South Bend all reported "snow-showers" Monday, but no snow was reported on the ground.

Only the extreme southern portions of the state escaped the frigid wave, with Evansville reporting a comparatively warm 37.

The weatherman said the cold wave will leave today, with afternoon temperatures expected to range from 90 north to 65 south.

The five-day forecast predicts mild weather, with temperatures averaging four to eight degrees above normal. Maximums will range from the mid 60s to the low 70s. Minimums will be in the 40s.

Rainfall will average between .10 and .25 of an inch in the form of showers Friday or Saturday.

Lows tonight will range from 40 to 45, highs Wednesday from 65 to 67.

Temperatures Monday ranged from highs of 60 at Evansville and Fort Wayne to 45 at Lafayette.

Dulles Plans To Confer With Tito

WASHINGTON (UP)—The State Department announced today that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles plans to confer with Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia Nov. 6.

The brief announcement said the meeting will give the two men an opportunity to discuss "problems of current interest."

Dulles also hopes to stop en route to Yugoslavia for an unofficial visit to Vienna on Nov. 5.

Dulles is now in Europe for the Big Four foreign ministers conference beginning Thursday in Geneva, Switzerland. The meeting is scheduled to last about three weeks.

The United States has been carefully watching Yugoslavia's improving relations with Russia. Top Soviet leaders earlier this year went to Yugoslavia to woo Tito.

Only a few weeks ago Deputy Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy made a visit to Yugoslavia to survey the situation.

Lard and other bland 100 per cent fats and oils are better for greasing cake or bread pans. The Department of Agriculture says butter and margarine contain protein, which coagulates and sticks to the pan. But if you want to use butter or margarine to give flavor to the surface of a cake, there is less chance of the cake sticking when a thick layer is used this afternoon on the explosive Middle East.

A conference spokesman said there was "full agreement" on the four points the foreign ministers will tackle when they sit down with Russia's tough - bargaining V. M. Molotov in Geneva Thursday. These points ar eEuropean security; German reunification; disarmament; and increased contacts between East and West.

Dulles won support from Germany and France despite a Saar referendum that threatened to reopen their ancient enmity. He asked the same support from the smaller powers.

The Big Three plan offered Russia a security pact — but only in exchange for a no-strings reunification of West and East Germany. The new Germany would be free to chose its own allies.

The Western plan would draw a demilitarized buffer zone down the middle of Europe on both sides of the Oder - Neisse line now dividing East Germany and Poland. It would offer an all-European nonaggression pact to calm Soviet fears of aggression from the West.

The Big Three powers promised NATO in advance to keep it closely informed on Geneva strategy. And NATO's Secretary - General Lord Ismay arranged to call the Allied representatives together at half an hour's notice in any emergency.

Potentially Explosive Crisis

Other pressing issues also demanded the attention of the Big Three foreign ministers. The most potentially explosive was the crisis in the Middle East. Tension sharpened there with the sale of Communist arms to Egypt. Israeli Premier Moshe Sharrett flew here to seek balancing guarantees from the West.

Informed sources said the Big Three viewed the Soviet attempt to penetrate the strategic Middle East with alarm. They said the Western powers will press Molotov about Russian aims in the area in "sideline" talks at Geneva.

Sharrett sought guarantees of Israel's frontiers and arms from the West to balance those the Communists sold to Egypt.

He served as district campaign manager for both Governor Ralph Gates and Senator Homer Capehart in 1944 and Governor George Crai'g campaign in 1952.

icism of administration power policies — with McKay as the main target.

The Chief Executive conferred Monday with Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, and later with Dr. Arthur F. BBurns, chairman of his council of economic advisers, and Gabriel Hauge, presidential assistant on economics. All three reported glowingly on Mr. Eisenhower's recovery and his awareness of major issues.

Medical Reports Encouraging

Medical reports on the President's steady recovery continued to be encouraging. The White House staff went ahead with plans to close up shop at Denver and move to the Chief Executive's Gettysburg, Pa., farm for the next phase of his recovery. The move probably will be made around Nov. 8.

After his conference with the President, Burns unveiled plans for a new administration "Home Front Point Four" program of federal aid to localities chronically-stricken by unemployment. Mr. Eisenhower approved it during the conference.

The program will be presented to Congress early next year when details are complete.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benon, who disclosed in Washington Monday plans for a pork and lard buying program to aid hard-pressed hog producers, will confer with the President here Saturday on new farm legislation the administration may recommend to Congress next year.

Russian Newsmen Take It Easy Today

SALT LAKE CITY (UP)—Seven touring Russian newsmen took it easy today with hopes they won't have to face any more mobs of anti-Communist demonstrators.

The visiting group arrived here from Cleveland Monday night. They decided to bypass Chicago because the State Department would not give them a "flat guarantee" against anti-Soviet demonstrations.

The group had asked for the guarantee after a fist waving mob of 50 demonstrators confronted them in Cleveland Monday.

Spokesmen for the newsmen said upon their arrival here that the decision to visit the Utah capital city was based on the fact that there is no heavy concentration of peoples from Soviet satellite nations in the area.

Scientist Thinks It Rare Luck To Die Piece By Piece

TURIN, Italy (UP) — A 70-year-old Italian scientist who considers it "rare luck to die piece by piece" undergoes his 19th operation today to cut away part of his radium-poisoned body.

The operation was to remove the remaining two fingers from the right hand of Prof. Mario Ponzio, leading radiologist, who was first burned by radium in 1920. He had lost the other two fingers in a previous operation.

Doctors expressed hope that the five-minute operation would save Ponzio's right arm and halt the progress of deadly radiodermitis. He lost his left arm in another operation.

Doctors Veto Plan

But they said it would be impossible for him to carry out his plan to "come back home" later in the day and resume his studies "as soon as possible." They said he would have to stay in the hospital a few day, at least.

Ponzio entered Fornaca Hospital Monday night after spending all day studying reports from last week's Trieste congress on radiotherapy, a science which is gradually taking his life because of radium burns.

"I postponed my 19th surgical operation until today because I have no time to waste," he said. "My mind would not be so clear because of anaesthetic. And to study those reports one must have a very clear mind, you see."

Ponzio spoke of himself with a strange scientific detachment.

Death By Installments

"I feel like I were meeting death by installments," he said. "That's a peculiar feeling, I do admit. But I think it is a rare luck to die piece by piece, with my soul and mind still alive and active."

Only last July Ponzio underwent an operation in which Prof. Achille Mario Dogliotti, the most famous surgeon in Italy, amputated his left arm and removed his collar bone.

Still, he considered himself lucky.

"When I felt the effects of first radium burns in 1920, I believed I had to live for only a few years", he said. "Here I am, instead, at 70, with my mind still fresh and active," he said. "I have to say I am living a surplus span of life."

slicked highways.

Power lines were ripped away and roofs were torn off throughout the area. In New York City, the winds hit 80 m.p.h. and two women were hurt when a water tower toppled on them from an office building roof.

In the cold front's wake, crisp fall weather spread from Texas to New England and from the northern Great Lakes to Georgia.

At Chicago, where the mercury hit 32 degreee today, it was the coldest weather since March 30. Texas had its first severe norther of the season, with the mercury slumping to 27 at Dalhart. Snow fell from Michigan and Ohio to Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Temperatures were in the 20s early today in parts of Illinois and Michigan and in the 30s and 40s in most sections from the Rocky Mountains to the Gulf of Mexico coastline.

However, temperatures were warming up rapidly in the Great Plains, shooting from 41 to 73 at Denver and from 44 to 69 at Bismarck, N.D. More warming was expected today for wide areas of the Midwest.

concrete evidence the department is trying to do something. He said the buying program might have a psychological value in its market effect and "could carry a certain amount of reassurance."

Been Under Pressure

Benson has been under pressure — from both politicians and farmers — to do something about the cost-price squeeze and sagging farm income.

Benson said at his news conference Monday "there is no evidence in the cabinet of lack of support for our farm program."

Last Friday, the department insisted there had been no decision to go into a pork buying program. The markets were not open Saturday and Sunday. No price changes were recorded. Yet, early Monday a late afternoon news conference was scheduled for the purpose of announcing such a program.

He evplained that the program was set up because receipts at Midwestern markets are heavy, prices are down, the school lunch program needs meat, and "we wanted to do the buying at an advantageous time." He also explained that the breeding season is about over.

Still Lonely

CHICAGO (UP) — Mrs. Lottie Ihlme, 52, won a divorce Monday on the grounds that her husband, whom she met through a "lonely hearts" magazine advertisement, continued to put wife wanted ads in the magazine after they were married.

Developing Race For Democrat Presidential Nomination Takes New Turn For Lausche

WASHINGTON (UP) — The developing race for the Democratic presidential nomination took a new turn today when a key southern Democrat came out for Ohio's five-term Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

Sen. Richard BB. Russel (D- Ga), leader of the southern Democratic bloc in the Senate and the South's own candidate for the presidential nomination at the 1952 convention, told reporters in New York that he has a "great admiration for Lausche," whom he described as a "middle of the road Democrat."

Russell added both Adlai E. Stevenson and New York Gov. Averell Harriman are "too far over to the left" to suit him. But he acknowledged that Stevenson seems to have a slight edge in the race for the nomination at present, because of his previous candidacy.

Lausche, who was also in New York today by apparent coincidence, told newsmen he was "appreciative, of course" of Russell's remarks but "beyond that I have no comment.'

Some Eye Johnson

Russell said he personally has "no intention of becoming a candidate in 1956.'

His endorsement of Lausche came as other conservative southerners were casting about for a candidate behind whom they can mass their considerable delegate strength at the 1956 Democratic convention.

Some powerful southerners are eyeing Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson as a possible nominee despite his heart attack. These Southerners admitted serious reservations, however, about whether Johnson's health would permit him to be a candidate.

Like President Eisenhower, Johnson suffered a heart attack this year—a moderately severe attack which kept him out of the Senate during the final month of Congress. He has since been reported making a good recovery.

Many politicians have assumed Mr. Eisenhower would remove himself as a candidate for re-election because of his attack. Those Democrats who would like to nominate Johnson must decide whether their party would risk nominating a candidate in similar circumstances even though the Texas senator is 18 years younger than Mr. Eisenhower.

Byrd Reported Eager

Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) was reported by friends to be among the Southerners eager to support Johnson if the Texan is available.

In 1952, Bryd refused to support Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, and thus helped throw Virginia's electoral votes to Mr. Eisenhower.

Southern interest in Johnson reflects in part a lack of enthusiasm for Stevenson, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn), who are now regarded as the most likely possibilities for the 1956 nomination. But from outside the South, Sen. Mike Mansfield (D - Mont) has talked of nominating Johnson.

If Johnson has any presidential ambitions, he has kept mum about them. Before his heart attack, he was figuring in speculation as a Democratic possibility for 1960.

Johnson caught national attention for the way he was putting his stamp on the record of the Democratic - controlled Congress during a Republican administration. He fought to unite the Democrats in Congress and to get congressional approval of what he regards as a "moderate" legislative program.

The Young Democratic Clubs of America, meanwhile, announced that Harriman and Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan will be principal speakers at its convention this year.

Neal Smith, president, said Stevenson and Kefauver also were invited to speak but were unable to fit it into their schedules.

He said Stevenson may be able to make an appearance during the convention, which will take place Nov. 30 through Dec. 3 at Oklahoma City, Okla.

Michigan State Coach Daugherty Has Stock Reply

By Ed SAINSBURY
United Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (UP) — Michigan State Coach Duffy Daugherty has a stock reply when fans or football experts question him about his fancy backs, Clarence Peaks, Walt Kowalczyk and Gerry Planutis.

"And don't forget Earl Morrall", he says. "He can run too, and he also passes."

So far Morrall has been the overlooked member of the Spartan backfield and as the games go by, with Michigan State beaten only by Michigan in five starts, the statistics are beginning to reflect the Muskegon, Mich., senior's importance.

Saturday, for instance, Morrall broke the game open against Illinois when he completed a 60-yard pass to end Dave Kaiser on the first play from scrimmage in the second half.

His Own Call

"That was Morrall's own call," Daugherty said. "And it was a very fine one, the turning point of the game.

"I don't know what else you'd expect a player to do. Against Illinois he averaged 48 yards on four punts, and he had one, a quick kick, that covered 67 yards.

"He threw two touchdown passes, intercepted an Illinois pass, and he ran well. He's the kind of quarterback that does everything well. He's our leading punter, and he never needs help in play selection. I don't think I send in two or three plays a game."

Against Illinois Morrall completed five of eight passes for 136 yards. He caught a pass from Peaks for four yards. He rushed five times for a net of 26 yards and he returned an intercepted pass 19 yards.

Morrall Somewhat Overshadowed

All in all, Morrall has been somewhat overshadowed among the Midwest quarterbacks by Notre Dame's Paul Hornung, Purdue's Len Dawson and Wisconsin's Jim Haluska.

But Morrall and Michigan State beat Hornung and Notre Dame and before the season ends, he'll get a chance against Haluska and Wisconsin this Saturday and against Dawson and Purdue Nov. 5.

If he holds his current form and the sophomore-loaded Spartans keep rolling, he'll probably end up as the all Big Ten signal caller and he might even get a nod at All-American.

Because as Daugherty says, 'Don't forget Morrall."

Clark Griffith Battles For Life

WASHINGTON (UP — Clark Griffith, 85-year-old owner of the Washington baseball club, fought today to overcome a new complication in his already critical illness.

His physician, Dr. George Resta, reported late Monday night that Griffith, baseball's beloved "Old Fox," had developed a congestion of the lungs. Earlier reports said he showed some improvement and that chances for survival were "somewhat brighter."

Griffith, cofounder of the American League, entered Georgetown Hospital last Wednesday for treatment of neuritis. Sunday he developed a serious stomach hemhorrage.

Resta's latest report said Griffith's stomach condition had "improved a bit" but that he had developed some congestion of the lungs. Resta said his overall condition was about the same.

Griffith has given 69 years of his life to baseball. As player, manager and owner, he fought to make it the great national pastime. The practice of having the President toss out the "first ball" of the season came about at Griffith's urging.

Known as a shrewd trader and manager in his later career, it is sometimes forgotten that Griffith was one of tne game's top pitchers.

In 1895 he revolutionized baseball by introducing the "screw ball" pitch. In 17 seasons beginning in 1891, he won 237 games and lost 149.

Griffith piloted the Washington Nats to American League pennants in 1924, 1925 and 1933. The Nats won the World Series in 1924 by defeating the New York Giants.

Marshall Paces American Hockey League Scoring

NEW YORK (UP) — Willie Marshall, performing for the National Hockey League's Toronto Maple Leafs for the past week, continued to pace the American Hockey League scoring race in three offensive departments.

Marshall, recalled from Pittsburgh on the strength of a sensational four game 15-point scoring spree, retained first place in total points and playmaking with 15 points and nine assists, but had to share the goals-scored leadership with tiny Camille Henry of Providence, each having six.

Zellio Toppazzini of Providence placed second in total points with 13 while Henry, Jackie Gordon of Cleveland and Al Dewsbury of Buffalo rounded out the top five with 10 points each.

Pittsburgh's Gil Mayer led the goal tenders with seven goals allowed in three games for a 2.33 average.

Pair Of Playmaking Centers Top Hockey League Scoring Race

MONTREAL (UP) — Dave Creighton of the New York Rangers and Jean Beliveau of the Montreal Canadiens, a pair of playmaking centers, topped the National Hockey League scoring race today with 10 points apiece.

Creighton, an off-season addition to the New York lineup, had three goals and seven assists while Beliveau had two goals and eight assists, also tops in the league.

Ron Murphy, another Ranger, and Gordie Howe of Detroit, last week's leader, were a point off the pace. Murphy got his nine points on six goals and three assists while Howe, a four time scoring champ had one less goal and one more assist.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal and Ted Lindsay of Detroit, a pair of veteran performers, were tied for fifth place with eight points. Richard and Murphy were the top goal-getters with six.

Montreal's Dickie Moore, Bert Olmstead and Doug Harvey, Alex Delvecchio of Detroit and Bill Gadsby of New York were bunched in seventh place, three points behind the leaders.

Jacques Plante of Montreal posted his third shutout of the season last week to retain his lead over the league netminders. The slim backstop has allowed only eight goals in seven games for a 1.14 mark.

Boston's Terry Sawchuck trailed Plante with a 1.71 average, with rookie Glenn Hall of Detroit a close third with 1.86.

Lightburn Scores Win Over Khalfi

NEW YORK (UP)—Promoter Tex Sullivan called young Ludwig Lightburn of British Honduras "the fastest lightweight in the world" today as he set Nov. 28 for his next television fight at St. Nicholas Arena.

Because of unranked Lightburn's lopsided TV victory over rugged Hocine Khalfi of Algeria at St. Nick's Monday night, Sullivan said the Nov. 28th opponent must be a ranking contender, preferably Cisco Andrade or Johnny Gonsalves.

But the stream - lined, 20-year-old Negro from the mahogany forests of Honduras said, "That Andrade feller won't fight me. I chased him for 11 months in Calrnia, and then had togo texigtobo ifornia, and then had to go to Mexico to get bouts." Andrade of Compton, Calif., is ranked fifth.

The other prospective opponent, Gonsalves of Oakland, Calif., is rated ninth. He fights Lulu Perez of Brooklyn at Madison Square Garden riday night.

Lightburn favored 3-1, scaled 138¾ pounds to Khalfi's 136½ as he breezed to an 8-2, 8-2, 8-1 decision. It was his 35th victory in 41 fights.

Amazingly fast Ludwig battered Hocine with a mixed attack of left jabs, combination hooks and straight shots that had him bleeding from the nose in the second round and gashed above and beneath his left eye in the sixth.

Joe. L. Brown General Manager Of The Pirates

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Joe L. Brown, 37, who began his big time baseball apprenticeship as a teenager 18 years ago, today was named general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, filling the job vacated by Branch Rickey Sr.

John Galbreath, president of the Pittsburgh club, said Rickey, general manager of the Pirates for the last five seasons at $100,000 a year, would remain with the club as an advisor.

Rickey will "consult with the general manager and officials of the club on business problems and problems of the farm system," Galbreath said. He said Rickey, acknowledged father of the farm system in major league baseball, also would be a director of the Pittsburgh club.

The appointment of Brown, son of comedian Joe E. Brown, and the clarification of Rickey's future status with the Pirates were announced following a morning conference between Galbreath, Vice President Thomas P. Johnson, Galbreath's son Dan, and Rickey himself.

Brown has been with the Pirate organization for six years. He spent two seasons as general manager of the Waco, Tex., farm team, then four years as president and general manager of the New Orleans Pelicans in the Southern Association, and moved to the front office in Pittsburgh last spring.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UP) — Dr. O.B. Murphy, team physician for the University of Kentucky football team, said today guard Bob Collier actually hurt a nerve near the end of Saturday's game with Florida and wasn't faking.

Kentucky Coach Blanton Collier meanwhile said he had telephoned Florida Coach Bob Woodruff, who had hinted that the Kentucky coaching staff had signaled from the sidelines for someone to fake an injury to permit quarterback John Huhes the chance to reenter the game and kick the field goal that gave the Wildcats a 10-7 Southeastern Conference win.

East Chicago Roosevelt Will Honor Its Coaches

EAST CHICAGO, Ind. (UP)—East Chicago Roosevelt, perennially one of Indiana's top high school football schools, will roll out the carpet Thursday to honor coaches Pete Rucinski and Ernie Miller.

"Pete and Ernie Night" before the Hobart game marks the "official" observance of the coaches' 125th victory since taking over the Rough Rider reigns in 1937.

Whiting became Roosevelt's 125th victim in the Rucinski-Miller era last Friday, 34-0.

Rucinski, the head coach, is a Roosevelt graduate. Line coach Miller graduated from city rival Washington. Together, they have compiled the following record at Roosevelt:

125 victories, 38 losses, 3 ties.

Eight conference titles, five "mythical" state titles.

Currently, Roosevelt, with an eight-game winning streak, six this season, tops the United Press Coaches Poll and has cinched at least a tie for the West NIHSC championship.

The ceremony includes appearances by mayor Walter Jeorse and school officials.

There Is Depression In Counterfeiting Business In Indiana

By ROBERT V. HUDSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)There is a depression in the counterfeiting business in Indiana.

"There has been no active passing of counterfeit notes in the last six months," said George Loy, chief of the Secret Service office for Indiana. However, that is like saying there have been no fires—one could start any minute.

Loy warned Hoosier merchants the counterfeit bill passing business is expected to pick up around Thanksgiving and Christmas.

But in the last few months Secret Service agents discovered only about $50 counterfeit money a month. Agents saw about $1,000 counterfeited in the last year, while they had been getting about $5,000 a year, Loy said.

Most of these were straggler notes from big passes in other areas. The stragglers usually are passed by innocent persons.

Get Tough Terms

"When a real passer comes through you always know it," Loy said. A real passer unloads a deluge of counterfeit bills.

Loy gave two principal reasons for the recent depression. One is the enforcement attitude of Hoosier federal judges and U.S. attorneys He said counterfeiters in Indiana have been sentenced to from three to 10 years.

"This discourages the boys a little," Loy said.

Another reason is the recent imprisonment of a counterfeit note wholesaler on a narcotics charge. Loy said the man passed several thousand dollars in counterfeit bills in the last few years, but the Secret Service could not get positive proof.

Several ex-convicts told agents they bought notes from the man, but they refused to testify in court. However, they would have made poor witnesses in federal court because of their backgrounds, Loy said.

Quite a few check forgers and counterfeiters use narcotics, he said, because they need from 15 to $30 a day to buy "junk."

Coin Plant Raided

Secret Service agents have not raided a counterfeit note manufacturing plant since the late 1940s. Two presses and a three or four man gang were nabbed at Fort Wayne with some of the $20 bills they were passing, Loy said.

About three years ago a coin plant producing dimes, quarters, and half dollars was raided and two defendants arrested.

Indiana seems to be the habitat of passers of mostly $10 and $20 bills.

Another gimmick is the split bill, a poor relation to the counterfeit. About two years ago, Loy recalled, split $1 and $5 bills floated around South Bend.

The veteran Secret Service agent said Indiana ranked among the top 10 states in the amount of counterfeit money passed.

Most house plants do best when the soil is watered thoroughly and then allowed to become dry but not baked or crumbly before the next watering.

Farmers Urged To Use Caution Around Pickers

LAFAYETTE: — As Hoosier farmers are picking the fall corn harvest some may think; "Picker accidents can happen to others but not to me."

F. R. Willsey, farm safety specialist at Purdue University, says anyone may be a picker victim unless proper precautions are followed.

Willsey cites the examples of Harold Brune, Hancock county, who said, "When I heard of a neighbor's accident in a picker, I realized the seriousness of it but the thought never occurred to me that I might sometime be in the same situation. It seemed like it was the other fellow rather than me."

But Brune did become the "other fellow" in a picker accident and lost his right hand two inches above the wrist.

"I was having troubles with the picker clogging so I hopped off the tractor, leaving it running full throttle without shutting off the picker, and attempted to clean out the right hand snapping roll. I practically had the job done when I suddenly realized I was in the corn picker."

Russel Ritchie, a farmer near Stockwell who also lost his right hand in a picker accident, says "I would say to the next guy not to try to unclog the picker while its running. Better take a little more time and shut the thing off before you get to monkeying with it because it will get you."

In order to learn more about causes and effects of picker accidents, Willsey contacted a number of victims throughout the state. Practically all the men agreed that they were caught in the picker so fast they did not know just how they were trapped.

Farmers Send Big Run Of Hogs To Market Today

CHICAGO (UP) — Farmers sent the biggest runs of hogs to market in 10 months today on the heels of an announcement that the government will buy surplus pork.

Shipments to the 12 major livestock centers totaled 101,600 hogs, heaviest run since last Jan. 3, and the big supply sent opening prices 50 cents per hundred pounds lower.

The heavy run discouraged bidding and opening sales of 190 to 230-pound barrows and gilts at Chicago were 50 cents lower at $13.25 to $13.50.

The 11-market supply compared with 91,000 at 12 markets a week ago. The Chicago Stockyards received 20,000 hogs, compared with 13,000 a week ago.

The Indianapolis market has been shut down this week by a strike of livestock handlers.

Midwest Memos

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)— Neither side gave an inch Monday in efforts to settle a strike which has closed the stockyards here. The walkout was called by the CIO United Packinghouse Workers in a dispute over a wage demand.

FORT DODGE, Iowa (UP) — Automobile safety belts were credited with sparing serious injury to Sen. Thomas E. Martin of Iowa and his wife. The Martin car missed a curve and rolled over south of here Monday night.

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—Siamese twin girls, born here Sunday, died at 8:30 p.m. Monday at Madison General Hospital.

Doctors said the children were joined at the abdomen and had but one heart. They weighed about 9 pounds together.

The parents have one other, normal child. The parents names were withheld.

Police Chief Tries To Catch His Enemy

GRINNELL, Iowa (UP)—Police Chief Waldo E. Johnson called on all his crime-fighting experience today to catch the unknown enemy who is waging a murderous vendetta against his own family.

The assailant has set fire to the bed of Johnson's son while the 7-year-old boy was sleeping in it and knocked his wife unconscious with an ax.

Johnson admitted he has no idea of the identity of the prowler who has twice invaded his home.

But he assumed the attacker was an unbalanced man who had a personal reason for hating him. And he relied on "routine police methods" to catch his enemy before he strikes again.

Telephones After Attacks

Both attacks occurred Friday and were punctuated by a mysterious telephone call asking about the condition of the chief's son.

At about 2 a.m. Friday, Johnson and his wife were awakened by the screams of their son, James. They rushed to his room and found his bed in flames.

Johnson snatched up his son, who had suffered minor foot burns. Then the police chief noticed that the front door of his home was open.

Later that day, when Mrs. Johnson and the boy were alone in the house, the telephone rang. Mrs. Johnson picked up the receiver and a man asked about the boy's condition. When she asked who was calling, the man hung up.

Mrs. Johnson then drove her son to school and the prowler was waiting for her when she returned. As she entered the kitchen, someone struck her from behind with an ax.

Finds Bloody Ax

Recovering consciousness, she called her husband. Johnson rushed home to find a blood-stained ax, which he owned, lying on the kitchen floor. A chair was overturned and the back door was open. There were no other clues.

Mrs. Johnson had suffered superficial cuts and a bruise behind her right ear. Both she and her son were in good condition and Johnson said today they had overcome their initial fright.

In fact, the Johnson family set an example of calmness to the rest of the town. The police chief scorned to ask police protection from his own force. But other townspeople were careful to lock their doors at night.

Holdup Men Left Holding The Bag

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Bank teller Leonard S. Pirri, 50, left two holdup men holding the wrong bag Monday.

Pirri said the two approached him as he left his car during the noon hour and walked toward the bank. After a brief struggle, the men grabbed the bag he was carrying and fled.

The bag contained the remains of his lunch, Pirri said.

Police To Give Lie Tests To Two 'Hot Suspects'

Continue Hunt For Killers Of Three Young Boys

CHICAGO (UP) — Police scheduled lie detector tests for two "hot suspects" today and grilled a parade of known sex perverts in their dogged hunt for the killers of three young boys.

The lie tests were planned for a 26-year-old man with a sex record involving young boys and for a 23-year-old male friend. A police spokesman called them "the hottest suspects thus far."

The suspects were picked up in a giant roundup of men with sex records. It was then discovered that the two friends owned cars similar to ones spotted in a forest preserve ashort time before the boys' naked bodies were found stacked in a nearby ditch last Tuesday.

Was In Area

Also, the 26-year-old man n admitted being in the northwest side area where Robert Peterson, 13, John Schuessler, 13, and his 11-year-old brother, Anton, are believed to have been slain on the night of Oct. 16, police said.

The older man attended the Schuessler boys' wake, even though he professed not to know them, and his friend visited the woodland lot where the bodies were found, officers reported.

Despite the new lead, top police officers for the first time voiced rank pessimism about prospects for an early solution.

The boys' stricken fathers have left their jobs to join the manhunt and reward money approaches the $30,000 mark. But the week-long investigation has failed to turn up a single tangible clue.

Lt. Patrick Deeley, in charge of a 52-man special detective unit assigned to the case, glumly admitted that so far nothing had come of it.

Alibis Of A Sort

Even the two men scheduled for lie tests today had alibis of a sort, police said.

Meanwhile, Coroner's pathologist Jerry Kearns provided a new insight into the case with a report that only two or more "powerful sadists" could have beaten the boys so brutally.

Bobby Peterson was killed by a vicious judo blow to his Adam's apple, instead of being strangled as previously reported, Kearns said. The Schuessler boys were strangled—John by a noose and Anton in some other fashion.

Kearns concluded that the boys were the victim of adult sadists—men who derive pleasure from inflicting pain.

A new clothes line will be softer and more durable if it is boiled in soapy water for five minutes before it is put up.

Consumers Look To SteelCompany For Some Clues

As To What The Future Holds

NEW YORK (UP) — Steel consumers across the nation focused their attention on big U.S. Steel Corp. today for some clues as to what the future holds.

Key questions which business men would like to have answered include: "What are the prospects for getting more steel?" And "Is another price increase in the offing."

Both topics were on the agenda for "Big Steel" Chairman Roger Blough's press conference, scheduled for immediately after the close of trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Blough also will report the steel giant's net income and operating statistics for the third quarter and first nine months of this year. There was speculation in Wall Street that U. S. Steel might boost its dividend from the current 50-cent quarterly rate.

Earnings reported recently by such steel behemoths as Republic, Jones & Laughling and Youngstown. Sheet & Tube indicate this is going to be a banner profit year for the dynamic steel industry.

Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's No. 2 producer, will release its report Thursday. Wall Street expects Bessie to splits its stock.

The booming industry, its furnaces spewing steel at a record-breaking clip, has been hard pressed to meet consumer demands. The auto and construction industries have led the clamor for more steel.

Another round of expansion is in the works as harried steel officials map plans for boosting production. Top industry spokesmen have hinted strongly of another price increase to help finance this growth.

Steel firms raised prices an average $7.35 a ton in July to offset higher wage costs. There have been subsequent increases on specific products.

C. M. White, president of third place Republic Steel, said last week "steel prices are going up."

"They have to," he explained, "if the industry is to expand. And if we don't expand, the government will have to step in because the country needs more steel"

Production for the first nine months of this year approximated 87 million tons — a new peak. The experts now are talking about a 115 million ton year in 1955. That would compare with 88,300,000 tons in 1954 and 111,600,000 tons in 1953, the previous record year.

The steel industry is turning out a great deal more steel this year to make automobiles, refrigerators, skyscrapers and hairpins than it ever turned out for guns, tanks and battleships.

Democratic Senators Accept Apology By Defense Department

WASHINGTON (UP) — Two Democratic senators today accepted the Defense Department's apology for erroneously reporting that they requested special plush air transportation from Europe.

Sens. John L. McClellan (D-Ark) and John C. Stennis (D-Miss) said in separate statements that—barring further developments—the highly publicized incident is closed.

Monday night, the department publicly apologized for asserting that the senators requested a special plane to fly them home at a cost of $10,000 from Spain. At the same time the Air Force announced it was cancelling another $10,000 European flight. It did so at the request of Sen. Dennis Chavez (D-NM), the third senator involved in the controversy.

"A review of this matter," the department said, "has established the fact that Sens. McClellan and Stennis did not request, nor were they made aware that the Air Force planned to fly special mission aircraft to Madrid for their return."

"It is regretted that the incident caused embarrassment to the senators," the statement said.

McClellan, advised of he department's apology, commented that "It was certainly the least that they should have done to straighten it out."

Sennis said, "I was sure that they would make such a statement when they got the facts. We were shocked and greatly surprised. I appreciate their statement after developing the full details."

Gas Fire Threatens To Destroy Small Texas Oil Town

HAWKINS, Tex. (UP)—A raging gas fire shooting flames 100 feet into the air and roaring like a "dozen tornadoes" threatened to destroy this small east Texas oil town today.

Two different persons reported it appeared the fire was getting worse. Chief of Police Bill Hall, who lives a block from the raging well, said the furor has begun "popping and jarring" his house.

He said it hadn't done that when the fire first started Monday night. Lloyd R. Dowd of the Hawkins Telephone Co. said it appeared the flames were gaining in intensity and that the fire was getting larger at the base.

Four veteran oil well fire fighters arrived from Houston, but their equipment wasn't expected before noon and there was little they could do until the equipment arrived.

The firefighters probably will try to blow the well out with nitroglycerin, but there was no assurance they would succeed.

Thousands In Chicago Join Hunt For Sadistic Killers Of Three Boys

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—Thousands of school children, utility workers and county employes today joined the hunt for the sadistic killers of three young boys.

Police enlisted the aid of rank and file Chicagoans with an admission that the killers' trail has grown cold and the are starting their investigation over again, practically from scratch.

Reward money of more than $30,000 awaits whoever can put his finger on the slayers of three "wonderful" boys, Robert Petreson, 13, John Schuessler, 13, and his 11-year-old brother, Anton.

A task force of officers was assigned to interview about 25,000 high school students in the Northwest Side area where the boys were killed on the night of Oct. 16. The youngsters were asked to tell police of any sex deviates they may have encountered within recent months.

10,000 Join Search

Meanwhile, 10,000 telephone company installers and linemen and other utility employes were instructed to look for the boys' clothing, which was stripped from their bodies after their murder and has not been found.

In another development, police announced that a Chicagoan picked up in Hastings, Minn., will be questioned about the triple slaying. The man, who was picked up in connection with a burglary, rates as a "logical suspect" in the Chicago manhunt because he disappeared from his home here on the night of the murder and had not been heard from until he turned up at Hastings.

The renewed search for the clothes and the re-questioning of a 33-year-old golf caddy were evidence of police determination to go back to the very beginning of their nine-day-old manhunt.

The caddy, Charles Dahlquist, picked up earlier and released, was brought in again late Tuesday when a couple identified him as the man they saw with Anton Schuessler last July in the same woods where the bodies were found.

Dahlquist was given a lie detector test, his second, and police

Diem Proclaims Forming Of Viet Nam Republic

Ending Centuries Of Royal Rule

SAIGON, Indochina (UP)—President Ngo Dinh Diem officially proclaimed formation of the Viet Nam republic at noon today, ending centuries of royal rule.

Thousands of Vietnamese residents streamed into Saigon from the outlying rice country for the ceremony that marked the main milestone in Diem's determined fight to win independence for this onetime French colony.

The crowds, moving in trucks and on foot, massed in the center of the city to hear Diem read his proclamation from the balcony of Independence Palace, the onetime residence of the French governors.

"I solemnly proclaim the state of Viet Nam is now a republic following the will of the Viet Nam expressed in the vote of Oct. 23," Diem said.

In that referendum the residents of this Indochina state voted overwhelmingly to end the long reign of absentee Emperor Bao Dai, the playboy head of state who spent his time on the French Riviera.

An official government announcement said Diem had won 98 per cent of the votes cast in the referendum, polling 5,721,735 to 63,017 for Bao Dai, the former emperor of the Kingdom of Annam.

Southern Democrat Thinks Dark Horse May Win Democratic Presidential Nomination

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss) said today he thinks there is a good chance that a "dark horse" may win the Democratic presidential nomination next year.

This comment to a reporter reflected a belief among many Democrats, particularly in the South, that the nomination may well go to someone other than the three now considered the strongest candidates.

These three are Adlai E. Stevenson, 1952 nominee, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), Mr. Southern Democrat in the Senate, suggested to reporters Tuesday that Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio was one "dark horse" possibility. He denied that he was launching a boom for Lausche or that he was ready yet to throw his support to any candidate.

Middle Of Road

Russell did say that Lausche is regarded in the South as a "middle of the roader" whereas other candidates are viewed as "a little far to the left." he also said he thinks Lausche would be a "very strong candidate' if nominated.

"Naturally, I would prefer a middle of the road candidate," he said.

Stennis declined to comment on Lausche or other potential Democratic standard bearers but said he believes "that there is a good

Red China Claims The Portuguese Colony Of Macao

Increases Possibility They May Next Claim Hong Kong

HONG KONG (UP)—Communist China laid claim today to the 400-year old Portuguese colony of Macao and warned that Portugal's "continued occupation" of the Chinese coastal territory can no longer be tolerated.

Red Chinese propaganda organs distributed and broadcast the claim and warning. They startled both Western and Chinese circles here and in Macao and were seen as the possible opening shot in a Communist campaign against the Portuguese colony.

It immediately increased the possibility that the Communists may next claim the British crown colony of Hong Kong.

The Communists also warned they may take Macao back with support from India. Peiping said Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India supported their claim and "even told the Indian parliament on Sept. 17 that Macao should be returned to China as a matter of course."

Peiping cited Red China's support of Indian demands for an end to Portuguese control of the enclaves of Goa, Die and Daman. Portugal's continued rule over the enclaves in India, Peiping said, "constitutes an intolerable insult to the Chinese people, to the Indian people, and to all Asian people."

Macao is the oldest permanent European settlement in China. The colony includes three islands on the coast of southern Kwangtung province about 50 miles across the Pearl River estuary from the British colony of Hong Kong. It has a population of about 400,000, mostly chinese.

New Aircraft May Be Mistaken As Flying Saucer

Can Zoom Straight Up From Ground

WASHINGTON UP)—The Air Force will send up at any time now radical new aircraft sure to be mistaken for flying saucers.

One day soon you may see a flame spouting jet craft zoom straight up from the ground and dart away at supersonic speed. It may be shaped like a disc or a triangle.

But it won't be a flying saucer—one of those weird objects that have been reported dancing across the skies for the past eight years.

The Air Force said in an exhaustive report Tuesday night that flying saucers are the bunk. The number that cannot be logically explained is approaching the vanishing point, the service said in making public a study of 5,000 saucer sightings since mid-1947.

Illusion Of Saucers

At the same time the Air Force took some of the wraps from aircraft that "will be a new phenomenon in our skies and under certain conditions could give the illusion of the so-called flying saucer."

Apprehensive about public reaction, Air Secretary Donald A. Quarles said the new planes will not be "supra - natural or mysterious." They will be manned, if manned at all, by "normal" earthmen. They will obey natural laws. The public will be informed about them within security limits.

Two of the new planes are the Ryan vertical take-off and landing jet and the disc - shaped jet built by Avro of Canada. The Ryan plane, having delta or triangular wing, is due to fly at any time from Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. The Avro plane, long dubbed a flying saucer, is under development and no flight time is known.

No Runways Used

Quarles emphasized that other countries also can develop such planes, distinguished chiefly by their ability to rise and land without runways.

As for those mysterious saucers, the Air Force said in a 316-page scientific study that "no evidence" of the existence of such things was found. Investigating methods are so good now, it said, that only three percent of this year's sightings are unexplained.

Quarles said that no objects like those popularly called saucers have flown over this country. None of the so - called saucers "were in fact aircraft or foreign origin." He was sure the unknown three percent were conventional phenomena or illusuions.

Meeting Of Society Of Public Accountants

The Fort Wayne Chapter of the Indiana Society of Public Accountants met at the Thirty Club Monday. Twenty-eight members from Fort Wayne, Kendallville, Warsaw and Columbia City attended.

J. B. Brownlee gave an illustrated talk on tax research. Plans were also completed for the Federal Tax Seminar, which is to be held under the auspices of the Indiana Society of Public Accountants on November 16, 17 and 18 at the Colonial Hotel in Indianapolis.

In past years this seminar has been available only to members of the Indiana Society. However, due to the success of the seminar held by the Indiana Society in November of last year, and the fact that highly qualified tax instructors from Northwestern University were acquired to conduct the seminar, numerous requests have been received from individuals, who are non-members, for permission to attend the seminar to be held this November. In view of these requests the Indiana Society has decided to open the seminar to any accountants, whether in public or private practice, attorneys and business men who wish to attend.

President Issues Statement On Geneva Meeting

Commends To Soviets The Western Plan

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower predicted hopefully from his sick bed today that the Russians in the Big Four foreign ministers meeting which opens at Geneva Thursday would supply evidence of a "genuine spirit" for peace.

In a public statement, he commended to the Soviets the Western three-power plan for European security which Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will present to the Big Four.

The so-called package plan designed to lead to German re-unification was approved by the President in a hospital bedside conference with Dulles last week, before the secretary left for Europe.

The President, in his public statement from Fitsimmons Army Hospital where he is recovering from a Sept. 24 heart attack, said the Western proposals "will be designed to promote a peace of justice, with increased security and well-being for all."

"They will reflect," he said, a

School Alley To Become A One-Way Drive

At the request of the city schools, the city council last night approved making the school alley on the south side of the high school building a one-way drive.

As soon as steam line construction across the alley is completed to connect the heating system for the high school, West Ward, and band buildings with the schools' heating plant, signs will be erected to make the alley traffic all westbound.

During the council meeting last night, attended by all members of the council and Mayor Thomas H. Hood, instructions were given City Clerk Franklin Dillman to contact Shambaugh & Sons, a Fort Wayne plumbing and heating firm, to determine when work will commence on the $10,000 contract it received in September to install an oil-fired boiler and metal stack in the city hall. This will not be required until the fall of 1956 when city heat no longer will be available from the municipal plant.

Date of the next city council session was fixed for Nov. 15. The regularly scheduled session Nov. 8 was postponed one week since this is the date of the city election and the council chambers will be used as a precinct voting place. Since bids will be received at the next meeting of the council on purchase of a water tower, it was believed that there would not be sufficient space to hold the session in the mayor's office.

Honeymooners Rescued After Two-Day Ordeal

In Florida Straits Where Plane Crashed

By O. MACK WHITE
United Press Staff Correspondent

MIAMI (UP) — A honeymooning couple joked bravely today about their fears of thirst and starvation during a two-day survival ordeal on a tiny reef in the Florida Straits where their small plane had crash-landed.

Joe K. Richards, 32, and his 19-year old bride, Laura, were plucked from the narrow, barren reef known as North Elbow Cay by the Coast Guard cutter, Ariadne and brought to Miami Tuesday night.

Richards, an atomic engineer from Portsmouth, Ohio, said although they never lost hope of rescue the cold nights and scarcity of their food and water made it a "harrowing experience."

Malt Tablets Diet

Lt. Cmdr S. P. Berryman, skipper of the Ariadne, said he found them tired, hungry, thirsty and cold after subsisting on malt tablets and a four ounce daily water ration.

The couple married Oct. 6 at Wellston, Ohio, crash - landed on the reef Sunday afternoon on a flight to Key West from Havana, Cuba. They were sighted by a search plane Tuesday.

"I had often told my wife I would like to be stranded with her on a deserted island but I hadn't planned on it exactly this way," Richards said when the cutter docked after a nine hour trip to Miami.

Richards, a World War II pilot, said his attractive wife was "wonderful" throughout the experience.

"She stood up better under the circumstances than a lot of men I

Loss Of Tires Apparently Not Work Of Prankster

Removal of the wheels and white sidewall tires from the new Oldsmobile of Mrs. Freda Shirey, R 5, Warsaw, while the vehicle was on the parking lot of the Columbia Products Division of the Weatherhead Company, today did not appear to be the work of pranksters.

The theft occurred Monday night while Mrs. Shirey was working at the plant between 4 p.m. and 1 a.m. The loss was discovered when the Warsaw woman went to her car to drive home. The vehicle was found to be resting on cement blocks removed from a pile of blocks about 300 feet from the parking place.

Had the wheels and tires been removed by someone as a practical joke, it is believed that they would have been returned to the owner by this time.

11,000 Members Of UEW Join CIO In Their Walkout

Against Westinghouse Jumping To 55,000 The Number On Strike

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Some 11,000 members of the independent United Electrical Workers Union joined CIO International Union of Electrical Workers in a strike against the Westinghouse Electric Corp. today, jumping to 55,000 the number of employes on strike in a nation-wide walkout.

The UE members walked out at 10 plants at midnight after union officials accused the company of demanding a "five-year blackout on collective bargaining." Company spokesmen said union members began picketing plants here and at Derry, Pa., at the strike deadline.

When the company - wide strike call came, about 7,000 UE members already were off the job at South Philadelphia and Jersey City, N.J., plants. They had walked out Oct. 14 in protest against an alleged company plan to cut wages, reclassify jobs and demand incentive work at day work rates.

James J. Matles, UE director of organization who issued the strike call Tuesday said Westinghouse had refused "to move from its demand for a five-year blackout on collective bargaining with a three per cent wage increase."

The move came 10 days after the CIO union pulled its 44,000 members out of 30 company plants also as a result of a wage dispute Both unions had rejected a company offer of a five-year contract which graduated annual pay increases totaling 23½ cents an hour.

The unions have demanded one-year contracts with a 15-cent hourly pay boost A company time - study program also had been a subject of the negotiations.

Senate Agriculture Committee Today Opens Hearings On Government Farm Price Props

By BERNARD BRENNER
United Press Staff Correspondent

DES MOINES (UP)—The Senate Agriculture Committee opened hearings on government farm price props in this farm belt capital today with a warning from one of its own members that farmers are "hopelessly divided" over the issue.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, a Republican from the farm belt state of South Dakota, added that the committee itself is hopelessly split between advocates of the administration's flexible farm support program and of the old Democratic program of high, rigid supports.

"But there are other answers and we must find them," Mundt told an audience of Des Moines businessmen and Iowa farm leaders at a dinner Tuesday night.

Today's hearing is the third in a series scheduled by the Senate committee, which plans to write new farm support legislation in January. At Worthington, Minn., Tuesday, the senators heard an excited audience cheer demands for the removal of Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson and a return to high supports on hogs and other farm products.

Iowa Shows Split

Low hog prices have also stirred up farmer unrest in this state, where the newly-organized National Farm Organization has called for Benson's resignation and asked for a government floor under hog prices. But the administration farm program also has staunch defenders in Iowa in the leaders of the powerful Farm Bureau Federation.

Mundt's mention of "other answers" to the politically touchy problem of farm income was a reference to his earlier statement that a solution might be found in GENEVA (UP)—The Big Four foreign ministers headed for Geneva today in a new search for a cold war settlement against a background of growing crisis in the Middle East.

Soviet Foreign Minister V.M. Molotov was the first to arrive. In a planeside statement, he said Russia is "inspired by a sincere desire to end the cold war."

But, even as he spoke, America's John Foster Dulles, Britain's Harold MacMillan and France's Antoine Pinay were busy with last-minute conferences in Paris to consider the threat of growing Russian influence in the Mid-East.

Auto Hits Tree; Richey Brothers Slightly Injured

Frederick J. Richey Jr., 17, and his 15-year-old brother, Eugene, escaped serious injury about 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, but the car the former was driving became a total loss when it struck a tree 100 feet east of the Elm and Spencer street intersection.

The Richey brothers, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Fred P. Richey, 813 South Whitley street, were taken to the Whitley County Hospital in a J. A. DeMoney and Son ambuulance. The elder Richey boy, spending a 10-day leave from the U.S. Army here with his parents, suffered an injured left knee and thigh and suffered from shock. He was released from the hospital today. The younger brother, Eugene, received scratches to his knees and bruises. He was dismissed from the hospital after receiving treatment.

The older brother was operating his father's car, a 1949 Ford coach, south on Elm street. At Spencer street he attempted to turn east and the wheels struck loose gravel alongside the blacktop pavement. The driver lost control of his car and it struck a tree about 100 feet east of the intersection, along the south side of Spencer street.

The accident was investigated by Morris Carlile of the city police department.

Steel Industry Sees Record-Breaking Production In '55

NEW YORK (UP) — Roger M. Blough, chairman of U. S. Steel Corp., says 1955 will see record-breaking production in the steel industry, but no general price increase.

Blough made his forecast Tuesday after annoucing "Big Steel's" record third quarter earnings. Company directors previously had increased the firm's common stock dividend.

Blough said 1955 production would break all previous records in the industry's history. He foresaw no general price boost in the near future although the price of certain specific products might go up.

However, Blough said "a vital need" for expanded production facilities might require financing through higher prices unless the government resumes sufficient depreciation allowances. Federal authorities recently curtailed the program of rapid depreciation for new steel producing installations.

Blough said the 1955 output for the nation's steel mills would run three million to four million tons above the previous record of 111,-600,000 tons set in 1953.

He anticipated no letup in steel demand (now a record) at least through the first quarter of 1955. He would make no comment beyond that point.

The dividend was boosted by 15 cents to 65 cents a share. That will bring dividends for 1955 to $2.15 a share on common.

In the nine - month period, U.S. Steel sold $3,003,965,411 of its products, the first time sales for that period have exceeded the three-billion-dollar mark.

Sales for the third quarter set a new high for that quarter at $1,-035,804,426. This compared with $769,632,110 a year ago.

Net income for the giant corporation, largest steel maker in the world, totaled $89,628,983 for the third quarter. That equaled $1.55 a share on common stock, and brought net for the nine months to $267,506,943, or $4.65 a share.

Suit Filed In Court To Terminate Contract

Albert Leutz and Pearl Leutz have filed a complaint against Albert DeMeerleer to terminate contract for injunction in the circuit court. Bloom and Bloom are representing the plaintiffs.

The complaint states that the parties entered into a contract on July 9, 1953 whereby the defendants purchased from the plaintiffs 100 shares of capital stock, valued at $14,500, of Tri Lake Inn, Inc., and as a result the defendants took Beechwood Hotel situated on the south shore of Shriner Lake.

The complaint also states that the defendants have failed to operate and manage the business and are endangering the beverage license and dancing permits. The plaintiffs relate that the Indiana Alcoholic Beverage Commission has extended the license from August 23, on the condition that the defendants give up the management of the business within 90 days.

The plaintiffs ask that the shares of stock be returned to them and the contract be terminated.

"Who Relieves Who In America?"

The federal disaster relief program that came out of the crisis brought on by the recent floods, leaves no doubt that federal aid of this type is here to stay. The $100,000,000 that is to be dispensed by Washington is not a great deal of money in a great, wealthy nation such as ours, but it is a symbol of something that every American citizen should understand. It is no cause for anyone to feel grateful to the federal government. Naturally the distressed people who receive this money are going to feel grateful to somebody and it is important that they feel grateful to the people who deserve it.

The important fact to remember is that the federal government is only the dispenser, the distributor, of these gifts. Actually they came out of the pockets of the American people as a whole. No government has any money of its own ....

In actual practice, federal disaster aid makes American into one vast, mutual aid society. This is new in only one way; it is national instead of local. America has always taken care of its disaster victims, but the relief was given at the community or state level.

Two dangers are involved in federal aid of any kind. First is the problem of misdirected gratitude on the part of the beneficiaries....

Second is its effect upon the traditional self-reliance and self-sufficiency of the American family and the American community. It is easier to run to Washington for help than it is to help one's self. These two dangers combined, add up to a third one — the steady in crease of centralized functions in Washington which could change the basic nature of America. When Benjamin Franklin was asked what kind of government the new Constitution gave the American people, he answered: "A Republic — if they can keep it so." ....

Godfrey's Ship Shaken By Firing Of Three Crewmen

NEW YORK (UP)—Arthur Godfrey's storm-tossed ship, suffering from three new losses in its crew, wobbles onto TV channels tonight in the face of reports that more heaveho's may be on the way.

Godfrey, the fiery-tempered emcee of the airwaves, applied the ax to three members of his "Talent Scouts" crew Tuesday — producer Larry Puck, musical conductor Jerry Bresler and announcer George Bryan

The dismissals followed the surprise pattern of other Godfrey oustings of such performers as Julius La Rosa, Marion Marlowe, Archie Bleyer and the Mariners. The firings came without notice while Godfrey was preparing for tonight's TV program at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show in Harrisburg

Singer May Be Next

There were reports that singer Lu Ann Simms might be the next victim of Godfrey's wrath. Miss Simms, who took six weeks leave from the Godfrey family after giving birth to a daughter, has not received definite word from Godfrey that she'll be back on his show.

Miss Simms' husband, Lorring Buzzell said: "Her vacation is up on Nov. 1, but we haven't heard from Godfrey yet. We should know one way or the other by next week."

There were reports, too, that the McGuire Sisters, a singing trio with the Godfrey menage, might be endangering their position by their extensive entertaining activities outside the show.

One source close to the Godfrey show said that Puck had set the pot to boiling last December when he became engaged to Miss Marlowe. Puck, once the right-hand man of Godfrey, had his duties whittled away after that point. He and the titian-haired Miss Marlowe were married on May 6, a few weeks after Godfrey fired the sultry singer.

The source stated that Bresler was fired Tuesday because he had acted as piano accompanist and arranger for Miss Marlowe during night club engagements in New York and Boston early this year.

"Bryan was the innocent party in the firing," the informant added, "He was kind of a smoke-screen as the Mariners were in the Marion Marlowe firing."

Godfrey, who still suffers from an ailing hip, has seen his ratings slip this year. Ironically enough, one of the principal causes of his Wednesday night audience troubles is that he has lost a major share of watchers to a friend of his, Walt Disney, whose "Disneyland" overlaps the Godfrey time slot.

GRADE "A" MILK TO SAFEGUARD PUBLIC HEALTH

During the Democratic Administration of 1948-52 an ordinance was passed allowing only Grade "A" Milk to be sold in Columbia City.

This was passed through the co-operation of local dairies which sold only grade "A" milk. However there were lesser grades coming into the city from other sources.

The ordinance was passed to safeguard the health of local residents.

Just another community betterment plan originated under a progressive Democratic Administration.

chance for a dark horse."

Russell reiterated his belief that Stevenson now looks like the most likely winner of the Democratic nomination. He also repeated that he has no intention of seeking the nomination himself as he did in 1952, when he was backed by almost solid support from the South.

Some Southern senators, and some Democrats outside of the South, would like to support Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson if he is not ruled out because of his health. Johnson suffered a heart attack July 2.

Russell said he knew nothing of Mr. Eisenhower's intentions either but that he has long believed that the Republicans would nominate Chief Justice Earl Warren if the President does not seek a second term.

Meanwhile Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler accused the Republican Party of being the first major political group ever to "seek votes by a public statement of its anti-labor bias."

Butler referred to reports that Republicans were circulating a document accusing labor leaders of using violence, coercion and massive "flush funds" in an attempt to control the 1956 election.

The document was said to have been prepared by Sen. Barry Goldwater (R - Ariz), chairman of the GOP Senatorial Campaign Committee.

Girl Must Leave Home To Learn Lots Of Things

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) —A girl must leave home to learn a lot of things —such as how to appreciate home cooking and when not to keep a man waiting.

Second - rate restaurants and third-rate boarding houses do wonders for finicky eaters. But first-rate residences for working girls, especially designed for young girls who have just stepped from the protection of home and college campus into the city workaday world, bring the most amazing transformation.

Here girls are cured in a single evening of a malady their parents long since had decided was hopeless. They arrive in the city victims of chronic tardiness, which has been marked for years by the presence of countless young men in family living rooms, waiting impatiently while their dates dawdle at the dressing tables upstairs.

What turns the girls so abruptly into paragons of social promptness? Well, in a word, competition.

No Rival In Home

A girl who deliberately stalls upstairs after the front doorbell rings to announce her date is pretty sure of a couple of things. There is no rival in the family living room more formidable than little sister with the braces on her teeth. And secondly, she knows that relief will overshadow impatience when she finally appears to deliver the uneasy young man from his discomfort.

Even four years away from home in a college dormitory or a sorority house doesn't bring any noticeable improvement. Coeds make life simpler for themselves by living according to a comforting "hands-off" code, which places dates waiting in the parlor in neutral territory. No aggressors permitted.

Then comes the first job, or maybe the final decision to move to the city to take drama or dancing lessons. The girl moves into a women's hotel or a residence club. She's on her own in the big, wide, competitive world for the first time.

"I just kept a date waiting one time," sighed an enlightened girl who recently moved into a women's hotel.

Once Was Enough

"At home I always was a half hour late getting ready for a date," she continued. "But once was enough here. The look on my date's face when I walked across the hotel lobby did it. I've been ready on time ever since."

Was he glowering? No, the young man was wearing an expression of dazed delight.

Quite obviously he hadn't minded the 30 minute wait. With a blissful smile he was engrossed in a favorite male pasttime—gazing at pretty girls. The lobby was full of them, our informant noted with alarm, coming in from their jobs or going out for dinner.

This setting, plus the sudden awareness that the free enterprise system exists in the social side of the business world, and each girl must act promptly to protect her own social security, causes the big change.

And the men still are the losers. Just when they were beginning to enjoy waiting.

Jack Frost Not Responsible For Coloring Leaves

"Many people suppose that Jack Frost is responsible for the color change in leaves in the fall but he is not," according to Frank Wallace, Director of the Division of Entomology with the state Department of Conservation.

All during the spring and summer the leaves have served as factories where the foods necessary for the trees' growth have been manufactured. This food-making takes place in numberless tiny cells of the leaf and is carried on by small green bodies which give the leaf its color. These chlorophyl bodies, as they are called, make the food for the tree by combining carbon taken from the air with hydrogen, oxygen, and various minerals supplied in the water which the roots gather.

In the fall when the cool weather causes a slowing down of the vital processes, the work of the leaves comes to an end. The machinery of the leaf factory is dismantled, so to speak; the green chlorophyl is broken up into the various substances of which it is composed, and whatever food there is on hand is sent to the body of the tree to be stored for use in the spring.

All that remains in the cell cavities of the leaf is a watery substance in which a few oil globules and crystals, and a small number of yellow, strongly refractive bodies can be seen. These give the leaves the yellow coloring so familiar in the autumnal foliage.

It often happens that there is more sugar in the leaf than can readily be transferred back to the tree. When this is the case the chemical combination with other substances produces many color shades varying from the brilliant red of the dogwood to the more austere redbrowns of the oaks.

In cone-bearing trees which do not lose their foliage in the fall, the green coloring matter takes on a slightly brownish tinge which gives way to the lighter color in the spring.

State Traffic Toll For 1955 Rolls Past 900 Mark traffic deaths for 1955 rolled past the 900 mark last week and by Sunday midnight were more than eight per cent ahead of the corresponding total in 1954.

State Police provisional figures showed 906 deaths through Oct. 23, compared with 837 in the same period a year ago.

The increase of 69 deaths was a little more than eight per cent.

Thirty-one deaths were added to the year's list during the seven-day period, compared with 22 in the corresponding week of 1954.

Craig Says That He Is Not Candidate For Any Office

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Governor Craig will not enter Indiana's first presidential preference primary next spring, he said Tuesday.

Asked by a newsman if he would allow his name to go before voters as a "favorite son" candidate for president, Craig replied: "No, sir. I am not a candidate for any office."

Is his friends try to put his name on the ballot, said Craig, they will do so "without my consent."

Last week, State Sen. Roy Conrad (R-Monticello) proposed that Rep. Charles A. Halleck be listed as a "favorite son." This immediately led to speculation that might lead to a Halleck-Craig feud.

And You Think You Have Troubles

CHICAGO (UP)—Walter Swigart announced today it doesn't pay to be kind to animals.

It cost him $69.

Swigart's heart was touched when he found a little gray and brown kitten huddling on his doorstep.

He took the cat in and then went off to work in the printshop he operates. A short time later his wife telephoned that the kitten had hanged itself by wedging its neck between the garage wall and an overhead door track.

But that was just the beginning.

While Swigart talked to his wife on the telephone, a stack of paper fell into his press. The whirring machine sent the paper whipping through the air like confetti. Ink rollers started shooting out of the press.

After he had cleaned up the mess, Swigart went home to bury the kitten. While engaged at this mournful task, his spade slipped and smashed a portable electric lamp. He got a hand lantern and that fell off a ledge with a resounding crash.

Then Swigart noticed that his basement floor was strewn with the bony remains of some of his pet angel fish.

Sitting down to total up the damage, Swigart figured $44 for printing press repairs, $14 for a new electric lamp, and $11 for the lantern. Total—$69

"Remind me," he told his wife, "never to be kind to animals."

government land rental payments to farmers. Such payments could keep farm income up and surplus production down, he said.

Sen. Edward J. Thye (R-Minn) appealed to his colleagues to leave politics aside and write a new farm bill quickly when Congress reconvenes in January.

If the farm issue is left to be fought out in the 1956 campaigns, "we'll see the strength of the nation depleted by political recriminations," Thye said.

Issue Very Serious

They, who listened with other committee members to some 100 witnesses in earlier hearings this week at Worthington and St. Paul, Minn., told the dinner audience "we can get exceedingly serious listening to these problems. We mustn't sluff them off as chronic farmer complaints. It's far more serious than that."

At Worthington Tuesday, an overflow crowd of 400 farmers and small town businessmen booed a late witness who denounced the senators for bringing their hearings directly to farmers.

Douglas G. Vandegrift of Albert Lea, Minn., a Farm Bureau member, said the committee should get advice from farm organization spokesmen in Washington.

"You are showing contempt for farm organizations when you ignore them and hit the road like this," he said.

"Farmers are much better off to depend on themselves rather than some salaried lobbyist in Washington," Sen. Milton R. Young (R-ND) snapped as the crowd cheered.

Find A Hobby For Relaxation, Retirement Years

LAFAYETTE, — If you have a hobby to turn to after your daily work is done, you will have something to rely on after you retire, or the children are grown.

Adults who take time to work on their hobbies, and take up new interests are building insurance for themselves in the future.

Other ways that will enrich life for the middle aged and older people are participating in community activities, meeting new people, keeping informed on public affairs, and finding new areas of knowledge to learn. "Such interests will help keep you young in spirit by giving you a fresh outlook," says Dr. Dorothy V. Mummery, extension family life and child development specialist, Purdue University.

Education is not completed when a young man or woman has received a diploma, because studies show that the average individual can continue to learn throughout life.

It is possible to get back into the habit of learning, if one is willing to pay the price in time, effort and possibly money. Continuing to learn new information has a lot to do with a parent keeping a good relationship with the teenager, grown children, and friends.

Acquiring new information, will give middle aged and older couples a new interest in common.

One of the secrets of happy living at any age is to continue to grow and develop. A cause of unhappiness in the middle years is lack of activities to hold the interest — not the fact of getting older.

Working on a hobby is one way of continuing to grow mentally as folk grow older. "If you wait to develop a hobby in the distant future, you may never start. Learn to do something new every year, something you have never done before. Continuing to learn will help keep you adaptable and willing to accept change when it comes as it surely will," says Dr. Mummery.

In Indiana, Bacon And Aroma Fairly Close Together

By RICHARD A. MONTABA
United Press Staff Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—In Indiana, Bacon and Aroma are fairly close together.

But not everywhere in the state is there such a happy combination of names and geography.

For example, a visitor to Hoosierland might expect Marion to be the county seat of Marion County, while every native knows Indianapolis is the chief city of Marion County and Marion is the county seat of Grant County.

Also, Decatur is nowhere near Decatur County but rather in Adams County. Franklin is the hub of Johnson County, not Franklin County. Fort Wayne is not in Wayne County. Madison is in Jefferson County, while Anderson is in Madison County.

Lafayette is in Tippecanoe County, Connersville in Fayette; Clinton in Vermillion, Frankfort in Clinton; Muncie in Delaware County, Delaware in Ripley County, and Jasper in Dubois, Rensselaer in Jasper County.

Names of Plants

the state's early settlers ranged far and wide for place names and came up with some unusual combinations.

Having a garden City, they planted the state with Bean Blossom, Lotus, Magnolia, Rosebud, Tulip, two Bloomfields, Blue Grass and a Bowling Green, Orange, a Limedale and Lilly Dale, Cherry Grove, two Pumpkin Centers, two Cypresses, Pine and Walnut.

In the case of Spiseland, there's Saline city, saltillo, Peppertown and Chili.

For something Sweetzer, there's Carmel. Intoxicating names can be found in Bourbon, Rye, Brewersville and Stout.

A Gale and Cyclone are permanent fixtures. It has a New Bath and an Old Bath, plus Fickle and Fawcetts. It also has Santa Claus and a Valentine.

The international flair can be found in such names as Geneva, Berne, Paris, Rome, London, Lisbon, Warsaw, Dublin, Klondyke, Mt Olympus, Palestine, Occident, Russiaville, Sibera, Volga, Shanghai, Manilla, Honduras, Peru, Brazil, two Cubas, Vera Cruz Tampico and Mexico.

On the Domestic side we have Cleveland, Akron, Cincinnati, Columbus, New Columbus, Dayton, Denver, Reno, Nevada, Miami, Florida, Natchez, New Chicago, Santa Fe, Birmingham, Annapolis, New Philadelphia, New Pittsburgh, four Salems and, of course, Brooklyn.

Earthy Names Thrive

The settlers must have found the state Pleasant because they established four Buena Vistas and two Bellevlews, Mt. Healthy, Summit, Snow Hill, two Hillsboros, a Rising Sun, Daylight, Sunman and Waterman, Rural, Homestead, Farmland Farmers, Retreat, Wheatfield, Wheatland, Windfall and Popcorn.

Down to earth names can be seen in Asphaltum, Carbon, Cementville, Coal Bluff, Coal City, Coal Creek, Coalmont, Clay City, Gas City, Magnet, Petroleum, a Gam and a Diamond.

The religious influence is contained in Christianburg, Noah, Deacon, Mecca, Temple, Buddha, Providence, Quaker, Trinity, Universal, Bethlehem and 24 places named for saints, including three St. Johns.

mmerce flourishes with Eco East

Commerce flourishes with Economy, East Enterprise, Exchange, Progress, Prosperity and Traders Point.

Then there's a Patriot, two Freedoms, Linerty, East Liberty, two West Liberties, a North Liberty, New Harmony, Treaty, Solon, Onward and Eminence. Two Concords are cancelled out by two Converses. Then there's Cumback and Cunot.

There's one battleground and one Napoleon, but two Waterloos and two Bunker Hills and one Victor.

Finally, the state shows there's more than one way to spell Grammer.

Billy Graham To Visit Japan

TOKYO (UP)—American Evanelist Billy Graham will make a one week visit to Japan next Feb. 19-26, it was announced today.

He will speak to Japanese Christian pastors and foreign missionaries and hold one mass revival meeting in Tokyo.

Graham will be returning to the United States from India where he will take his Christian crusade in to the homeland of Hinduism and Buddhism.

East Chicago Roosevelt Tops The Elite For Fifth Time In Six Weeks In Football Poll

By KURT FREUDENTHAL
United Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—East Chicago Roosevelt, topping the elite for the fifth time in six weeks, was only two points from a "clean sweep" in the Indiana high school football poll today as Royerton and Seymour chalked up perfect season records.

Eleventh-ranked Boonville, meanwhile, won its first Southern Conference crown, belting Tell City, 48-13, for its seventh straight victory.

Roosevelt's Rough Riders shooting for their seventh straight victory at the expense of Hobart Thursday, received 98 points, including nine first-place nods, from the United Press Coaches Board.

Every other berth in the "Big 10" changed hands, although the reshuffle was among teams already in the select circle.

Undefeated South Bend Adams, which downed previously unbeaten city foe Washington last Saturday, passed the Panthers to move into the runner-up spot with 88 points. Washington slipped to third.

Four Lose Ground

Three other teams moved up while four more lost ground.

Sullivan climbed from fifth to fourth, Fort Wayne North from ninth to sixth, and Terre Haute Wiley from 10th to seventh. Sullivan and Wiley still have perfect records while North Side is beaten just once.

Evansville Central, dumped from the unbeaten ranks by New Albany, dropped from fourth to fifth. Kokomo and Evansville Reitz were voted down — from seventh to eighth and from sixth to ninth, respectively—despite the fact they won their last tests.

Marion, idle last week and also beaten once, was dropped from eighth to 10th.

Seymour's South Central Conference champs whipped Jeffersonville, 7-0, to finish with an 11-game string, 9 wins this year.

Lebanon's bid for a perfect 9-game season was ruined by Noblesville, 26-19, while Royerton's high-scoring Redbirds took sweet revenge on Hartford City, 47-6, for their first unbeaten and untied season and an 8-game skein.

41 Points a Game

Hartford City ruined Royerton's otherwise perfect 1954 record in the season finale, 35-6. The losers scored first, but then Royerton took over. Dave Green and Floyd Bird each scored twice as their outfit finished with a season total of 328 points, or an amazing 41 points per game.

At the same time, Royerton was the only brand-new addition to the U.P. Second Ten. Marion galloped to its seventh win in eight starts, routing Wabash, 52-7

Dodgers Place 3 Of Their Heros On All-Star Team

NEW YORK (UP) — Those dominating Dodgers, the "champeens" of the world, placed three of their heroes, Roy Campanella, Duke Snider, and Don Newcombe, on the United Press National League All-Star Team selected today by 54 baseball writers from all the league cities.

Campanella and pitcher Robin Roberts of the Phillies were the only unanimous selections among the 10 players chosen, one for each position, with two pitchers. Each drew 54 votes.

Snider led the voting in the outfield with 51 while Willie Mays of the Giants with 48 votes and Stan (The Man) Musial of the Cardinals with 38 filled the other two outfield berths. Musial additionally drew two votes for first base, giving him a total of 40.

Cincinnati slugger Ted Kluszewski was selected as the first baseman with 47 votes while Red Schoendienst of the Cardinals was at second with 37. Ed Mathews, Milwaukee's home run star, drew 53 votes, all but one, at third base, and Chicago's bright young star, Ernie Banks, was picked at shortstop with 44.

The mythical lineup is one of the most formidable long - ball hitting arrays ever put together. The eight players aside from pitchers accounted for 301 homers last season. They also had a composited batting average of .306 with six of the players batting .314 or better.

The All-Stars boast, in addition, the only two 20-game winners in the majors this season. Roberts, going 20 or better for the sixth straight season, had a 23-14 mark and Big Newk finished at 20-5 and might have done much better except for arm trouble.

Banks And Baker Sign With Cubs

CHICAGO (UP) — Ernie Banks, who set a home run record for shortstops with 44, and his keystone sidekick Gene Baker, have signed their contracts for 1956, the Chicago Cubs announced today. The Cubs' infield pair were the only shortstop and second baseman to play every game of the 1955 season.

Black Hawks Win Over Boston Bruins

By UNITED PRESS

Al Rollins, the nimble young net-minder of the Chicago Black Hawks, was the man chiefly responsible today for the big bottleneck around second place in the National Hockey League.

Rollins made 33 saves in leading the Hawks to a 2-0 victory over the Boston Bruins at St. Louis on Tuesday night in the first game of four which Chicago will play at a "foreign" home this season.

Rollins' brilliant performance in the nets moved Chicago into a second place tie with Boston and the New York Rangers.

A crowd of 5,668, who witnessed the only NHL game scheduled, saw Hank Ciesla put the Hawks in front at 9:28 of the second period after he teamed up with Hec Lalande in a two-man foray. The rookie pair moved the puck down ice and Ciesla beat goalie Terry Sawchuk for the only goal the Hawks really needed. Ben Woit also collected an assist on the play.

Johnny Wilson added an insurance marker at 16:47 of the final session.

said it cleared him of connection with the boys or the crime. They held him for further questioning, however.

Father Finds Lead

One of the few fresh leads remaining was turned up by one of the boys' fathers, Malcolm Peterson.

Peterson, who has left his job to devote his days and nights to hunting the killers, said a hefty, bushy-haired man fled from him when he tried to question him in one of the bowling alleys where his son was last seen.

The man had been reported as making indecent proposals to teenaged boys at the Monte Cristo alleys, Peterson said. He told police that the man backed towards the street, giving evasive answers, and then outdistanced him, in a foot race on the sidewalk.

The only other new development was the discovery of two masses of one-inch tape, both criss-crossed and secured as though they had been ued for gags or masks. The tape was found in a clump of forest preserve bushes and police pointed out that tape of some kind had been used to bind the murdered boys' eyes and mouths.

The Peterson and Schuessler boys were killed sometime between 9 p .m. and midnight Oct. 16 after they had left home to go bowling. Autopsies have shown that they were brutally beaten and two were strangled, indicating the work of two or more "powerful" sadists.

Big Four

Geneva for a talk with Molotov Thursday.

The urgent discussions on the Middle East were shunted aside Tuesday in the Big Three's successful struggle to win unanimous NATO support of their policies based on the reunification of Germany and an European-wide security plan.

In addition to three weeks of Big Four meetings in Geneva, Dulles announced he would visit Yugoslavia's President Tito on Nov. 6 and stop over Nov. 5 to attend the festival opening of the state opera in Vienna.

Western officials made no secret of their intense concern over Communist arms to Egypt and its possible consequences of a new flare-up between Arabs and Jews or a decisive Soviet voice in Middle East affairs.

Strategy Session Expected

There still was no fully-outlined Big Three approach to the problem simply because Dulles, MacMillan and Pinay had not yet held a full strategy session on it. They were expected to do so Thursday morning in Geneva before formal start of the Big Four conference.

Dulles and MacMillan talked to Molotov about the Middle East in New York three weeks ago, just after Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser announced that Egypt was buying arms from Communist Czechoslovakia.

They failed to get any commitment whatsoever from him and Russia has since denied that it also offered arms to Israel.

The Big Three planned their Middle East strategy session Tuesday but the "lively and profitable" meeting with the NATO nations ran on in the afternoon.

West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano who sat in on the NATO conference as a member said there would be "no signature on a European security pact unless there is a signature to reunification of Germany." He expressed satisfaction with the Western blueprint.

was in service with," he said.

Bucked Head Winds

Mrs. Richards admitted, however, that she felt "pretty terrible" when they became lost and low on fuel after bucking 35-mile per hour winds during the trip over the straits.

"I guess that, and when we came in to land, were our worst moments," she said. "But really, I wasn't too frightened."

After a night's rest in a motel they planned to arrange to return to Ohio immediately, probably by commercial airliner.

Richards said that when he pancaked to the wheels - up landing after one trial pass at the island he had only two or three minutes of fuel left. He said he had no idea how he had gotten off course.

Charges Filed Against Wendell Harshman

A case was filed in the Whitley Circuit Court October 24, against Wendell Harshman of South Whitley. Harshman was charged with public intoxication and driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He was arrested by the police in the vicinity of state roads 9 and 14.

Harshman has secured Robert E. Gates as his attorney and has been released on a $1500 bond. No date has been set for his trial. The South Whitley man was arrested by city and state police.

Egyptian Armed Forces Stab Into Israel Territory

TEL AVIV, Israel (UP)—Egyptian armed forces stabbed into Israel today and captured an Israel police control tower in the Nitzana area, an Israeli military spokesman announced.

Maj. Dan Gov, the spokesman, said the Egyptian forces withdrew after inflicting casualties on four Israeli policemen and abducting two other policemen. He said the Israeli police withdrew from the tower in the outskirts of the Beerotyaim settlement.

Gov told newsmen two Vampire jets of the type used by the Egyptian air force were observed flying low over the Huley area well within Israeli territory Tuesday.

Gov said Syrian positions opened fire today on a milk truck in Israeli territory. No casualties were reported.

Reports from the Syrian border told of intermittent bursts of automatic gunfire from Syrian positions near El Motilla Tuesday night. No casualties were reported.

Damascus reports received in Tel Aviv said the Syrian army had been on an alert for the last 48 hours and that reinforcements were rushed into the area after Israel announced the capture of five Syrians.

A telephone report from Tiberias said large concentrations of Syrian troops had taken up positions on the ridges east of the Sea of Galillee and the River Jordan.

Margaret Would Be Disqualified As A Princess

If She Marries Divorced Townsend Says Times Of London

LONDON (UP) — The Times of London said today Princess Margaret would be "irrevocably disqualified" from carrying out her royal duties if she married divorced Peter Townsend.

The influential newspaper ended its long editorial silence with stern comment on Margaret's romance with the handsome Royal Air Force group captain.

If Margaret and Townsend decided on marriage, it said, "The Princess will be entering into a union which vast numbers of her sister's people, all sincerely anxious for her lifelong happiness, can not in all conscience regard as a marriage."

Opposition of the Church of England to remarriage of divorced persons, even innocent parties to divorce, was reaffirmed by Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, who pointed out that "a reasonable church does not change its teaching every few minutes."

The government of Prime Minister Anthony Eden drew fire from the Daily Mirror, Britain's largest circulation newspaper, for failure to tell Parliament Tuesday if there is to be a marriage.

Eden ignored a written question concerning Margaret's marriage plans submitted in the House of Commons by a member of Parliament.

The prime minister was received by the Queen at Buckingham Palace Tuesday night. The visit was described as his customary weekly audience but the two almost certainly discussed Margaret's future.

The palace also announced that the Queen, accompanied by her husband the Duke of Edinburgh, will fly to Nigeria in January for a three-week visit.

genuine spirit of conciliation and accommodation. If the Soviet Union responds in a similar spirit, much progress can be made. That is my personal hope, as I am confident it is the hope of the American people."

Endorsed by Big Three

The security plan endorsed by the President was approved over the past weekend in Paris by Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay.

"We shall all of us follow with eagerness the developments at Geneva," the President said today, "for they will go far to demonstrate whether the 'spirit of Geneva' marks a genuine change and will actually be productive of the peaceful progress for which the whole world longs."

The "spirit of Geneva" to which the President referred was the generally easier attitude of the Soviets toward the West following Mr. Eisenhower's Big Four meeting in Geneva last July.

"As I said to the American people on my return (from Geneva)," the President said today, "the 'acid test' would come when the foreign ministers, in accordance with our Geneva directive, tackle concretely these problems for which our nations have responsibility and which, if unresolved, create tension and danger".

German Unity Foremost

The President regarded as "foremost" among the matters before the Big Four "the reunification of Germany within a framework of European security."

From the Denver White House there continued to be good reports on the President's progress. He was able to take a few steps on Tuesday and probably will do more "step-taking" today.

The President, in a jaunty mood and showing few visual signs of his illness also was able to pose for news photographers for eight minutes Tuesday on the eighth floor sundeck at the hospital.

He conferred Tuesday afternoon for 25 minutes with Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay and they canvassed a broad range of Interior Department matters.

The President scheduled no callers at the hospital today beyond members of his official staff. His next major announced visitor will be Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson, who will see him on Saturday.

Strike At Gary High School Ends

GARY, Ind. (UP)—An anonymous donor relieved a janitor's financial woes with his union Tuesday night to end a strike at Gary Roosevelt High School.

School was ordered closed at noon Tuesday when the AFL Building Service Employes Union called a strike because the school system refused to fire a janitor who failed to pay his dues.

Charles E. Daugherty of the school board said an anonymous donor paid the $28 fine for delinquent dues Tuesday night, enabling classes to resume today.

About 3,400 pupils had expected a five-day holiday when they were sent home because proper classroom temperatures could not be maintained. The state teachers convention opens Thursday. Twenty full and part time janitors were involved in the strike.

Acting Supt. Clarence E. Swingley said the janitor has paid the $25 back dues but refused to pay the fine.

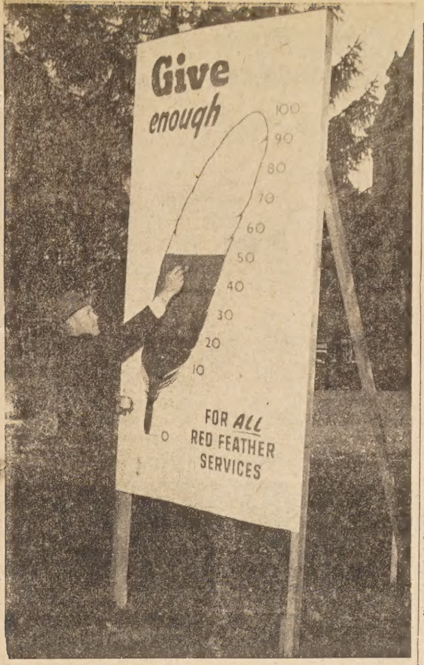
Big Four Foreign Ministers Meet Today For Acid Test Conference



OVER HALF - The Red Feather thermometer on the Whitley county courthouse lawn receives another boost as Clarence Gall, Community Chest of Whitley County president, paints in the feather above the 50 per cent mark.

* * * *

Campaign Of Community Chest Of Whitley County Is More Than Halfway To Its Goal

The 1955-56 campaign of the Community Chest of Whitley County is more than halfway to its goal, according to an announcement made today.

The campaign report included a preliminary report on the house-to-house division in the townships. Residents in the townships have given more than $1,000, J. D. Reiff, townships chairman, said.

The figures on the townships division were far from complete, but helped in shoving the Red Feather thermometers above the 50 per cent mark.

To date, $10,344.35 has been recorded in the Community Chest office, Clarence Gall, president, said in announcing the county's overall figure.

The 1955-56 campaign goal is $19,855 with nine county-wide agencies to receive support from the Chest for the 1956 year.

Meanwhile, a meeting of the Community Chest Board of Directors has been called for noon, Monday, at the Thirty Club, Gall announced. A full up-to-date report of the campaign's progress will be made to the Board.

Although much of the work has been completed and, i nsome divisions, only the results are to be tallied, Gall again stressed the need for wholehearted support of the Chest by everyone in Whitley county.

The names of more volunteer workers in townships in Whitley county also were announced by Reiff. They are:

Etna — Byron Miller, chairman; Mrs. Ralph Bennett, Mrs. Dan Sauers, Mrs. Fletcher Witmer, Mrs. Leigh Waugh, Mrs. Glenn Galloway, Mrs. Constance Buckles, Mrs. Richard Harwick, Mrs. Robert Beck and Mrs. James Blain.

Smith — Tom Rosentrader, chairman; Ed Nestle, Mrs. Leo Bixler, Mrs. Leora Gross, Mrs. Marshall Linvill, Mrs. Lawrence Linvill, Mrs. Walter Linvill, Mrs. Merle Zumbrun, Mrs. Paul Rhoades, Mrs. Ralph Shively, Mrs. Avery Nulf, Mrs. Wilbur Green, Mrs. Louis Deem, Mrs. William Green and Mrs. Allen Shively.

Blue Lake — Mrs. Harry Bowers, chairman; Mrs. Willard Skinner, Mrs. Dale Meyers, Mrs. Charles Waltemath, and Mrs. Robert Benson.

Porky Makes Its Rounds To Kiwanis Clubs In District

Ten Kiwanis club members hurried to Huntington at noon today, thereby saving their club a pig boarding bill.

The Kiwanians weekly meeting last night at the American Legion home was visited by a 12-man delegation from the North Manchester club which presented them with a fair-sized pig rigged in a dog-harness. This was part of the Kiwanian district inter-club visitation promotion which originated when the South Fort Wayne club went to Angola and took the pig along, telling the Angolites that to pass the pig along to another blub in the district, it had to be accompanied by at least eight members.

Angola rid itself of the pig by sending a delegation to the Downtown Kiwanis club in Fort Wayne. This club, stuck with the pig, hurried to the next meeting of the Bluffton club. The Blufftonites journeyed to North Manchester. Of course, Manchester Kiwanians brought it to Columbia City in a gleeful mood.

They kept their secret well. Saying that several members had makeup attendance meeting to attend, they reserved 12 dinners through the local club secretary yesterday. After eating, one of the visitors got up to make a brief speech while two hurried from the building and returned leading the pig.

James Faulkner agreed to board the pig when, after hurried consultation on the time of the next club meeting in the district, it was determined that a mere overnight board bill would result if eight or more could get to Huntington Thursday noon for the Kiwanis club meeting there.

The local members who formed the pig escort to Huntington today included Walter Langohr, Ira Webber, Harold Murphy, James Faulkner, Dr. Charles R. Guse, John Markley, Raymond Pence, Richard Warner, George Windle and the Rev. Verlin Vernon.

It is not known where Huntington will deliver the pig. Since the same club can't get it twice, five clubs are candidates for a swinish visitation — Warren, Northeast Fort Wayne, Wabash, Ashley, or Fremont. The last club in the district to receive the pig can have it butchered — that is, if they care to board it until there's enough ham to go around.

Cold In South; Floods Plague Pacific Northwest

Forest Fire In Montana

By UNITED PRESS

A frosty cold snap lingered in the South today and floods plagued the Pacific Northwest.

In marked contrast, a forest fire raged out of control in Montana woodlands and wide areas of the nation enjoyed Indian summer.

The southern chill relaxed a little after spreading a general frost from Mississippi to the Carolinas. But local areas were still in danger of more frost, with Tuscaloosa, Ala., thermometers registering 37 degrees and New Orleans 41.

The New Orleans cold combined Wednesday with a stifling, dusty smog which touched off the worst attacks of asthma in years and caused monumental traffic jams Two asthma patients died and two persons were killed in car accidents blamed on the smog.

In the state of Washington, meanwhile, a 150-foot rip in the bank of a fresh water slough sent flood waters pouring over 1,000 acres of low-lying land near Mount Vernon.

The flood halted harvesting o broccoli crops and the Weather Bureau predicted rain for the next two days.

Rain was a sorely needed commodity in Montana, where a forest fire blazed out of control across about 2,000 acres in the Lewis and Clark National Forest.

Indian summer still reigned in most of the country, except for areas where a new cold front dropped temperatures more than 20 degrees from North Dakota to central California. Heat records for so late in the season were set Wednesday at Rochester, Minn., with 81 degrees and Alexandria, Minn., with 78.

Fire Departments Put Out Grass Fire

The Union township and Columbia City fire departments responded to a fire call at the George Daily farm on the Raber road, about a mile east of Columbia City at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon.

Weeds were being burned along a fence row next to the road. When the wind direction changed the fire started burning northeast across the wheat-stubble toward the house, the fire departments were called.

Water was used in extinguishing the fire, which burned a space about 75 feet long. Fence posts and a utility pole were damaged.

Fresh Leads Now Raise Hopes Of Catching Killers

Search For Excited Teenager

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—Fresh leads, including a search for a "breathlessly excited" teenager and reports of screams in the night, raised police hopes of catching the killers of three young boys today.

The new clues turned up just as top police officials had resigned themselves to starting the 10-day-old manhunt from scratch.

Then, in fast succession, the following reports came into investigation headquarters:

1. A suburban couple said a "breathlessly nervous and excited" youth drove up to their roadside fruit stand on the night that Robert Peterson, 13, John Schuessler, 13, and his brother, Anton, 11, were killed.

The youth, his face twitching, asked the location of Robinson's Woods, where the boys' naked, mutilated bodies were found two days later. He also asked "are there any guards on duty there?" Then he drove off in a red panel truck.

2. Three more persons came forward with statements that they heard piercing screams coming from open fields on the night of the murder, Oct. 16. One similar report had been received previously. However, the persons named two different areas as the source of the screams and they did not agree on the time when they heard them.

3. A man was arrested Wednesday night after he telephoned Anton Schuessler, father of the two murdered brothers, and asked about the progress of the case. Police said they found a map in the man's car with the Robinson's Woods area circled by a pencil.

Authorities attached the most importance to Mr. and Mrs. William Leiper's account of the strange youth in the red panel truck.

Senator Says GOP Searching ShowyCandidate

To Replace Ike, Conceal Party Split

By HERBERT FOSTER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney said today the Republicans are searching vainly for "a glamor candidate" to replace President Eisenhower and "conceal" a party split.

The Wyoming Democrat told a reporter that the Democrats will nominate a man "whose purpose is to serve all segments of our society."

O'Mahoney said that "the Republican National Committee is now engaged in a search for a glamor candidate who can conceal the basic division between the followers of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft and former New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

"But I don't see where they can find one," O'Mahoney continued. "They can't find anyone now to conceal the fact that the Republicans who occupy the seats of power are representatives of concentrated business."

Mentioned Two Candidates

O'Mahoney did not designate his choice of Democratic candidates, though in appraising them he mentioned only Adlai E. Stevenson and New York Gov. Averell Harriman.

In another political development Roger Tubby, former press spokesman for ex-President Truman, quit a job with the Harriman administration to join Stevenson's staff.

He did so with Harriman's permission.

Meanwhile, Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson, in an exclusive interview with the United Press, said the administration's farm program is basically sound despite falling farm prices. He accused Democrats of trying "to paint the picture blacker than it really is."

In a speech at Corvallis, Ore., today, Interior Secretary Douglas McKay branded as "pure politics" Democratic charges that the Eisenhower administration has been giving away natural resourc-

Officers Elected By FFA; Nine Members Given Initiatory Work

Richard Kyler, a junior in Coesse high school, now in his third year in the work of the Future Farmers of America, has been elected president of the Coesse chapter.

Other officers elected were David VanHouten vice-president; Larry Barnes, secretary; Stanley Egolf, treasurer; Carl Downing, reporter. Neal Palmer retains his office as sentinel.

New members were recently initiated into this National organization for farm boys by the Coesse chapter. They are Jack Coffelt, Kenneth Dittmer, Carl Downing, Lynn Feller, Steve Gray, Ross Nierman, Bill Pettigrew, Richard Vanderford and Dick Wood. The boys now hold the "Green Hand" degree which is the first step to success.

Preceding the initiatory work five members of the organization for farm boys were presented the silver emblem which signifies their elevation to the degree of "Chapter Farmers." The boys were Larry Barnes, Stanley Egolf, Junior Smith, Herbert Vanderford, David VanHouten.

Predicts Increase In Newspaper Rates For Circulation, Ads

NEW YORK (UP) — Cranston Williams, general manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn., has predicted that the daily newspapers will increase advertisement and circulation rates as a result of increases in the price of Canadian newsprint.

Williams said the total cost of the newsprint increase to American dailies will be 32 million dollars annually. He said this "staggering sum" is more than any newspaper in the country can absorb because the newspaper profit margin is "the narrowest ever and growing narrower."

Is Taken To Parkview Hospital

Richard Gevers of Fort Wayne, driver of a passenger car which was recently involved in an accident with a semi-truck east on Road 30, has been dismissed from the Whitley County Hospital.

He was taken to Fort Wayne in a Hollingsworth ambulance and admitted to the Parkview Hospital. Although he received several fractures, his condition was reported satisfactory.

Icelandic Author Wins Nobel Prize For Literature

Is A Winner Of The Stalin Prize

STOCKHOLM (UP) — Author Halldor Kiljan Laxness of Iceland, a onetime monk known for his anti-American views, today won the 1955 Nobel Prize for literature.

The 18-member Swedish Academy awarded him the tax - free cash award of $36,720 and the plaque that goes with it for his sensitive novels of the little man in the cold mountain wastelands of Iceland.

The 53-year-old Laxness, is a winner of the Stalin Prize, and this fact was believed to have weighed against him during the eight years he was considered for the Nobel award.

Laxness, born Halldor Gundjonsson, lived for three years in the United States but left in 1930 after a public clamor against him.

American novelist Ernest Hemingway won out over Laxness last year.

Laxness, who terms himself an "idealistic Socialist," has publicly deplored the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which includes Iceland.

He has said he is without particular leanings toward Russia, but has been a favorite in the Communist literary world. Many of his earlier writings attacked life in the United States.

Runnersup to Laxness was believed to have been French poet St. John Perse, Icelandic moralist Gunnar Gunnarsson, and exiled Greek novelist Nikos Kanzantzakis.

Laxness wrote eight novels, but only one, "Independent People," was published in the United States. It was about Icelandic cottage farmers and was a Book-of-the-month Club selection five years ago.

The author has been in hot water with U.S. immigration authorities. He first tried to enter the United States in 1922. Ordered back to Denmark, he embraced Catholicism and entered a Belgian monastery as a monk. He left one year later to resume writing poetry, short stories and novels. He married twice.

Large Crowd Greets Coesse Seniors In Clever Class Play

A large and appreciative audience greeted the Senior class at Coesse at the presentation of its clever three-act side-splitting play "Rest Assured," given Tuesday evening in the Coesse gymnasium.

Each member of the cast starred in his particular part and the play was well received by the audience that practically filled the gymnasium. The play was directed by Mrs. Leora Kent, teacher of English and speech in the high school.

The money realized from the play will be used for the trip to be made by the seniors next spring.

Annual Celebration At South Whitley Gym

The annual celebration sponsored by the Lions Club of South Whitley will start with a parade in front of the South Whitley fire station promptly at 7:00 p.m. Saturday. The school band will lead the parade.

Judging will be at the school gym. Costume prizes in the sum of $100 will be given away. There will be a cakewalk after the judging.

President Works On State Of The Union Message

To Be Delivered To Congress In January

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP)—President Eisenhower turned his attention today to one of the most important tasks to face him since he was hospitalized Sept. 24—the early draft of his January State of the Union message to Congress.

Two presidential assistants, chief speech writer Kevin McCann and Maj. Gen. Wilton B. (Jerry) Persons, had a mid-morning appointment with the Chief Executive at Fitzsimons Army Hospital to confer on the message. The session was one more significant step in the President's gradual return to a more active role at the government's helm, despite his scheduled hospitalization for another two weeks.

Mr. Eisenhower's White House spokesmen remained firm in their determination to keep a "moratorium" clamped on any political discussion during the President's recovery.

Not Been "Scooped"

However, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty came his closest yet to being drawn into a political discussion. He said in reply to questioning late Wednesday that he has not been "scooped" yet on the President's 1956 intentions by any of the latest rash supposedly "inside" stories on what Mr. Eisenhower will — or won't — do next year.

Hagerty also insisted on keeping the "non-political" label on the weekend visits here of two cabinet officials whose jobs link them closely to issue with the strongest political overtones.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson will arrive Saturday to $30 Is Stolen From Churubusco Grain And Coal Company

Burglars last night gained approximately $30, mostly in change, from the office of the L. M. Snyder Grail & Coal Company in Churubusco.

Entry was gained through a rear window, then by breaking a door glass to enter the office from the back.

The office safe, which was unlocked, was opened and rifled but no money was kept inside. The safe was used for fireproof storage of business records. The $30 was discovered by the burglar as a result of a thorough search of the office furnishings. The money had been put in a hiding place the previous evening before the office was closed.

No merchandise was taken. The burglary occurred between 5:30 p.m. Wednesday and 7:30 a.m. Thursday when the office manager, Oscar Gilbert, reported for work. Churubusco police and state police are investigating the burglary.

Britain Forces Adjournment Of Voting 10 Days

In Race For U. N. Security Council Seat

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The Philippines and Yugoslavia battled through three more deadlocked ballots in the race for the United Nations Security Council today before Britain forced an adjournment of the voting for 10 days.

The General Assembly has gone through 12 ballots without filling the third vacancy which will occur in the Security Council Jan. 1. Cuba and Australia were elected on the first ballot Oct. 14. Today's was the third session devoted to seeking to break the deadlock for the third seat.

The United States, pointing out that a "trend" toward the Philippines was developing in the voting, opposed Britain's motion and suggested that the assembly hold at least three more ballots today.

The assembly vote for adjournment was 21-18 with 15 abstentions.

Needed Six More Votes

In its closest approach to election in today's three ballots, the Philippines, leading Yugoslavia each time, needed at least six more votes. A two-thirds majority of countries present and voting is required for election and the necessary margin may change on each ballot.

Observers read significance into the date — Nov. 7 — suggested by Britain for resuming the voting. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is scheduled to visit Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito in the latter's country Nov. 6. Their discussion might have some effect on the election here.

While at the hospital Mrs. Redman received treatment for a pinched sciatic nerve which had affected her right leg.

Secretary Ezra Benson Says Politicians Are Exaggerating The Plight Of Nation's Farmers

By GAYLOR P. GODWIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson said today politicians are exaggerating the plight of the nation's farmers.

Benson, central figure in the controversy about farm policies, declining farm income, prices of farm produce, and the new pork purchase program, asserted that politicians are deliberately kicking up a storm without cause.

"The farm program now in operation is the result of a year's study and was adopted on a bipartisan basis," Benson said in an interview with United Press. "A farm program should not serve partisan political purposes.

"Yet a determined effort is underway to paint the picture blacker than it really is.

Not Helping Farmers

"Some politicians are not helping farmers much by their comments."

He answered with a grin only when asked if he thought those persons who advocate a return to 90 per cent of parity price supports should shut up. Advocates of 90 per cent of parity say it would jack up farm income.

Criticism of the administration's farm program has been severe.

West Is Geared To Offer Russia Peace Package

In Return For United Germany

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

GENEVA (UP)—The Big Four foreign ministers met today for an "acid test" conference, with the West geared to offer Russia a challenging peace package in return for a united Germany.

U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was to take the initiative for the Western Big Three. But it was feared Soviet Foreign Minister V.M. Molotov would try to stall and block the West's move.

Dulles, Molotov, British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay met in the butter-colored Palais des Nations in the first of a series of sessions designed to keep the world on the road to peace against a background of threatened war in the Middle East.

The question of European security and German unity was the first item on the conference agenda. But the Middle East and a new crisis in France added possible new trouble to the discussion.

Israel Asks Arms

Israeli Premier Moshe Sharett arrived here from Paris to press his demands for Western guarantees of his nation's frontiers and to ask for arms to match the Communist supply of weapons to Egypt.

"Israel will fight again if she must," he said in emphasizing the

Ray Kite Loses Hand In A Corn Picker Accident

The condition of Ray Kite, 57, Columbia City, R 1, was termed satisfactory today at the Memorial Hospital following immediate surgery Tuesday after he lost the four fingers and part of his thumb on the right hand in a corn picker.

The accident happened early Tuesday as he was making his first round of a field at the James Bonebrake farm in Richland township. He reached into the picker when it jammed and his hand was mangled in the rollers. He saw that if could not be removed and had to cut part of his hand away with his pocketknife.

The fingers were amputated in the corn picker and a part of the mangled thumb had to be amputated at the hospital.

No one was in the field with him at the time. After freeing himself, Mr. Kite ran across the road to the nearby farmhouse of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meggison. Evectt Jontz, R 6, had just pulled into the Meggison drive in his automobile on insurance business and he rushed Mr. Kite to the hospital while Mrs. Meggison called the institution to alert them for the accident case.

Letter Boxes Don Patriotic Colors

Columbia City's letter boxes have come out of their plain olive green garb which made them unnoticed wallflowers for years, and are now wearing a patriotic costume of red, white, and blue.

First to don the new dress was the collection box in front of the post office. The painter said the box was freshly painted inside just before he began the outside painting. While he was on his knees putting the blue stockings on the mailbox form, none other than Danny Daniel carefull placed a letter in the collection box slot so as not to get it smeared with red.

"Oh no," said the painter, "He didn't put a letter in, did he?" When Thomas Heinley, an observer, nodded, there was muttering that someone was going to get a scarlet letter.

Ex-Air Force Pilot Kills Himself By Crashing His Plane

LOS ANGELES (UP) — A disgruntled ex-Air Force pilot killed himself when he apparently deliberately crashed his small rented plane into the airport bank branch where he was fired as a teller Tuesday, police said today.

The only injured person was the bank official who fired the crash victim, Benjamin Fauth.

"He apparently tried to get even with the bank," said A.L. Wagnon, one of the investigating officers.

"That's only a guess, of course, but he apparently had some reason to fly into it."

Fauth, 29, of nearby Inglewood, was killed instantly Wednesday in the crash of the single - engined Aeronca plane into the Bank of America's International Arport branch. Polce and Civil Aeronautics Administration investigators said Fauth apparently turned off the engine and glided the plane directly into the bank.

Although there were several employes and customers in the bank, no one was injured except the bank's chief clerk, Robert J. Workman, 37, who fired Fauth.

Workman suffered a scratched cheek from flying glass as parts of the plane landed only a few feet from his desk.

Workman said he told Fauth that "I hate to do things like this, but I must advse you that you'd be dong yourself a favor if you began looking for a job elsewhere."

Workman said he didn't think there were any "hard feelings" on Fauth's part because the teller laughed and said:

"That's okay. I don't think I wanted this kind of a job anyway and I've already applied for an airline job."

Democrats Wednesday turned their criticism toward administration foreign policy and its security program.

Kefauver Speaks Up

At Nashville, Tenn., Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn), an expected candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said Red Chna's demand that Portugal surrender her colonies on the Chinese coast, is another example of "how we're letting the Communists keep the initiative in foreign policy."

Thomas K. Finletter, Secretary of the Air Force under the Truman adminstration, charged that administration attacks on "individual freedom" through security investigatons have hampered the defense effort.

Former Democratic Secretary of State Dean Acheson, in a copyrighted article in Harpers Magaine, said the Eisenhower administration's foreign policy "has coasted on the momentum of past initiative." He said only the Democrats can provide ideas necessary "to develop the unity and strength . . . .of free nations as a balance to the power of the Sino - Soviet system."

Homemaker Of Year

WASHINGTON (UP)—Mrs. Ezra T. Benson has been named "Homemaker of the Year" by the National Home Fashions League Inc.

Want Ads Bring Results

Benson

Benson has been pressured by high ranking politicians of both parties, farmers and farm groups in the Midwest, and others to do something about the economic situation of farmers.

An indication of the severity of the pressure was the announcement late Wednesday that Benson had cancelled a trip to Europe. He had planned to leave next month to make a personal on-the-spot study of markets for U.S. surplus commodities in Europe and also was to deliver a speech before the Foods and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations in Rome.

Benson is convinced the farm program is sound.

He is convinced the present flexible support policy is correct and that farmers realize its correctness. He thinks the voters next year will agree to its soundness.

"A price support policy of 90 per cent of parity is a bankrupt program," Benson said. "It never did a good job."

He said high, rigid supports stimulate excessive production, build up huge surpluses, and cause farm commodities to be priced out of the market. Flexible supports, he said, will stop this by bringing production into line with demand.

"We are right about the pork purchase program (announced Monday)," Benson said. "It will offer help to the farmers. The timing was good. It will give good returns for the money spent."

Larwill Chapter Of Order Of Eastern Star Observes Friends Night, 100 Attend

Friends Night was observed Tuesday evening at the Masonic Hall in Larwill, by Cardinal Chapter of Eastern Star. One hundred guests and members attended the affair. Guests were present from Pierceton, Huntertown, Wolcottville, Mentone, Warsaw, and South Whitley.

A program under the direction of Mrs. Paul Boggs, worthy matron of Larwill Chapter and her entertainment committee, Mrs. Alvin Sweeney and Mrs. John Menzie, was presented after the close of the business session. Roger Reece, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Reece, delighted the crowd with many clever tricks of magic. Several members then provided a comic skit named "At the Football Game." Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Marker acted the part of a couple who created a disturbance in a crowd of football fans. Others participating in the skit were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Jarboe, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Sweeney, Mrs. John Menzie, Mrs. Cleon Schuman and Mrs. Thurlo Schuh.

"Chain of Friendship" was the theme of the evening and each member was identified with a short chain of gold. The Worthy Matron and her guest Worthy Matron, Mrs. Ruth Mickley of Pierceton; Sidney Gebert acting Worthy Parton and his guest, Sheldon Leiter, Worthy Patron of Pierceton; Conductress, Mrs. James Sweeney, Associate Conductress, Mrs. Norman Jarboe; Adah, Mrs. Lee Nichols Jr.; Ruth, Mrs. Eugene Kile; Esther, Mrs. Harlan Ulrich; Martha, Mrs. Herman Stuersel and Electa, Mrs. William Charlton, formed a circle about the altar, and each held a link in a gold chain symbolizing the friendship chain formed by the Chapters.

Carolyn Boggs, daughter of the Worthy Matron, presented piano numbers during the program.

Each of the Cardinal officers presented his or her guest with a pen and pencil set as a memento of the evening.

The hall and dining room were attractively decorated in keeping with the fall season. Chrysanthemums, colored leaves, fruit, gourds, hickory nuts, bittersweet, and gaily colored tiny mangoes were used in the Halloween motif. A committee served cider, doughnuts and candies.

Miss Mary Louise Little, Associate Grand Matron of North Manchester, will be a guest of the Larwill chapter, at the next stated meeting, November 8. urgency of his stand.

Meanwhile, Pinay disclosed that he will fly back to Paris Friday to await the outcome of a vote of confidence test in the French National Assembly. Its result will determine whether he returns to Geneva with new power to negotiate for France, or merely as an observer without authority.

The West offered the Soviets a peace package of security and disarmament in exchange for the reunification of Germany. The move was the acid test of Soviet peace desires and Moscow's continued support of the friendly "spirit of Geneva."

The West planned to move first and fast. Its views were contained in a nine-page document drawn up beforehand and backed fully by the entire North Atlantic alliance membership.

The package plan called for:

1. The reunification of Germany by free elections.
2. An offer to Russia, in return, of solemn non-aggression guarantees, as a means of calming any legitimate Soviet fears for security.

Authoritative sources said the West is prepared to go even further once Germany is again unified. It would consider a general European security pact that would include the Soviet satellites as well.

Now Is A Good Time To Treat Family To Tasty Pork Dishes

LAFAYETTE, — Now is a wonderful time to treat your family to delicious and nutritious pork dishes, suggests Miss Ann Liggett, extension foods and nutrition specialist, Purdue University. Pork is considered one of the best sources of thiamine, and vitamin B1 that is available for growth adn health.

Does your pork vocabulary stop at bacon, pork chops, and ham? Then there's a great number of good mai ndishes that you're missing. Actually, there are close to thirty different retail cuts of fresh and smoked pork on the market.

It is a real economy purchase to get a whole fresh pork shoulder butt (five to seven pounds) and make three fresh-cooked meals from one pork butt; pork roast, pork steaks, and chop suey.

Chops or steaks cut from the pork shoulder, arm, and blade are excellent. Since these are not in so great demand, they retail for several cents less than the loin and rib chops.

Pork hocks, cooked with cabbage and potatoes, make a tasty, tempting dinner. Spareribs may be barbecued, or two sections can be stuffed and roasted.

"Since pork is such a good buy in your market, you will want to make it the center of your menu frequently during the coming months. Supplies are liberal, and prices are attractive," says Miss Liggett.

Flurry Of Interest In Beef Bacon, But No Great Demand

Meat counter demand for beef bacon, according to local meat cutters, is not great although calls for this "breakfast beef" have been somewhat consistent since it became known that President Eisenhower has a fondness for this as a part of his breakfast menu.

While some retail counters report that there has been no demand for beef bacon, others report that a flurry of interest came about for breakfast beef about the time of the President's illness started.

Beef bacon is a product that is not new to the meat trade. It has been on the market for several decades and in some cities had a spurt in popularity a couple of years ago because of special price advantage then over regular bacon. It is made from beef brisket, salted and cured. It has a bacony flavor and looks something like corned beef but is leaner than pork bacon. For many years it was sold chiefly in kosher markets and delicatessens.

Posting Guardsmen Will Cost Indiana Taxpayers $140,000

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Posting of National Guardsmen in Henry and Wayne Counties to dissuade labor violence will cost Indiana taxpayers about $140,000, it was estimated today.

Capt. William A. Scott of the adjutant general's staff said the state already has spent $121,500 and a few bills still are outstanding. In addition, it will cost about $200 a day to keep the 25 troops now on duty in New Castle, and there is no indication how long they will remain.

At one time, there were 1,000 guardsmen in the area, imposing martial law after a shotgun riot at Perfect Circle Corp.'s foundry.

Tigers Pass For 19-14 Win

The 1955 football season ended Friday night for the Columbia City Eagles at DeVol Field, and the Warsaw Tigers handed the Eagles a 19-14 defeat, their eighth in a winless season.

Columbia City completely dominated the game in the statistics, as the Eagles showed more fire than in any previous game this season, but failed to score enough points. The lack of pass defense was again the downfall of the Eagles. The Tigers passed for two of their three TD's, and passing was instrumental in setting up the third Warsaw score. The Tigers completed five of six passes during the game, while Columbia City completed one of three and had one intercepted.

The rushing game all belonged to the Eagles, as they ground out 254 yards as compared to the 106 rushing yardage gained by Warsaw.

The Tigers jumped to a quick lead, when Mulcahy hit Sensibaugh for a 40-yard touchdown pass on the third play of the game. That Tiger lead was short-lived, as Gay Deutsch took it upon himself to score. Behind the best line blocking of the season, Deutsch carried for gains of 33 yards, 9, and 13 on his personal touchdown march. Richard Jones also had a six-yard gain on that drive.

Deutsch Stands Out

Deutsch, the standout on the Eagle team all season, turned in his last performance against the Tigers and made it practically a one-man show. The fleet halfback scored all 14 of the Columbia City points and gained a total 189 yards rushing. He carried the ball on 27 plays for an average gain of seven yards.

Warsaw's second touchdown was scored early in the second quarter, after the Tigers recovered an Eagle fumble. Bridge, Eagle center, forced Warsaw to punt at the opening of the period when he threw the Tiger back for a one-yard line. Deutsch returned the punt to the C.C. 10, and from there an Eagle march was started. Eagle backs consistently gained on six plays and ground out two first downs. With first-and-ten on the 41-yard line, Yant fumbled, and Warsaw recovered.

The Tigers received a holding penalty, but two completed passes put them in a threatening position on the C.C. 44. From there the Tigers ground out the yardage to the goal, Gunter ending the drive as he plunged over from the five-yard stripe. The score was 12-7.

Minutes later, things looked black for the Eagles when Kniss's pass was intercepted and on the next play Koedyker hit Sensibaugh with an aerial that went for 70 yards and another Tiger TD. Warsaw scored the extra point this time, Koedyker hitting through the line, and the score was 19-7 moments before halftime.

Eagle Drive Halted

After receiving the halftime kickoff, the Eagles marched the ball to the Warsaw four-yard line but couldn't push it over. Pence, fullback, sparked this drive with a 22-yard run on the first play, and Bridge, Fry, Conrad, and chrader kept it going by opening holes in the Tiger line.

Warsaw took over in dangerous territory and was forced to punt on fourth down, Deutsch returning the ball to the Warsaw 40.

From that point, Deutsch again took personal command, and on three carries, he had crossed the goal line. Deutsch carried for the extra point, and the score was 19-14.

That ended the scoring, but late in the fourth quarter the Eagles began a drive from their own 45-yard line that took them to the Warsaw 20, with a first-and-ten situation. However, the Eagles were thrown back on this series of four plays, and Warsaw took over on their own 25-yard line. After getting the ball, the Tigers just ran out the clock.

Eagle fans agreed that the Columbia City team looked its best last night, despite eight consecutive losses. The linemen looked much better, and the defensive end play was greatly improved. Gary Link and Loe Krieder both played good defensive games at the end posts.

The Columbia City starting lineup included six seniors — Simon, Brennan, Fry, Conrad, and Simmers in the line, and Deutsch in the backfield. Other starters were: Smith and Bridge in the line, and Kniss, Jones, and Yant in the backfield.

Queen Crowned

As part of the halftime show, Barbara Lefkowicz was crowned Halloween Queen by Superintendent Edward E. Glenn. The queen was escorted to the center of the field by Gregory Woodham, while the band played "Pomp And Circumstance." The other members of the queen's court and their escorts were: Pat Puckett, escorted by Gordon Carpenter; Judy King, escorted by Eldon Killian; Emily Carpenter, escorted by Mike Platner; and Sharon O'Brien, escorted by Randall Carpenter.

Holman Flattens Boardwalk Smith

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UP) — Heavyweight Johnny Holman of Chicago, who flattened Boardwalk Billy Smith here Wednesday night, began yelling today for a fight with one of the upper contenders next month.

"I'd like to meet Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson or Bob Baker," declared the hard hitter who had floored 34-year-old Smith of Atlantic City, N.J., three times for a knockout at 1:43 in the seventh round of their nationally televised and broadcast bout at the Miami Beach Auditorium.

Boardwalk Billy, a deputy sheriff at Atlantic City weighed only 175½ pounds Wednesday night, just one half over the light heavy limit. Holman, 27, scaled 203½. It looked like a man fighting a boy.

Although they went into the ring at "even money," Holman's physical advantages began to tell on Billy in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-rounder. The tiring Billy was staggered near the end of the fifth by a looping right to the head.

Holman floored him twice in the sixth with left hooks for "nine" and for "seven" of the mandatory eight-count when the bell rang ending the round. A booming straight right to the chin stretched Billy flat on his back for the full count in the seventh.

Olson-Robinson Bout Postponed

CHICAGO (UP) — Middleweights George Johnson and Bobby Boyd will fight in a substitute match at the Chicago Stadium Nov. 4 because of Sugar Ray Robinson's twisted ankle which forced postponement of his title bout with Bobo Olson.

The International Boxing Club postponed the Olson - Robinson fight until Dec. 9.

Lambeau To Coach All-Stars Again

CHICAGO (UP) — Curly Lambeau, who directed the 1955 College All-Stars to a 30-27 victory over the Cleveland Browns, has been signed to coach the Stars again in 1956.

The Chicago Tribune, which sponsors the All-Star game, said Lambeau's assistants would also return for the '56 classic. They are Hunk Anderson, Steve Owen, Hampton Poole, Tony Canadeo and Charles Hafron.

confer with the President on the prickly question of farm prices and possible legislative remedies. Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, a former Republican national chairman whose cabinet post makes him a key patronage figure, will see the Chief Executive Monday on "Post Office department matters."

Hagerty said the latter would include "possible legislation," an indication that Mr. Eisenhower may be planning a third try at getting his postal rate increase through Congress. The legislation has failed of passage for the past two years.

The President took big strides toward a return to normal activity Wednesday when he got out of bed unaided several times and walked the six or seven steps to an easy chair in his room.

Mr. Eisenhower also marked up another "first" Wednesday when he personally looked over newspapers for the first time since he was taken to the hospital to recover from his heart attack more than four weeks ago.

Kappa Kappa Kappa Plans Card Party And Fashion Show

Members of Alpha Iota chapter of Kappa Kappa Kappa Sorority are making plans for a Fashion Show and Card Party to be held Monday, November 14, at the 4-H Community Center.

Mrs. C. Jules Heritier and Mrs. M. S. McLean are co-chairmen of the event and have their committees appointed at work.

All clothing establishments of the city will co-operate with the group in that they will lend merchandise to be modeled, the fashions to include women's, men's and childrens' clothing.

Mrs. James Johnston, 341 North Main Street, is ticket chairman and she states that tickets are available from members or at the door on the evening of the event.

Members have indicated that, while it is not the policy of the sorority to make solicitations, any offered gifts or donations for the party will be gratefully accepted to further Alpha Iota's charity and education programs. Mrs. William Bloom, and Mrs. Roy Duncan, are the gift chairmen.

Kappa Kappa Kappa is a many-membered, state-wide group of chapters which was organized in charter members who felt that further the plans of the handful of the State of Indiana in 1901 to there was a need for an organized plan toward a goal of higher education among Hoosier students, and also a need for alleviating the wants of less fortunate persons, and for co-operation with other organized groups for comminity betterment and relief of suffering. This has been and continues to be the basis for the many work hours contributed by the members of the local chapter of this sorority.

A wire mesh tea strainer fastened to the end of a clothes washer drain hose keeps the lint from clogging drains. Remove the lint when the laundry is done.

Whoo

VENTURA, Calif. (UP) — A judge Wednesday gave Mrs. Florence Alene Sandberg, 33, of Camarillo, Calif., 30 days to choose between a $6 fine or a two-day jail sentence for driving her automobile after dark without lights.

The judge refused to accept Mrs. Sandberg's defense that she didn't need the lights because she can "see like an owl."

West Offers To Exchange Big Peace Pack For German Unity

SHE'S TOO "CATTY" FOR THE TOWN—Meet Mrs. Caesar Venegoni of Des Peres, Mo., who would rather leave town than part with her approximately 40 cats. Two years ago she left Maplewood, Mo., when an ordinance was passed limiting the number of pets per household. Naturally, that meant Mrs. Venegoni's household. Now Des Peres is considering a similar ordinance, so she's eyeing a 40-acre farm near Robertsville, Mo. Shown here feeding some of her cats, she says the pets are restricted to the kitchen, a breezeway, an enclosed backyard and a garage. The garage, by the way, is equipped with radiant heating, for the cats' comfort.

PARIS (UP)—The French government won a vote of confidence today, thus saving France and its Western allies from a major international crisis.

The vote was 271 to 259.

Premier Edgar Faure staked the life of his cabinet and France's formal participation in the Big Four ministers conference in Geneva on the vote and won.

The vote was considered so crucial that Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay flew here from Geneva to plead with the divided deputies to avoid plunging France into crisis at this time.

Charged With Incompetency

The vote was on general government policies, provoked by a Socialist Party charge the Faure government was incompetent to handle the crucial issues facing it in Europe and North Africa.

The drama of the vote was underlined by the surprise presence on the chamber floor of ailing Communist Chief Maurice Thorez, who limped out of his isolation to be in on the possible kill.

As far as deputies could remember it was the first time the 55-year-old Communist boss has taken his seat since he was felled by a stroke in 1950 and carried off to Moscow in a plane for a 30-month "cure."

The pug-nosed ex-coal miner limped in on the arm of a burly comrade just before Faure took the rostrum for a last-minute de-

Israeli Forces Cross Border And Kill 10 Egyptians

Capture 24 More Before Withdrawing

TEL AVIV, Israel (UP)—Israeli forces stabbed across the border today and captured an Egyptian army camp at Contila, killing ten Egyptians and capturing 24 before withdrawing.

(In Cairo, Maj. Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer, commander in chief of Egyptian armed forces, called a top level military conference to consider the Israeli attack. So far the Egyptian government has not issued a statement.)

(Israeli Premier Moshe Sharett was informed of the raid in Geneva by telephone from Tel Aviv. A pokesman for the premier said "we shall have to study the incoming reports" before a statement is made.)

Maj. Dan Gov, Israeli army spokesman, said fur Israelis were wounded in the retaliation raid which followed an Egyptian attack on Nitzana in the demilitarized zone Thursday.

One Israeli policeman was killed, three wounded and two were missing in the Egyptian raid.

(The Israeli thrust underlined Sharett's warning that "Israel will fight again if she must." Sharett was in Geneva to lay Israel's cause before the Big Three foreign ministers.)

(Neutral sources in Cairo predicted that increased border activity would speed Egyptian efforts to get new shipments of Czech arms purchased in a recent trade deal to the frontier as soon as possible.

President Enjoys Western Movie At Fitzsimons

Schedules No Official Callers At Quarters Today

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower, whose movie tastes run to Tom Mix, William S. Hart and Hopalong Cassidy, has reached a new point in his recovery from a Sept. 24 heart attack.

The President may now go to the movies, as long as they are shown on the eighth floor of Fitzsimons Army Hospital and he can be moved from his room to the small auditorium by wheel chair.

While the wheels of government ground on late Thursday, the President spent two hours watching a Western movie. He was in his bathrobe and pajamas and got an admitted kick out of watching "a lot of Indians that bit the dust."

Movie Title Secret

Lest some Hollywood studio derive a commercial advantage, the President's staff declined to disclose the title of the movie. The fact that it ran two hours and was in color indicated it probably was one of Hollywood's more recent Western efforts.

The President scheduled no official callers at his hospital quarters today. But Saturday he will confer with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson who periodically finds himself as the center of political controversy.

While this was basically an "off day" for the President, even in hospital parlance, he was expected to undertake a certain amount of paper work submitted to him by his staff. He worked Thursday on a roughdraft of his State of the Union message to Congress.

Departure Set BBack

Depending on the decision of his doctors and Mrs. Eisenhower, the President was expected to remain at Fitzsimons possibly as late as Nov. 15. There was a period when his departure from Denver was estimated at Nov. 8, but there seemed to be a growing impression among his staff that since the operating set up here is so well established and the President's quarters at the hospital so comfortable, Mr. Eisenhower might slow up his departure for the East.

The President's progress continued to produce optimistic accounts from his doctors. Thursday night, his physicians reported again that his comeback from a coronary thrombosis was satisfactory and without complications.

Kefauver Addresses Hoosier Schoolteachers At Their 102nd Annual Convention Today

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Sen. Estes Kefauver told Indiana schoolteachers today that the future of Southwest Asia depends on the outcome of a bitter ideological struggle between India and Red China.

The Tennessee Democrat gave the opinion in an address prepared for delivery this afternoon at the 102nd annual convention of the Indiana State Teachers Association.

He said the "fate of the world" itself rests in the hands of Asia's hungry masses.

"All Southeast Asia wants to know whether underdeveloped countries must sacrifice personal liberties and individual initiative in return for economic development and enough to eat," Kefauver said.

"China proclaims 'yes,' India answers "no.' "

Urges U.S. Discretion

Kefauver said the proof will come when one of the two demonstrates that it can best satisfy the needs and aspirations of its people.

"If China wins out, then it won't be too long before the Red Star is flying from every capitol building in Asia. If Indian is the victor, I am certain that Southeast Asia will rally behind the banners of democracy," Kefauver said.

He said the crisis poses a "very delicate diplomatic situation" for the Western world. The United

Volunteer Fire Chief Is Killed, 9 Others Injured

Fight To Control Blaze Blamed On Halloween Pranksters

GOSPORT, Ind. (UP)—The chief of the Gosport volunteer fire department was killed and nine other firemen were injured early today when a wooden covered bridge collapsed into White River as the men fought to control a blaze blamed on Halloween pranksters.

Chief Bert Dittamore, 33, a Gosport merchant, was pinned under a beam in the river and drowned before colleagues could rescue him.

Larry Snodgress, about 27, was taken to a hospital with a possible broken back. The eight other injured firemen were treated for minor injuries and released.

Jewel Truesel, Gosport town marshal, said there was little doubt somebody "deliberately" set fire to the covered wood and steel structure near the Gosport city limits. The bridge had been condemned as unsafe fo rvehicles and a blockade prevented cars from using it.

Set Afire Earlier

Trusel said it was the second time in two days that the bridge had been set afire.

The second fire broke out about 1 a.m. CST and firemen were at the scene within minutes.

As the men crowded onto the burning bridge, the weakened structure collapsed with a roar. Some of the men leaped to safety, but Dittamore and several others were trapped in the wreckage and plunged into the river.

Minutes after the men retrieved Dittamore's body, flames swept over the spot where he had been pinned under a fallen beam.

Merchants On Force

The other injured firemen were identified by state police as Richard Felton, Vernon Wampler, Bob Tharp, Joe King, Earl Livingston, Darrell Porter, Charles Morgan and a man named BBurknart.

Most of the firemen were prominent citizens in this town of 700 persons. The volunteer department was made up of largely merchants, profssional men and craftsmen whose shops, offices and jobs are located in the heart of the town, making them available for fire runs.

The 300-foot bridge was one of the few picturesque covered bridges remaining in Indiana. This type bridge was popular in the state's early history, but the ravages of time have eliminated most of them and the few that are left have survived largely for sentimental reasons.

Price Hike Of Newprint May Up Subscriptions

The Columbia City newspapers have been notified of an increase of $4 per ton in the price of newsprint delivered by the International Paper Sales company, Montreal.

A carload of newsprint was delivered to the Post and Mail last week.

This brings the price of newsprint to over three times as high as pre-war figures. Standard white news print has gone up from a pre-war low of $42 per ton to the present price of $131 per ton.

Newsprint from the mills still is rationed to newspapers.

Canada furnishes more than 90 per cent of all newsprint used in the United States, inasmuch as this country no longer has the extensive forests necessary to produce the millions of tons of pulpwood used daily by newspapers.

The cost of paper with other price increases will probably be reflected in higher-priced newspapers and advertising.

To See Pictures On Hunting Big Game In Alaska

The dangers of hunting big game in the wilds of Alaska will be shown in colored movies Monday night at the American Legion Post. The movie was made by professional hunters and some hair-raising scenes are depicted plus the exhibition of excellent hunting technique.

The pictures were obtained by the newly appointed entertainment committee. Louis Schalk, chairman, vouches for their fine entertainment qualities.

In addition the kitchen crew of the Legion is hard at work getting ready for the big fish fry the same evening, it being social night. Post Commander Edwin Pugh is looking forward to a large turnout of both old and new members and has especially invited the younger Korean veterans.

Flood Waters Close Mt. Ranier National Park

Cover 2,000 Acres In State Of Washington

By UNITED PRESS

Flood waters closed Mount Ranier National Park today and covered 2,000 acres of low-lying farmlands in the state of Washington.

Meanwhile, cool air rolled over the Great Plains with winds up to 45 miles per hour and Indian summer held sway in the East.

The Washington floods poured from a rip in a 150-foot dike in a freshwater slough near Mount Vernon. Crop damage was estimated in the thousands of dollars, but the flood danger appeared to be easing today.

Mount Ranier Park officials said tourists would be barred from the park this weekend because of the washout of Glacier bridge below the Nisqually glacier.

The Nisqually River had washed out two bridges and drove 100 Longmire residents from their home earlier this week.

Elsewhere, a new cool front advanced east and south over the Plains states, dumping temperatures as much as 24 degrees. Weather readings dropped into the 30s and 40s as far south as the Texas Panhandle.

Theft Of Auto Tires, Wheels Here Solved

Two Men Involved In Other Robberies

Two Kosciusko county men have been apprehended and have confessed to the robbery of tires and wheels off the new Oldsmobile owned by Mrs. Freda Shirey, R. 5, Warsaw, while it was parked in the Columbia Products parking lot. The men have also confessed to the robbery of $30 from the Snyder Grain and Coal company in Churubusco.

The two thefts occurred in this county on Monday and Wednesday nights of this week. On Wednesday night, the same night the men robbed the Churubusco firm, the men admitted stealing a paymaster check protector from the LaOtto elevator.

The men being held are David A. Kuhn, 25, 722 E. Main street, Warsaw, and James A. Hepler, 20, general delivery, Leesburg.

Through the efforts of a local State Trooper, in checking traffic, the arrest of the two men was made. The tires were found on the car owned by Hepler, and the wheels had been discarded in a ditch near Center Lake, Warsaw. The check protector was recovered from beneath a river bridge across U. S. highway 30 west of the Whitley-Kosciusko county line.

Hopes For Quick Capture Of Lewd Slayers Dimmed

Police Had Hoped Trail Getting Warm

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP) — Hopes for a quick capture of the wanton slayers of three young boys dropped today when the victims' parents collapsed another promising clue.

Police had hoped the trail was getting warmer when they discovered an abandoned car containing three pairs of blue jeans and a flannel shirt.

The clothing was similar to garments worn by Robert Peterson, 13, John Schuessler, 13, and his brother, Anton, 11, when they were sadistically murdered last Oct. 16 on Chicago's Northwest Side.

But the parents sadly told police early today that the clothing did not belong to their sons.

Seek Former Mental Patient

Officers retained some hope in the fact that the car matched the description of a battered, blue auto which was seen in the area shortly before the boys' naked, mutilated bodies were found stacked in forest preserve ditch Oct. 18.

They traced the car's ownership through license plates to John Svehla, 35, an ex-mental patient who disappeared from his home several weeks ago. A search was launched for Svehla.

Another line of investigation concentrated on fragments of a linen shirt which were found 150 feet from the place where the bodies were dumped.

The shirt bore the laundry mark Bann4 and the Chicago SunTimes said its investigation showed the garment may have come from a 15-year-old reformatory inmate.

Search Old Buildings

The widespread search for more clues continued today, with 200 county police searching abandoned shacks and suspicious buildings outside the city limits. Sheriff Joseph Lohman, who ordered the dragnet, said the hunt would start at Robinson's Woods, where the bodies were found, and work west.

Police believe the boys were abducted by two or more sadists. The lads fought courageously for their lives before two of them were strangled and one of them was beaten to death.

Include Buffer Control Zone Across Europe

Contains Broad Lines Of 9-Point Treaty

GENEVA (UP) — The West offered Russia sweeping security guarantees today, including a buffer control zone across Europe, in exchange for German unity next year.

The offer, the West's big "peace package," was handed to the Soviets at the second plenary session of the Big Four foreign ministers conference.

It contained the broad lines of a nine-point "treaty of assurance." In it the West stated clearly that the security offer only held good if the Soviet Union agreed to completely free all-German elections, and German unity in 1956.

The draft did not specify what nations would be included in the security guarantees. But high Western sources disclosed that the United States, Great Britain, France, the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia and a unified Germany were envisaged as the charter members.

Radar Warning Network

Among its features was a proposal that Russia should run a radar warning network inside Western territory. Similarly, the West would operate a similar network inside Eastern Europe. The distances probably would run about 100 to 150 miles on each side of the Iron Curtain.

British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan put forward the treaty in a major declaration in behalf of the West. A procedural filibuster by Soviet Foreign Minister Vy-

Self-Portrait

Lesson for October 30, 1955

THERE are people who don't care how they look to other people; they have no particular long-range plans or pattern of life, they live (as they might say) by ear. We call such persons extraverts; they never stop, so to speak, long enough to look into a mirror. There is an opposite kind of person who is painfully interested in himself. He is forever looking into a mirror, as it were. He makes the most careful and detailed plans and is quite upset when a detail goes wrong. We call such persons introverts. In between these types is a more balanced sort of person. If one could "type" Jesus of Nazareth he would be the balanced sort, by all means. He was self-conscious enough to know and care what he was doing, but not in the least self-centered.

Dr. Foreman

Action Portrait

Jesus once had the opportunity, which to some young people is a rather frightening thrill, of speaking to a crowded audience in his own home town. He knew what was in nearly everybody's mind: "Give an account of yourself. Who do you think you are and what do you think you are doing?" To them he was just a home-town boy; but they had heard of strange things he had said and done, and they wanted to hear him talk. So he had the opportunity on a Sabbath Day of speaking in the synagogue. As he read the Scripture for the day, from Isaiah 61, Jesus stopped in the middle of a sentence, and sitting down (as teachers did in those days) he said, "Today this Scripture has been fulfilled . . ." In other words, as Americans would put it. This is it. This is my plan of life. This prophecy, hundreds of years old, describes what I am and what I am doing. In short, Jesus took this prophecy to himself, as a self-portrait. It is more like a motion picture than a still picture; it expresses what he was, in terms of what he did.

For Others

That, by the way, is typical of the Bible way of describing people. Adjectives like "good," "merciful," "truthful," always have verbs behind them. Adjectives describe actions. A man does not have one kind of character and another kind of action. His actions are his character,—not his external actions alone, but together with the motives and intentions which are a true part of every act. Now Jesus describes himself and his plan for life not only in terms of action, but of action in relation to other persons. John Wesley says somewhere that when Christianity ceases to be social it is not any longer Christian. The idea that any one can become a higher type of Christian by retiring permanently from the world, devoted exclusively to prayer and contemplation, is a notion not derived from Jesus. For him, the meaning of life is in contact with other persons. But note the sort of person Jesus mentions: the poor, the captives, the blind, the bruised . . . the very people so many of us avoid. Most people jump at the chance to get their pictures taken with famous people. Jesus' self-portrait was a picture of him with obscure people, people in trouble. What would happen in a community if every church member became more interested in doing something for people than in "doing" people?

For All Others

What really enraged those churchgoers of Nazareth was not that Jesus was dedicated to helping others. That was fine, they were all in favor of it. The thing that raised them to murder-heat was that he drew no lines. He was for helping one and all, yes even Gentiles. What Jews of that day thought of Gentiles is expressed in a passage from a popular book written about the same time as the New Testament: "For our sakes you (God) made this first-born world. But as for the rest of the nations which are sprung from Adam, you have said they are nothing and are like spittle." (II Esdras 6:56). So when Jesus made it clear that he (like Elijah and Elisha before him) would draw no race or national lines, that he intended to carry God's love to the last and least of men, these race-proud Nazarenes threatened to lynch him.

Red Feather

Did you ever note the excuses
That many people make
Especially when the thankless tasks
Are ready for the take?

Now if those who are too busy
Could see their crippled child walk
I'm sure that they would make the time.
And find it east to talk.

And those who say, "I helped last year"
"Now let some one else do it"
If they could see their blind one smile.
I know they'd hop right to it!

"Last year some people acted horrid
I just won't ask this year"
But if their Scout received awards
I'm sure they'd ask don't fear!

And if their own Retarded Child
Could find a bit of light
I'm sure the burden would grow dim
They'd get right out and fight!

If the Cancer Patient were their own
And the burden got them down
I'll bet they wouldn't go so much
And be glad to work in town.

So God Bless those who say, "Of course
I'll just do the best I can."
And special blessings on each one
Who take time for their fellowmen!

Mrs. Hedges Gives Origin, History, World Temperance Sunday

Mrs. Floyd Hedges presented the topic Thursday afternoon before members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, who were entertained by Miss Mabel Parrish at her home at the corner of Ellsworth and Madison streets.

Mrs. Hedges spoke on "Temperance Education in Church School," giving the origin and history of Temperance Sunday. She stated that a committee was appointed in 1874 to aid Sunday schools and public schools in teaching children the ethics, chemistry, physiology and Hygeine of total abstences. The committee became a department in 1877 and in 1880 presented a petition to the International Sunday school Association asking for a provision for quarterly temperance lessons in the regular course of study.

The petition was granted in 1881 and in 1887 the International Sunday School Association committee began preparing quarterly temperance lessons. In 1894 World's Temperance Sunday was suggested by the Sunday School Union of London, England and in 1897 this was accomplished. Since 1943, the last Sunday in October became recognized as World Temperance Sunday.

Mrs. Hedges closed with the quotation from Martin Luther in 1520, in which he said "Where Will We Find a sermon strong enough to restrain us from a scandalous, hoggish life and rescue us from this drink devil, and also the reading titled "Water and Wine."

The theme for the devotions conducted by Mrs. S. Kahl Dustin was taken from the first Psalm. She likened the life of an individual as one looking in a mirror, "Beholding what Manner of Man Ye Are. "She closed with a poem "My Burden." Mrs. Hedges sang "Jesus, the Sweetest Name I Know."

Mrs. Ralph Helfrich will represent the local Union as a delegate at the State convention to be held in Peru, November 1 to 4.

Needlecraft News

by Nancy Baxter

So you'd like to make a stole! You may have thought of knitting or crocheting one, or stitching one up on your sewing machine—but have you considered weaving? A clever weaving technique that's the simplest thing in the world to learn, opens new vistas to women who are looking for an easy, do-it-yourself method of creating fabrics of interesting texture.

WEAVING ON SCRIM

Anyone can do it. With rayon lace curtain material acting as a loom, all you do is fill in the spaces with yarn by weaving in and out of the open mesh. Rayon scrim, a lightweight but durable fabric of open weave, lends itself beautifully to this simple weaving. For the weaving process, a piece of scrim is held taut on a curtain stretcher, or placed on a flat surface and weighted at the ends. The yarn for weaving is cut in lengths. With a long tapestry needle, each length of yarn is worked under and over the rayon threads until all spaces are filled. The ends of the yarn are then knotted into tassels for fringe and, as simply as that, the stole is completed. Afghans, too, are made in this manner with larger pieces of scrim. Unique effects can be achieved by weaving one or more colors of yarn at determined intervals throughout.

HAND-WOVEN STOLE

Enjoy the luxury of a hand-woven stole and the fun of making it yourself. This flowing, fringed stole is yours for the weaving with two colors of knitting worsted and a length of rayon scrim. And the complete directions for making it, with diagram, are yours for the asking. Simply send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper for your copy of SCRIM STOLE, Leaflet No. PC 8213.

Wilsons Of Near Pierceton To Observe Silver Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson will keep open house Sunday at their country home one mile northwest of Pierceton. Friends will be received from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. They will be assisted during the afternoon by their daughter, Cynthia, and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elson Wilson.

No written invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Wilson but they extend an invitation to all neighbors, friends and relatives to call during the afternoon.

Well-known in this part of the state, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson own and operate the Alfran Nursing Home on Old Road 30 West, where they have been located for the past 12 years.

Mrs. Wilson is the former Alice M. Bowman, Chicago, eldest daughter of Mrs. Frank Baker of Pierceton, and Mr. Wilson, the only son of the Rev. Dudley Wilson, at that time pastor of the Presbyterian church at Pierceton. They were married at the home of Mr. Wilson's sister, Mrs. Walter Ford in Fort Wayne.

acheslav M. Molotov had upheld its publication Thursday night.

Molotov had manuevered the delay apparently until he could ready a rival document of his own to be presented today.

The Big Four sat down to talk European treaties against the background of a looming threat of a new shooting war between Arabs and Jews in the Middle East.

An Israeli raid on Egypt, in which both sides claimed a number of casualties inflicted on the other, brought an urgent hour-long meeting between MacMillan and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

A Limited Armament

The nine points of the Western proposal were:

1. Renunciation of the use of force by a promise to settle international disputes by peaceful means.

2. Without support from aggressors, including military and economic assistance.

3. Limitation of forces and armaments in a one of comparable size and depth and importance on both sides of the line of demarcation between a reunifified Germany and the Eastern European countries. (Authoritative sources said the line at present would be the Oder-Neisse border of East Germany, although that was not mentioned in the document.)

4. Both sides would provide progressive information on their armed forces within the control zone and agree on mutual inspection to guard against surprise attack.

5. Each side would set up a radar warning system in the territory of the other.

Right of Self-Defense

6. There would be suitable provision for consultation among the parties to implement the treaty, but this would not be in a permanent form that would rival the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

7. Nothing in the treaty would change the right of self-defense. No nation could continue to station armed forces in the territory of the other without agreement, unless they are part of a collective defense agreement.

8. Each nation would agree that an attack in Europe by a NATO member on a non-NATO member, or vice versa, "would endanger the peace and security . . . and that all the parties would then take appropriate action to meet that common danger."

9. The provisions "would come into effect progressively at stages to be agreed."

Meanwhile, Western officials said the United States, Britain and France would reassure Israel that it would be protected against aggression under the terms of the three-power 1950 declaration on the stability of the Middle East. This probably was considered by Dulles and MacMillan at their pre-conference meeting this morning.

Frank Carlson Says More People Hopeful Ike Will Run Again

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kans) said today he is finding "more and more" Republicans regaining hope that President Eisenhower will seek a second term despite his heart attack.

Long a close friend of the President, Carlson was one of his earliest backers for the 1952 Republican nomination.

"As the President's health improves," he told a reporter, "I find during my travels that more and more people are hopeful that the President will be able to run again."

Carlson declined to make any predictions, however, or to indicate that he had any knowledge of Mr. Eisenhower's intentions. He did make it clear that he thinks Mr. Eisenhower will be a sure thing if he should seek re-election.

GOP Second Thoughts

Since the President's heart attack five weeks ago, it has been widely believed that he would refuse renomination next year. But as his health has improved, a growing number of Republicans seem to be having second thoughts.

"I haven't counted him out yet," said one Eisenhower partisan. "I know he's devoted to his peace program and he would like to be sure it's carried on."

On the Democratic side of the political picture, the party's national chairman, Paul Butler, told a fund-raising dinner in Nashville, Tenn.:

Time For Unmasking

"It is time for the two-faced exhibition of the Republican Party to be unmasked and make its program appear what it is—a liberal mask for a reactionary program."

"We need an administration that means what it says and says what it means," Butler said.

Butler was introduced by Tennessee Gov. Frank Clement, mentioned as a Democratic vice presidential possibility. Sens. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), who is expected to seek the party's presidential nomination, and Albert Gore (D Tenn) also attended.

fense of his government.

Faure told the deputies what everybody realized — that today's confidence vote, supposedly on government financing of military operations in North Africa, was actually a vote on his demands for early general elections.

Last-Minute Lobbying

He urged the voters to vote strictly on the North Africa issue and to save the issue of the elections for later debate.

There was a half an hour intermission while Faure and Pinay made last-minute appeals to wavering deputies in the lobbies.

Ex-Premier Pierre Mendes-France, who came out in open opposition to his fellow Radical Socialist when Faure called for December elections, also was active in the lobbies.

Faure gambled his government's fate on the slim hope the assembly would keep him in office rather than rob France of its voice at Geneva. Pinay flew to Paris to bolster Faure's defense.

It appeared plain that Faure was on his way out—if not now, after Geneva. There was no doubt about the threat the confidence test carried for the Big Four talks. Pinay told newsmen in Geneva he would not return if Faure is overthrown.

There was no indication at what hour the vote would begin. Normal practice in the faction - ridden chamber calls for hours of bitter and often acrimonious debate before the actual showdown vote.

There was an outside hope Faure would squeeze past because his rightist opponents prefer him to former Premier Pierre Mendes-France. Mendes-France as leader of the Radical Socialist Party would almost surely succeed Faure.

Behind the vote was the Socialist Party contention that Faure's government is "incapable of facing up to the difficulties of the hour to put an end to the conflicts in North Africa."

But the real point at issue was Faure's insistence the nation hold an almost unprecedented wintertime general election and that the assembly cut short its life which would run until next June.

Church Of England Summons People To Pray For Princess

LONDON (UP)—A Church of England publication summoned the nation today to pray for Princess Margaret whose obvious heartache and indecision over Peter Townsend has rallied new support to her side.

She gave open evidence of that heartache, and fresh evidence that she has not yet decided, by taking her problem to Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the archbishop of Canterbury, chief foe of the remarriage of a divorced person.

The Church Times, an unofficial weekly edited by members of the Church of England for its clergy, called for prayers that the princess "may be guided and directed aright" in the debate over whether to marry the man she loves.

There had been a decided swing of opinion against what one newspaper dared to call the "affair" with Townsend, but the growing realization of her inner struggle was winning new support.

The Times of London opened its columns today to a letter of support from Dr. Gilbert Murray, one of Britain's greatest scholars. Murray, a man of letters, is one of the few who have been awarded the Queen's own Order of Merit.

He wrote the Times to protest its editorial stating that Margaret must leave the royal family if she married Townsend.

The nation's biggest circulation newspaper, the Daily Mirror, declared journalistic war on the Times for what it termed "a plan to force upon the princess a cruel choice."

The mirror said the Times had broken its "cowardly silence" to make "the first sinister move in an ugly plan to force upon the princess a heartless, cruel choice. This is what the Times sets out to tell the princess:

"She must give up Peter Townsend forever. Or she must be banished from the royal circle. . . (and) presumably spend the rest of her life like the luckless Windsors, without roots, without purpose, without hope."

Propose Increase In Cost Of Indiana Driver's Licenses

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UP)—A 50-cent increase in the cost of Indiana driver's licenses was proposed today to bolster the driver training program in state high schools.

Morris Carter, director of the State Motor Vehicles Bureau, suggested at the windup of a three-day governmental conference that the two-year fee be boosted from $1.50 to $2.

He said the state would obtain $625,000 more each year from such an increase and could use the money to expand driver training programs. They now are offered in only about 40 per cent of the state's high schools and less than 50 per cent of the students have an opportunity to take the course, he said.

Joe Lingo, state traffic safety director, agreed the program should be expanded. He also proposed compulsory periodic inspection of cars and tracks and said auto manufacturers should concentrate more on safety features and less on speed and horsepower.

Governor Craig staged a televised "cabinet meeting" to help Hoosiers learn how their government operates.

Bereaved Baseball World Mourns Death Of One Of Its Elder Statesmen, Clark Griffith

BBy ERNEST BBARCELLA
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — A bereaved baseball world today mourned the death of one of the last of its elder statesmen — Clark Griffith, owner - president of the Washington Senators and co - founder of the American League.

Death came quietly to the 85-year-old Griffith. His personal physician, Dr. George A. Resta, said the beloved "Old Fox" of baseball died in his sleep at 9:40 p.m., EDT Thursday night.

For five days Griffith had waged an up-and-down fight against a massive stomach hemorrhage and other complications. Doctors despaired of his life last Sunday, but he rallied and told his family on Wednesday that he intended to be out of the hospital by Nov. 20 — his 86th birthday.

But Griffith's gallant heart finally gave out.

Only his son, Calvin, and Resta were at the bedside when the end came. Other members of the family had not kept a constant vigil because Griffith had appeared to be improving.

Griffith was hospitalized Oct. 19 for treatment of neuritis. Three days later he was stricken with a massive stomach hemorrhage. Then he developed lung congestion and doctors feared he was near death.

But he rallied, only to suffer a relapse and die.

Griffith's death removed from the active baseball scene the last of the game's great big league pioneers. It marked the end of an era and a fabulous career that was dedicated completely to the national pasttime.

He devoted 69 of his nearly 86 years to baseball — as a pitcher, manager, owner and unofficial "goodwill ambassador" for the game.

It was he who brought baseball into the White House and who personally interceded with two presidents — Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt — to win a "green light" for baseball during the two world wars. And it was Griffith who not only brought presidents out to the ball game, but persuaded them to throw out the ceremonial first ball — a custom he inaugurated with William Howard Taft.

Griffith died before he could fulfill his greatest yearning — just one more pennant for his Senators, who finished last in 1955. Washington has not won a pennant since the second of Griffith's two "boy wonder" managers — Joe Cronin —piloted the team to the American League championship in 1933. Griffith's original "boy wonder" manager — Bucky Harris — masterminded the Senators to their first pennant and world championship in 1924 and a second successive American League pennant in 1925.

Record Cash Trade

Griffith was one of baseball's shrewdest traders. His biggest deal —which still stands as a record cash transaction for one player—came in 1934 when he sold his son-in-law Joe Cronin to the Boston Red Sox for $250,000 cash and one player.

Although famed as a trader and owner, Griffith is immortalized in baseball's "Hall of Fame" at Cooperstown, N.Y., for his pitching greatness.

Griffith, who broke into organized baseball in Bloomington, Ill., at the age of 17, went on to establish a pitching record which ranks him among the 12 top major league pitchers of all time.

In 17 full seasons of big league pitching, starting in 1891, he won 237 games and lost 149.

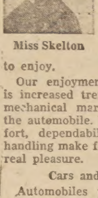
Modern Automobiles Help Americans Enjoy Leisure

By Betty Skelton, Dodge Test Driver

Have you ever thought how different life would be without cars, planes, and radios—or without electric refrigerators and automatic washers, vacuum cleaners and all the modern appliances that reduce the drudgery of housework and increase the supply of our precious leisure?

Not long ago, I drove into the country to visit some friends, and while there I met a wise old gentleman who has lived in those parts a long time. As we talked he gave me his views on many things, but especially on the progress America has made since the turn of the century.



Miss Skelton

For example, he reminded me that the average length of life in America has increased by fifteen years. And that we live not only longer, but also a great deal better, with far more leisure time to enjoy.

Our enjoyment of that leisure is increased tremendously by the mechanical marvel of our age—the automobile. Its luxurious comfort, dependability, and ease of handling make family excursions a real pleasure.

Cars and Vacations

Automobiles provided vacation enjoyment to millions of families during the past summer. It is estimated that 66 million Americans climbed into 22 million motor cars for trips that averaged 1,200 miles for 11 days.

These travelers enjoyed seeing our country in a way that was impossible 50 years ago. They toured the highways, free to take any side trips that seemed interesting or to stop and relax whenever they desired.

More and more motorists are discovering the joy of using leisure time for taking the family car on camping trips. With the roominess of modern cars, the whole family goes along for an ideal weekend of camping in the lake country or at the mountains.

The Wall Street Journal recently carried evidence of this trend, when it pointed out that the sale of camping and outdoor cooking equipment is skyrocketing.

Attend Far-away Events

Motorists who live 50 or 100 miles from the stadium still have the pleasure of seeing the big football game. They think nothing of getting in the car for an easy trip to any such enjoyable event only a few hours away by car.

We take our children on educational sightseeing tours that were denied children of yesteryear. Thousands of hunters reach game areas in a short time, permitting them extra hours in which to enjoy the spare time pleasure of stalking the deer or other game.

Yes, the sage old gentleman certainly was right when he remarked that we have made tremendous progress in the past 50 years. What in the world did people do with their leisure time before the days of the automobile?

America's most famous woman driver, Miss Skelton holds the woman's automotive speed record of 143.44 mph, and is the only woman test driver in the automotive industry. Address any questions or suggestions about cars, safety, and driving problems to her in care of this newspaper.

Roberts, Schultz In Feature Match

PINEHURST, N. C. (UP)—Pre-tournament favorite J. W. Roberts of Columbus, Ohio, and surprising Fred Schultz of Evanston, Ill., met today in the feature semi-finla match of the fourth annual North and South Seniors Invitation Golf Championship.

The other semi - final matched Michigan Seniors champion C. J. Farley of Grand Rapids against B. J. Kraffert Jr. of Titusville, Pa., who makes his winter home here and is a local favorite.

Schultz, who knocked off former winner Judd Brumley of Greenville, Tenn., in the second round, pulled another upset in Thursday's quarter-finals as he downed medalist C. D. McAllister of Orlando, Fla., one up, in 21 holes.

Roberts, Southern Seniors champ and last year's North - South runner - up, coasted to an easy 3 and 2 win over Eugene Pittman of Washington. Farley beat Paul A. Dunkel of Ridgewood, N.J., 2 and 1, while Kraffert beat E. F. Quittner of Jenkintown, Pa., 3 and 1.

Jackson-Slade 10-Rounder Tonight

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP) — Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, the fast climbing, clowning heavyweight contender, will lay his title ambitions on the line tonight in a 10-round bout with spoiler Jimmy Slade in the Cleveland Arena.

Tonight's non - televised fight is the third meeting of the New Yorkers. Slade took a decision from Jackson in April, 1954, but Jackson came back last June to even the score.

The fight card also has middleweight Rocky Castellani of Cleveland paired against Pedro Gonzales of Pittsburgh in a second 10-rounder. Castellani decisioned Gonzales in a previous meeting.

Gonsalves Meets Lulu Perez Tonight

NEW YORK UP) — Slick-boxing Johnny Gonsalves of Oakland, Calif., who holds a decision over lightweight champion Wallace (Bud) Smith, is favored at 7½ to 5 to halt the budding lightweight career of Lulu Perez tonight in a TV-radio 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

Gonsalves, ninth ranking contender for Smith's 135-pound crown is a lighter puncher than Perez but is picked on his good left jab, sneaker right, experience, and defensive skill.

Part of Oakland Johnny's experience was a decision over Smith last year. That was before Smith won the lightweight title. They met again this year and fought to a draw, also before Smith's accession to the crown.

Perez, 22-year-old speed merchant from Brooklyn, is a former featherweight contender and tonight's clash marks only his second appearance as a lightweight.

The often down-trodden Chicago Black Hawks joined in the New York Fangers today in the rarified upper half of the National Hockey League standings today.

The Hawks, who gained their first victory over the Montreal Canadiens since Jan. 24, 1953 Thursday night, 4-1, moved into a second place tie with New York today, only one point back of the pace setting Canadiens.

Court Suspends Sparks' Sentence

Finding Ralph Sparks, 48, South Whitley barber, guilty on a disorderly conduct charge, Judge Lowell Pefley in circuit court late Thursday fined him $1 and costs totaling $19.80 and imposed a 60 day penal farm sentence which he suspended for two years upon Sparks' good behavior.

The court found that Sparks is an habitual drunkard and ordered that it will be unlawful for anyone to sell or provide him with any alcoholic beverages. Sparks was granted 30 days in which to pay his fine and costs.

Court Directs Verdict For Nickel Plate

A directed verdict for the Nickel Plate railroad that Charles E. Hammond, Huntington county, recover nothing from the railroad, resulted in circuit court Thursday after hearing of evidence in the $25,000 damage suit brought by Hammond.

The suit was venued here from Huntington county and was the outgrowth of a train auto collision on state road 3 in 1952.

The directed verdict followed Judge Lowell Pefley's sustaining a motion of the defense counsel. The court instructed the jury to return the verdict through its foreman, Harvey R. Maggert.

Costs totaling $440.10 were levied against the plaintiff. These will be collected from the Huntington circuit court in which the suit originated.

Appearing for Hammond were attorneys Lee M. Bowers, Leas & Hines of Fort Wayne, and Whiteleather & Whiteleather of this city. Defense attorneys were Albert Harker of Marion, Spencer & Spencer of Huntington, and Gates & Gates, city.

Year 1955 Fast Shaping Up As Most Fantastic

NEW YORK (UP) — The year 1955 is fast shaping up as the the most fantastic in history.

Industry already has rounded out the greatest nine months on record and is operating full blast in the all-important final three months of the year.

So far it appears certain new records will be chalked up in steel production, automobile sales, construction activity and petroleum consumption — all key barometers of the nation's health.

This boom of unprecedented proportions is mirrored in the earnings of America's corporate giants.

Industry spokesmen, after a quick look at nine-month earnings statements, admit that it is "a sure thing" 1955 will go down in the books as the greatest year for earnings.

Such corporate giants as General Motors, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Bethlehem Steel and U.S. Steel are setting the torrid earnings pace.

Take General Motors, for instance. The world's biggest auto maker this year will become the first company ever to earn more than one billion dollars after taxes.

All along the line it's the same story: Earnings up substantially over 1954 and at or near record levels.

The mammoth Standard Oil Co. —the world's biggest oil company with operations on all six continents — also whizzed along at breath-taking speed in the earnings department.

The dynamic steel industry—producing steel at a faster clip for peace than it ever did for war—gave notice this week that it too was a force to be reckoned with.

Both U.S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel—the two biggest steel makers — reported record-breaking earnings for the first nine months of 1955, paving the way for a record year.

The trend is the same in other industries.

Who's behind this boom? You, the consumer. Americans have been on a dazzling buying spree that spells an eight million-car year for the auto makers, a 115 million-ton year for the steel industry and an almost 42-billion-dollar year for the construction industry—all new highs.

Church Rites To Be Held Sunday For Mrs. McClain, 99

Was A Native Of Smith Township

Mrs. Martha E. McClain, 99, died at 12:50 p.m. Thursday at the Whitley County Hospital where she had been a patient for four days. Monday morning she suffered the fracture of her right hip in a fall. Prior to the hip injury she had never been ill.

She was born January 2, 1956, in Smith township, Whitley county, a daughter of Joseph and Nancy Harper Waugh. January 10, 1884, she was united in marriage to Phillip Dennis McClain. They started housekeeping in this city where Mr. McClain operated the city dray business for many years. In the year 1903 they moved to Fort Wayne and three years later they came to their farm in Smith township where they continued to make their home until Mr. McClain's death in January 1940. Following the death of her husband, Mrs. McClain has made her home with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Earlin Budd, residents three miles north of Churubusco in Green township, Noble county. Her church affiliation was with the Blue River Methodist church.

The surviving relatives, in addition to the daughter, Mrs. Mary Budd, are one son, B. H. McClain of Churubusco; four grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren. In addition to her husband, two sons, four brothers, and six sisters have preceded her in death.

The body has been removed to the Sonday Funeral Home where friends may call after 7:00 p.m. Friday. At noon Sunday, it will be taken to the Blue River Methodist Church to lie in state until the hour of the service. The church pastor, the Rev. Enrest Minegar, will officiate at the memorial rites at church cemetery.

Protect Cottages From Fall Rodents

LAFAYETTE, — Summer cottage owners were warned today by G. C. Oderkirk, rodent specialist at Purdue University, to protect their property from invasions of mice, squirrels, and birds this winter.

Oderkirk said the fireplace chimney should be capped with one-half inch or one inch mesh hardware cloth to keep out squirrels and birds. Squirrels will play havoc with window frames and household items if they get in and can't get out of the cottages.

Squirrels also get in through holes under eaves, and mice enter holes around doors and sills. These holes should be closed with meshed wire or sheet metal. Tree branches should be cut back to keep squirrels off the roof.

As a final preventive measure, a poisoned bait should be set for mice in low dishes in several spots anticoagulant poison makes a good bail.

Set a pail of water inside a newly painted room and the paint odor will disappear faster.

States should use discretion, he added, and forebearance in "helping Asians to help themselves."

The convention moved into its second day with about 17,000 educators meeting at Indianapolis and 13,000 at ort Wayne, South Bend, Gary and Evansville.

The Indianapolis delegates heard Governor Craig and Edward Tomlinson, former magazine editor and NBC news commentator, Thursday night.

In Thursday's business session, Miss Rhoda Williams of Fort Wayne was elected president of the association. Ivan York Daviess County school superintendent, was elected vice-president.

Adopt 14 Resolutions

The delegates adopted 14 resolutions. One recommended a study by the State Department of Public Instruction and teacher and superintendents' groups for a "more realistic evaluation" of training in the issuance of teaching licenses for persons educated outside the state.

In one of the few resolutions adopted without unanimous approval, the ISTA supported the United Nations and the programs of UNESCO and the World Conference Organization of the Teaching Profession.

The delegates provided for a committee to study and make recommendations concerning class size, length of school year and teacher work load.

A motion for a straw vote approving integration of social security and the teacher retirement program was voted down after a vigorous discussion. A resolution urging teachers to vote in the question's December referendum passed.

The delegates urged teachers refrain from affiliating with organizations advocating either the overthrow of the government by force or violation of any laws.

IT DID NOT COST ANYWAY NEAR ONE MILLION DOLLARS!

A REMINDER

Lest we lose sight of the facts, we thought a review of the accomplishments of the last Democratic administration from 1948-52 might refresh our memories.

1. Inaugurated the first city owned and operated garbage pickup, trash collection and burial of garbage by use of a vermin proof vehicle.

..(Formerly picked up by contract hauling in fly infested and unsanitary open truck.)

2. The very latest in modern downtown street lighting Also some arc lights in residential areas.

3. Inaugurated first paving and dust proofing of the alleys.

4. Installation of parking meters to alleviate downtown parking congestion.

5. Reduction of property tax rate by meter revenue.

6. Originated sinking fund for building of a water tower for added pressure to our water system, also for better fire protection and reduction of insurance rates.

7. New street signs over entire city; a great improvement over the unreadable signs.

8. Redecorated city hall from top to bottom, replace toilets in rest rooms for a more sanitary city public building.

9. Purchased chlorinated system to safeguard drinking water and the public health.

10. Gave the community a new factory. (Ion Capacitor Corporation.) This was done strictly through the efforts of the city council, mayor, city attorney and superinendent of city utilities.

11. Originated the police protection at crosswalks on state highways for school children's safety. A plan continued by the present administration.

12. Purchased the first street sweeper to keep our streets clean.

13. Started rural fire protection system.

We Do Not Advocate An Avalanche Of New Expenditures To Overtax The Capacity Of The City. We Do Advocate A forward Vision Of Growth And Prosperity For Columbia City Through Various Progressive Actions.

Egyptian Artillery Crosses Gaza Demilitarized Zone Into Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (UP) — Egyptian artillery thundered across the Gaza demilitarized zone between Israel and Egypt during the night and Egyptian troops were repulsed in two attempts to capture advanced Israeli positions, an army spokesman said today

No Israeli casualties were reported.

The Egyptian artillery barrage was directed against advanced Israeli positions at Nirim, one of the chain of small settlements along the powderkeg Gaza strip.

It was Egypt's answer to the retaliatory stab of Israeli forces five miles into Egyptian territory at El Kuntilla in which the Israelis claimed 10 Egptians killed and 20 captured.

Attack Twice

Announcing the new flare - up, Israeli military spokesman Maj. Dan Gov said Egyptian forces attacked Nirim positions in platoon strength with mortar and machinegun support twice during the night.

The attacks were repulsed each time, he said.

Israel lodged a complaint with the United Nations over the attacks and truce commission observers were sent to the Gaza area, scene of many bloody clashes in recent months, to investigate.

Chicago Police Are Up Against Blank Wall Today

In Sadistic Slaying Of Three Schoolboys

CHICAGO UP) — "No new clues. No new suspects."

With these words, Chicago police admitted for the first time today that they are up against a blank wall in the sadistic slaying of three schoolboys.

The words came from Lt. Patrick Deele, head of a special police unit on the case.

At the same time, Deeley announced that 18 crack detectives of his specially formed 52-man unit have broadened the search for the killers of the boys, Robert Peterson, 13, John Schuessler, 13, and his brother, Anton, 11.

The nude mutilated bodies were found stacked in a ditch.

The detectives were assigned to comb railroad yards, shanties, fields and wooded areas to the west of the preserve.

Two of the crack officers were personally assigned to the case on Friday by police commissioner Timothy O'Connor.

The are Tom Devitt and Jack Lubeznik. They recently worked on the dramatic case of Richard Carpenter, who killed one cop and wounded another and eluded police for days until he was trapped in an apartment where he had held a family captive for 24 hours.

They also solved the recent case of a pretty girl who was slain after attending a G.I. dance, obtaining a confession from a soldier.

The boys vanished on a Sunday night, Oct. 16, after leaving their northwest side homes in the afternoon to attend a movie.

Cars Crash On Road 14; Carl Kneller Hurt

His Car Struck By Vehicle Operated By Jack McNabb

Carl Kneller, 50, resident near Laud, was injured about 6:30 p.m. Friday one mile east of state road 9 on state road 14 when his car was struck almost broadside by the vehicle operated by Jack D. McNabb, 51, resident in the same community.

McNabb, unhurt except for a few scratches and bruises, was arrested for driving while intoxicated and brought to the jail here by Sheriff Galen O. Adair.

Kneller was taken to the Whitley County Hospital in the DeMoney ambulance. He suffered a broken right leg, several fractured ribs, and lacerations about the head. Both McNabb's 1953 Hduson Hornet and the 1948 Frazer sedan of Kneller were considered totally wrecked.

According to state police who investigated the accident, Kneller was eastbound on state road 14 and McNabb was westbound. McNabb failed to negotiate a curve a mile east of the road 9 and 14 intersection and his vehicle started traveling west on the south highway berm. Kneller, eastbound, tried to miss the careening car by crossing to the north side of the highway. However, McNabb pulled his car back onto the highway and his auto hit Kneller's broadside. The McNabb car spun around backwards, going southward and came to rest about two feet off the south side of the highway, facing east. Kneller's car was spun around by the collision and faced south. It stopped about four feet from the north edge of the pavement, the rear portion of the car being on the north berm.

Escape Unhurt From Crash On Road 205

Leslie Dale Pence, 21, South Whitley music teacher, and Curtis L. Miller, 49, Columbia township farmer living southwest of here, escaped unhurt except for minor bruises when their vehicles collided on state road 205 about 8:30 p.m. Friday.

Damage to Mr. Pence's car has been estimated at $500 while that to Miller's is expected to approximate $250.

Mr. Pence, who resides at 352 North Elm street, was going southwest on road 205 while Mr. Miller was headed northeast. At a point about two and a half miles southwest of Columbia City Mr. Pence attempted to go around another car, also headed southwest. When he saw the approaching Miller auto he applied his brakes quickly. He lost control of his machine and it struck the Miller vehicle.

The accident was investigated by state police.

Firemen Are Summoned When Motor Burns

When an electric motor which operates a walk-in refrigerator at the Whitley County Hospital burned, the fire department was called to the institution at about 11:40 last night. The motor was located in a room adjacent to the hospital kitchen in the basement of the building. Smoke from the hot motor caused hospital personnel to turn in the alarm. Damage was only to the motor itself.

Rescues Woman From Burning Apartment

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Mardon G. De Michele, 14, Gary, Ind., was cited today by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission for rescuing a 65-year-old woman from her burning apartment.

Mardon won a bronze medal for saving Mrs. Lesta M. Gambill, last March 26. He was one of 28 persons cited for outstanding acts of heroism.

The commission's resume of the case said:

"De Michele, aged 14, schoolboy, rescued Lesta M. Gambill, aged 65, from burning, Gary, Ind., March 26, 1955.

"Mrs. Gambill, who was recovering from an illness, was asleep in the living room of a basement apartment when a fire broke out at a stove and ignited the adjoining walls.

Screams for Help

"Awakening, Mrs. Gambill knocked on the ceiling and screamed, attracting her 10-year-old grandson and Mardon, who were in the apartment above. Mardon ran outside, continued to the door of the basement living room, and entered. In the corner adjacent to the stove, flames rose from the floor to the ceiling, extending three feet from the walls.

"Mardon ran through the living room and kitchen and found Mrs. Gambill searching for a sweater in a room at the rear of the apartment. He urged her to leave with him at once. The flames spread to the kitchen doorway, and Mardon, who realized the only path to the outside door was blocked, ran to a kitchen window, Mrs. Gambill following him.

Pulled From Window

"Breaking the glass, Mardon opened the window and climbed outside. Standing in a wheelbarrow, he got hold of Mrs. Gambill as she extended her head and shoulders through the opening. He had drawn Mrs. Gambill partly out o fthe kitchen when the windowframe dropped upon her back, wedging her in the opening.

"The advancing flames in side burned at Mrs. Gambill's legs and ignited her dress. With his fist, Mardon tore the window frame from its hinges, and he and the grandson pulled Mrs. Gambill out side.

"They put out the flames on her clothing with snow. Firemen arrived shortly afterward and in 20 minutes extinguished the flames which gutted the apartment.

"Mrs. Gambill suffered severe burns and was hospitalized for an extended period, her legs being amputated. Mardon's hair was singed, and he suffered hand cuts which healed."

Adlai To Take Part In Several Primary Contests

Supporters Says Announcement Soon

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Adlai E. Stevenson will enter a number of presidential primaries in an aggressive campaign for the Democratic nomination, informed sources said today.

Supporters of the former Illinois governor predicted he will announce his participation in primary contests at the same time he formally announces his candidacy for the nomination. That will be soon, they said.

There was one report that the announcement would be made tonight at a meeting of Democratic party leaders in Duluth, Minn. where Stevenson is to speak.

Stevenson's associates here were inclined to doubt that. But they admitted an announcement, coupled with a statement that Stevenson will enter a slate of delegates in the Minnesota primary, is "possible."

Stevenson is said to have been advised that he can make a good race in the Minnesota primary. Minnesota's is the second of the presidential primaries. It will be held next March 20, a week after New Hampshire's.

Democrats supporting other candidates expect Stevenson to enter some presidential primaries. Local supporters of Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) regarded Stevenson's entry in the Minnesota primary as a certainty.

Benson Defended

On the Repblican side, Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson defended the administration's flexible farm price support program in a speech at Moorhead, Minn. He vowed that he will not resign or change his basic program "regardless of political pressure."

House Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends (Ill) joined other GOP leaders who have come to Benson's defense. Arends said the continued drop in farm prices is "deplorable" but contended that a return to rigid supports of 90 per cent of parity will not solve the problem.

Arends accused Stevenson and New York Gov. Averell Harriman, another possible Democratic presidential nominee, of using the farm program as "a political football" in calling for a return to rigid supports.

In another development, Sen. Barry Goldwater (Ariz.), chairman of the Senate GOP campaign committee, accused labor leaders of spending union funds in politics — mostly to elect Democrats — without giving rank-and-file members any say in the matter.

Goldwater said 41 per cent of union workers questioned in a recent university survey were Republicans. In the same survey, he said, 43 per cent of the workers questioned said unions should take no part in politics.

Prosecuting Attorney Edward J. Meyers has indicated that grand larceny charges upon the auto stripping, and breaking and entering upon the Snyder burglary will be filed against the two who are David A. Kuhn, 25, of Warsaw and James A. Hepler, 20, of Leesburg.

House GOP Whip Calls Farm Price Drop Deplorable

Says Congress Must Deal With Problem

By VINCENT J. BURKE
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — House Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends (Ill) said today the continued drop in farm prices is "deplorable" and "I don't blame farmers for hollering."

"Congress has got to deal with the problem," he told a reporter. "We've got to find the answer."

He spoke out after the Agriculture Department reported that farm prices, measured against the costs farmers pay for production and living expense items, have dropped to the lowest level in 15 years.

The department said that during the month ending Oct. 15 farm prices dropped two per cent and the prices of things that farmers buy went up one third of one per cent. As a result, farm prices averaged only 82 per cent of parity lowest since November, 1940.

Parity is a price calculated to give farmers a theoretically fair return for their products in comparison with the cost of things they must buy. If the index of prices paid equalled the index of prices received, the parity rate would be 100 per cent.

Democrats Woo Farmers

The new report on farm prices furnished added fuel for Democrats seeking to woo farmers into Democratic column for the 1956 presidential campaign. It showed farm prices on an average have dropped five per cent in the last year, 7.6 per cent in the last two years, 18 per cent in the last three years, and now stand 26.5 per cent below the record high of February, 1951.

Community Halloween Festivities Planned

Just a reminder that, as proclaimed by Mayor Hood, Monday will be "trick or treat" night in Columbia City from 6 to 9 p.m. The residents are asked to meet the children with candy, fruit, gum or cookies. The Mayor made this proclamation to allow the youth of Columbia City to enjoy the celebration of the traditional Halloween season and at the same time restrict the celebrators from over-emphasizing the annual event.

The Lions Club at Tri Lakes have their plans all made for their Halloween party Monday night. They have planned a continuous entertainment consisting of several short movies, magic, periodic attendance prize drawings and judging for the best humorous costumes.

Churubusco is also having their Halloween celebration Monday evening. The main attraction will be the crowning of the queen, "Little Miss Busco" at the judging stand located on North Line street. The costumes will be judged and prizes will be awarded in 10 categories. Round and square dancing will follow the parade and crowning with music to be furnished by "The Notesmen," a six-piece band comprised of Churubusco high school students. The dance will be held on Line street.

The annual Halloween celebration will start at 7:00 tonight at South Whitley Library where all those masked will gather to start the parade. All those masked will be judged and following the judging there will be a cakewalk in the South Whitley high school gym.

Community Halloween festivities will also be held this evening at Pierceton and Roanoke.

Peronist Labor Leaders Call Off Threat Of Stirke

Agree To Bide By New Elections

By WILLIAM H. McCALL
United Press Staff Correspondent

BUENOS AIRES (UP) — Ousted Peronist labor leaders today cancelled the threat of a general strike and agreed to abide by new union elections.

Union officials who supported fallen dictator Juan D. Peron met with Labor Minister Luis Cerrutti and then issued a communique calling for "all workers to remain at their posts, confident that their rights will be protected."

The government ousted the heads of the unions making up the General Labor Confederation (CGT) Friday night in a showdown with Peron supporters in the labor movement.

Officers of the armed forces were ordered to preside over each union and three Labor Ministry inspectors were assigned to each union of the CGT.

The government announcement said each of the unions of the CGT would hold new elections 120 days from now.

Strike Threat Over

Swift government action ended the threat of a general strike which would have greatly hampered Argentina's campaign of economic recovery from years of misrule by Peron's graft-ridden government.

CGT leaders, among Peron's strongest supporters, used the general strike weapon to restore the dictator to power after he had been ousted and imprisoned by an army group in 1945.

Union leaders who supported Peron in the recent crisis which ended in the dictator's downfall served a virtual ultimatum on the new provisional government Friday to return the unions to them or face a general strike within 48 hours.

The CGT demanded that Cerrutti get rid of all union leaders who came to power after Peron was ousted and sent into exile and restore the deposed officers.

New Elections Ordered

Instead, the government issued a decree ousting all CGT leaders and ordering new elections.

The CGT leaders met early today to consider the government order. They appointed a special committee which met with Cerrutti and agreed to abide by the order, asking all workers to stay on their jobs.

Even if the strike had been called, anti-Peron labor leaders left little doubt that many workers would have stayed on the job.

The metal, oil, maritime, telephone and street car unions put up posters saying they would not heed the strike call.

Community Chest Campaign Reaches 70 Per Cent Mark

Gifts to the Community Chest of Whitley County poured in the last two days, moving the campaign to within 30 per cent of its goal, Clarence Gall, president, said today.

Total on deposit, including South Whitley, Churubusco and Columbia City banks, is $14,125.37, the Chest president said.

The campaign reached the 70 per cent mark with a complete progress report to be given the Board of Directors of the Community Chest at a meeting at noon Monday.

The largest division to come in during the past few days was the industrial. However, that division is not complete, according to Milton Schubert, chairman. A few firms are to complete the campaign in their plants early next week.

Ike To Confer With Secretary Of Agriculture

On Thorny Issue Of Falling Farm Prices

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower, feeling better by the day, scheduled an important "non-political" conference with Secretary of Agirculture Ezra T. Benson today on the thorny issue of falling farm prices.

Benson was flying to Denver from Fargo, N.D. on the President's own plane, the Columbine III, with a briefcase loaded with proposed legislative remedies for the biggest political headache confronting the GOP.

Also due here on the same plane were Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, who will see the President Monday at Fitzsimons Army Hospital; Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, who attended the cabinet meeting in Washington Friday, and Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, President of the Pennsylvania State University and one of the President's closest advisers who was making his third trip to the bedside of his brother.

Doctors Are Encouraged

The President's physicians reported these encouraging developments in his recovery from his Sept. 24 heartattack:

1. He left the eighth floor of the hospital Friday for the first time to have stand-up X-ray and fluoroscopic examinations, which showed that his "heart shadow" has not increased since his last checkup Aug. 1 at Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington. The doctors said this was the most significant statement in their daily bulletins

In Wake Of New Flareup Fighting In Middle East

Prepare To Renew Pledge To Act Against Aggression

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

GENEVA (UP) — The Western Big Three have decided to turn down Israel's pleas for arms and new security guarantees in the wake of the new flareup of Middle East fighting, authoritative sources said today.

The sources said, however, the Western Allies are preparing to renew their three-way 1950 declaration pledging action against aggression by either Israel or the Arab states.

The Big Three met this morning against a background of reports of new Israeli-Egyptian clashes in the Gaza frontier area.

A spokesman said the U.S., British and French foreign ministers had planned to discuss the explosive Middle East crisis.

But, in the end, he said, they devoted their session to a review of strategy for this afternoon's third session of the Big Four conference with Soviet Foreign Minister V.M. Molotov.

The spokesman added, however, the three Western powers already had decided to:

1. Continue to refuse arms for Israel to match Soviet bloc deliveries of arms to Egypt.

2. Refuse the new security guarantees demanded here and in Paris by Israeli Premier Moshe Sharett.

3. Offer Israel, instead, a renew-

Many Of Most Modern Features Built Into New Homes Along Old 30 West

Several new houses have been completed or are in the process of building along old Road 30 west of Columbia City. The land was formerly part of the Charles Thomson farm. All the houses have been planned to take advantage of the view.

The first group of homes, across from the 4-H grounds, are built without basements and are heated by electricity with baseboard units. The houses face almost north to the road with staggered placings.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McGehe and infant daughter, Michele, are living in their new two bedroom home. The living room is at the front with hitchen and dinette back of the living room. The bath and bedroom open from the hall. Closets have sliding doors. Mr. McGehe is manager of the automotive parts department at Schraders.

The Ronald Krider and Walter Wineland homes share a driveway which adds to the expanse of lawn. Each house has an attached garage placed so that only a short individual driveway is needed. The garages are heated.

The Krider home has three bedrooms and bath. The living room is at the front and the dinette and kitchen adjoin it. The long kitchen features cabinets and work areas on each side.

Mr. Krider is employed at the Salisbury Axle plant.

Mr. and Mrs. Krider have four children: Phyllis Louise, Linda Sue, Pamela Jo and John Albert.

The Wineland home has a cut gray stone front wall and wide wood siding on the others. The kitchen is in a U shape arrangement with dinette in one end. The doors are solid wood panel and have a natural finish. The house has two bedrooms, living room, bath and utility room.

BIRTHDAYS OF THE PRESIDENTS

By Robert C. Preble President, Encyclopaedia Britannica

Adams, Jefferson and Franklin at the drafting of the Declaration.

Father of the American Revolution . . . an author of the Declaration of Independence . . . first occupant of the White House . . . architect of America's continental empire — yet one of the most disliked of the early patriots; that was John Adams, born Oct. 30, 1735.

A blunt and fearless man, he offended friends almost as often as foes. He defied public opinion by acting as defense attorney for the British soldiers tried in 1770 for the Boston Massacre. He won most of them freedom — and because he had got American justice for an enemy, the people of Massachusetts were so proud they elected him to the legislature.

He strove incessantly for independence. "Let us eat potatoes and drink water. Let us wear canvas and undressed skins rather than submit!" he wrote. He brought about the organization of the Minutemen and the appointment of Washington as general.

In peace talks after the war he and John Jay, opposing Franklin at every turn, refused to consult with the French, fearing France might favor Spain in settling America's western boundary. Dealing directly with the British, they forced the boundary out to the Mississippi.

Though respected, Adams was seldom loved. He greatly offended many of his countrymen by insisting that the United States Senate should be largely made up of "the rich, the well-born, and the able." He served two terms as Washington's vice-president, and was himself named president in 1796. But a quarrel with Hamilton split his party and Jefferson defeated him in 1800.

Abigail, his wife, a clever and capable woman, also exhibited New England thriftiness. When the Adams family moved into the new White House she considered it too large — barnlike, she said — and she made the famous East Room into the presidential laundry. Adams and Jefferson both died on the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1826.

The Old Masters Conference To Be At Purdue University

LAFAYETTE, — The Old Masters Conference, a unique counceling feature at Purdue University in which outstanding leaders from the nation's business, industrial and special service fields come to the campus for informal meetings with students, will be held Oct. 30 through Nov. 2. Its function is to give students a sound philosophic basis, drawn from the experiences of these leaders, upon which to build their lives a scitizens.

This conference, which has proved highly successful in the five years of its history, is a student enterprise carried out under the direction of the offices of the Dean of Men and Dean of Women. Co-chairmen for the event this year are Craig Woodhouse, a senior in aeronautical engineering from Louisville, Ky., and Miss Joan Finnander, junior in home economics from Chicago.

The twelve leaders for the conference are as follows:

Allen D. Albert, director, Sheldon Swope Art Gallery, Terre Haute; John Burkhart, vice-president, College Life Insurance Company of America, Indianapolis; Robert F. C. Copeland, director, Product Advertising and Sales Promotion, Ford Motor Company, Dearborn, Mich.; Nila K. Covalt, M.D., Winter Park, Fla.; Lewis B. Edwards, assistant city editor, The Plain Dealer, Cleveland, O.; Miss Caroline Hood, director of public relations, Rockefeller Center, New York, N.Y.; S. B. Irelan, president, Cities Service Oil Company, Bartlesville, Okla,; G. A. Nothmann, manager, Mechanism and Dynamics Research Department, Armour Research Foundation, Chicago,; C. F. Olmstead, president, Lee Wilson Engineering Company, Cleveland, O.; Fred L. Schuster, agriculturist and economics advisor, Washington, D. C.; George L. P. Weaver, assistant to the secretary - treasurer, CIO, Washington, D.C.; and P. O. Wilson, , secretary-manager, National Livestock Producers Association, Chicago.

Each of these leaders will hold from six to nine meetings in the various residence units during the three days for informal discussions with students and answering their questions. Informality is the keynote of these meetings with the students seeking answers to their personal questions.

While the opportunities for jobs in the various fields and qualifications needed to fill them may enter into the discussions, this conference is not planned as a "job conference" in any sense. It lays special stress on such fields as what is expected of youth in the modern world, the attributes of successful living and the qualities of good citizens.

Various student committees are handling the planning details. Others are assigned as hosts and hostesses to the individual leaders to assist them in their group meetings upon their arrival. The only general meetings of the conference will be a preliminary planning session Sunday evening, Oct. 30, and a final evaluation meeting.

FISHING BLUES

KITTY HAWK, N.C. —(UP) — A catch of 430 bluefish by one man in a single day is believed to be a record along the North Carolina coast. Cary Evans, of South Mills, N.C., made the catch fishing from the local pier from early morning to 10 p.m.

Farmers Meet Strike Situation

INDIANAPOLIS, — The farmers of Indiana through their livestock marketing groups met the strike situation at Indianapolis by keeping branch yards open for longer hours.

W. R. Cummins, manager, of the producers marketing association, has asked farmers to contact the nearest branch yards. It is understood that the accelerated service will terminate with the end of the strike.

Bidders appearing at the auctions and negotiation with the branch yards represent packers and traders, and often are order buyers for distant outlets. Much of Indiana livestock eventually appears in the grocery case or the meat market somewhere along the eastern sea board.

Mrs. Ralph Bennett, Etna-Troy township, will head the Whitley County Home Demonstration Association in 1956, according to action taken by the Home Economics Council in session at the county agent's office, Friday. Mrs. Roy Metzger is the retiring president, having served in that station two consecutive years. Mrs. Noel Smith, Jefferson, will succeed Mrs. Joe Wilkinson, Richland, as vice-president. Mrs. William Snodgrass, Etna-Troy, will continue as secretary and Mrs. Harry Jagger, Thorncreek, will continue as treasurer.

The Home Economics Association has a total membership in excess of 500 women most of whom are farm homemakers. The organization has conducted a constructive educational program in nutrition, grooming, furniture selection and home management, without interruption for 32 years. During the next eight weeks the group will develop a constructive home making program for 1956. The County Association now includes eleven local clubs, one of which consists of town ladies. Mrs. Metzger and Mrs. Wilkinson have been complimented on the successful leadership given the association the past two years.

The next important event will be the annual Achievement Day meeting at the 4-H Center November 3.

The boys were pictured as they re-enacted the ordeal.

NEW OLD-TIMER—John E. Peters, retired farmer of Inman, Kan., steers the pint-sized reproduction of an old-time Rumley steam threshing machine tractor which he made from scrap and junk. Coal is used to fire the boiler and with full steam up, the thresher will move about four miles per hour. The whistle, governor, steering wheel and wheels were made from old tractor parts; the boiler from oilfield pipe; smokestack, coal and water bins from tin, and tires and belts from salvaged tires and tubes. Peters' hobby is making models of outdated farm machinery. EXCLUSIVE NEA PHOTO.

al of the May, 1950, declaration, promising action against aggression by either side in the dispute between Israel and the Arab states.

Expect a Rejection

Israeli sources said Sharett will coldly reject the West's offer of a renewal of the 5-year-old pledge, claiming it would be "worthless" in face of the present situation.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay and British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan met at MacMillan's villa here at 11 a.m.

The West had to decide on its next moves after both sides presented rival "peace packages" which showed East and West still as far apart as ever on how to end the cold war.

Pinay flew back from Paris Friday for today's session after helping Premier Edgar Faure survive a confidence vote in the National Assembly.

Dulles and MacMillan discussed the Middle East crisis at a one-hour emergency meeting Friday. Sharett had hoped to see Dulles today but it was announced they would meet at 5 p.m. Sunday.

Sources said Sharett would press again for a security pact between Israel and the United States in his meeting with Dulles. But Western officials indicated none of the Big Three is prepared at present to go beyond their 1950 tripartite declaration to resist aggression by either side in the Middle East.

Europe And Germany Snags

The potentially - explosive situation in the strategic region loomed menacingly over the Big Four talks, already snarled down in the same old arguments over the future of Europe and Germany.

The three Western powers offered Molotov a plan for a nine-point "treaty of assurance" to guarantee Soviet security in exchange for all-German elections and unity next year.

The plan carried a historic American pledge to go to Russia's aid in case of an attack in Europe.

Molotov Spurns Plan

Molotov slapped the Western "peace package plan" down. He came up with a rival plan that would scrap the Western collective security alliances in the next two or three years.

The shrewd Soviet diplomat also served notice of more trouble ahead. He said Russia would have a new plan on German reunification to submit "at an appropriate time." He added that he wanted both West Germany and Communist East Germany present at that time.

A West German spokesman said his country would neither sit at the same table with Red Germany nor suffer to be called in separately.

The Western peace plan offered the Soviet Union a guarantee against aggression for an indefinite period. It included a buffer control zone across Europe, and proposed that Russia set up a radar warning system inside Western Europe in exchange for a Western radar system inside Eastern Europe.

But the Western proposals were tied directly to Soviet agreement for all-German elections and German unity in 1956.

Molotov proposed a 50-year European collective security treaty, including the United States, with Communist China as an observer. Diplomats said it was the familiar Soviet tune. It placed security first and German reunification second.
